GLYCERINE IN FLATULENCY AND ACIDITY. -An old gentieman, who for many years suffered from distressing acidity, read in a daily paper that glycerine added to wilk prevents its souring, and he reasoned thus: "If glycerine prevents milk turning sour, why should it not prevent me turning sour?" and he resolved to try the efficacy of glycerine for his acidity. The success of his experiment was complete, and whenever tormented by his old malady he cures himself by a recourse to glycerine. Indeed, he can now take articles of food from which he was previously compelled to abstain, provided always that he takes a dram of glycerine immediately before, with, or directly after his food. Since this was made public several physicians have prescribed glycerine in acidity and flatulency with the most happy results.
