FARMERS BREEDING FAST STOCK. There is a good deal said by the agricultural journals about this question, and there is a prevailing opinion that farmers should not breed fast stock. We can hardly arrive at such a conclusion. If there is more money in breeding thoroughbreds than there is in common horses, we say breed the thoroughbreds. It is claimed that fast horses means gestion. idleness, race-tracks, gambling, whiskydrinking and swindling. That may be so, but no one ever objects to the farmer raising barley, corn, rye and hops, because such products are required for the manufacturing of whiskey and malt liquors. There is as much propriety in one as there is in the We believe that horse-racing 18 other. pernicious in its tendencies. We have the same opinion in regard to drinking liquors, unless used for medicinal purposes, but that is no reason that barley, rye, corn and hops should not be cultivated. The farmer can breed fast horses and yet not patronize the race-tracks, unless he chooses to do so. If he can raise a borse that is worth-when four or five years old-five hundred dollars, is it not his privilege, and is it not better than to grow a plug, or a dung-hill, that is only worth seventy five or a hundred dollars at that age? We say let the farmers make all the money they can off of their farms in a legitimate way. The more they make the better it is for all of us.

The fact that nutmegs have strong narcotic properties has long been known; but they are in such common use as a favorite condiment used in small quantities that their dangerous nature when taken in large quantity is apt to be overlooked and forgotten, even by those who are aware of their tendency. Nutmeg in the quantity of two or three drachms has been known to produce both stupor and delirium; and dangerous and fatal consequences are said to have followed its free use in India. Mace, the outside covering of the nutmeg, possesses essentially the same properties.

OLD tan bark makes a cool and delightful walk under the shade of trees. It must be laid on a dry bottom, or it becomes very unpleasant in wet weather. Slag from furnaces ground up with ashes is the very best material for garden walks, and the color is more agreeable in hot weather than grayel. Notwithstanding its dark color, it is not so hot, and it does not pack quite so hard as the regular road material. Sand, on the other hand, though it does not pack at all, is very hot, on account of the very hard nature of its particles.

WEEDS on graval walks may be destroyed and prevented from growing again by a whole dish. copiuos dressing of the cheapest salt. This is a better method than hand pulling, which disturbs the gravel and renders constant raking and rolling necessary. One application early in the season, and others as may be needed, while the weeds are small, will keep the walks clean and bright.

It is of the very utmost importance that stock should have good, pure water, and glycerine soap, and, when dry, dust on the plenty of it. The thirst of animals during hot weather can readily be imagined from judging it by the human thirst; and to de prive the animal of sufficient drink is about the worst species of cruelty that can be inflicted upon the brute creation. Astrology and Astronomy,-Astrolo gers have spent their strength in forebodings concerning this disastrous year, and memorable events thus far chance, says a correspondent of The Providence Journal, to accord with their predictions. But intelligent observers of the political condition of Europe would have drawn a similar picture of the events shadowed forth in the coming year, and students of astronomy familiar with the results of the sun-spo period would have expected the advent of storms, earthquakes, and epidemics in varied forms, for there is little doubt that the disturbed condition of the sun is reflected in the meteorological condition of earth. And yet at this very time, when astrology as a science has nearly exploded, astronomy is discussing the question whether these planets whose positions were supposed to rule the destinies of men born under them may not be the exciting cause of some of the phenomena agitating the globe, their attraction acting upon the sun, and the sun in turn acting upon the earth. Plane: ary action is thus made the indirect agent in the death of many thousands of human beings, the vic.ims of the unusual elemental warfare that will make this year long to be remembered. It is only a theory, like almost everything connected with as tronomy, and the giant planets must swing round to perihelia many times before the question can be decided. There may be something in it however, and if so, astrology, in a new phase, will shake hands across the intervening ages with the ancient science which saw in the beaming planets. as they tracked the heavens, friend and foes, watching over the nativities of the
