Attempt to Shoot Guiteau.

A second attempt was made to shoot Guiteau on Saturday, while he was conveyed from the court room to jail. The occurrence is detailed by police officer W. J. Edelin, who has been detailed to accompany Guiteau from and to the jail. Officer Edelin says they left the court house about 2:40 p. m., and moved at the usual pace down D. street. He noticed no one near the van until opposite the Holmes house, D. street and New Jersey avenue. Here was a man on horseback. He noticed the horseman, because he had seen his face in the court room and also sitting on his horse near the City Hall. Riding near the van, the stranger seemed anxious to get a look at the prisoner, but Edelin said to him: "There's nothing in there for you to see." With this the horseman turned about and Edelin did not see him again until on First street, near East Capitol street. There he rode up from behind, and as the van turned into East Capitol street, he was on his left. Dropping behind he peered through the rear grating, and evidently satisfying himself as to the position of the occupant of the van, pushed his horse quickly to the left of the van. From this point, and before the officer could discover that he had a pistol, he fired a shot through the side of the vehicle and then wheeled suddenly back toward First street. Edelin fired at him. Without waiting to inquire after the condition of the prisoner, the van was started in pursuit of the horseman, but time was lost in turning over the car tracks on East Capitol street, and the fugitive had too good a start. The van pursued as far as K street, down which the horseman fled, but he was soon lost to sight.

When Guiteau was asked whether he was hurt he only caught hold of his left arm and was thus taken to his cell. There a reporter found him washing, having just changed his shirt. There were two holes in the left sleeve of his coat, below the elbow, but neither the sleeve of his shirt nor that of his undershirt were injured. Cutting away the sleeve of the latter it was found that the concussion from the ball, as it passed through the coat sleeve, had brought blood to the surface of the arm just below the elbow, but there was no rupture of the skin. Dr. McWilliams, the assistant jail physician, directed applications of ice, and in a few moments the prisoner had forgotten to attend to the injured limb.

A man that goes by the name of Bill Jones was arrested in the evening, as the fellow who shot at Guiteau, but when Officer Edelin was brought to identify him he said to the officers and reporters: "Gentlemen, that is not the man. I should know the man among a million. I not only fail to identify this man Jones as the man, but I could swear that he is not the man."

It is to be hoped for the honor of the country that all attempts to kill Guiteau will fail. Let the miserable wretch have a fair trial, and if found guilty as no doubt he will he should be hung under the law.

The Assassin's Trial.

The trial of Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, is now in progress at Washington. Much interest is shown over it, not only in Washington but throughout the entire country. The court room where the trial is held is daily crowded to its utmost capacity. There is a morbid curiosity to see the wretched man who assassinated the lamented President. Guiteau's strange conduct during the trial thus far has forfeited what little sympathy there may have been for him. His boundless egotism and vanity, his violent anger, exceed, if possible, his utter depravity and wickedness. He flies into fits of rage, scolds the witnesses, quarrels with his lawyers and insults the judge. Several times did Judge Cox threaten to remove him for his unruly conduct and conduct the trial in his absence, but this always cowed him and he becomes a little more decent for a time. He plays the crazy man to perfection but the general belief is that he is more wicked than insane. In fact he is beginning to be considered a prodigy of depravity—a very fiend incarnate.

An exchange gives the legal test of insanity when it is made a plea of defense in criminal prosecutions. If these few plain rules are the law on the question it would not seem difficult to determine when a criminal is legally insane and not accountable for his acts. Their application in Guiteau's case will clearly lead to the conclusion that his insanity is simply a sham. The tests are these: Did the accused know the nature of his act? Did he know the act to be criminal? Did he act under a delusion as to some facts which, supposing the fact to exist, would justify the act?

THROUGHOUT the South and the Southwest evidences multiply that those sections are rapidly recovering from the results of "the late unpleasantness" and bid fair, before many years to take their place among the foremost of the agricultural and manufacturing portions of America. This is especially true of Georgia and Texas, both of which States have been the recipients of a large and valuable emigration that represents some of the working elements of the Old World. Great fields are being opened and cultivated according to the best methods; capital is pouring in at a steady pace, factories are erected, and the people are becoming independent, to a certain extent, of the rest of mankind. It is this utilization of its own inherent wealth that will quickly make the South great, and the North will not begrudge an iota in the race for the supreme prosperity. A rich South means a wealthy North, for it is in the nature of things that we of this section of the country must participate in the common growth and derive our share of all the blessings that may flow into the newly-made coffer.—Ez.

The Millheim Telegraph suggests that the republican party in Pennsylvania had better abolish the convention system of nominating candidates, on the score of economy. It would be much cheaper no doubt just to let the Camerons appoint our state and other officers outright and swear them in without the expensive and useless farce of nomination and election.

The Lewisburg Chronicle serves the following brief but pointed notice on some of the Stalwarts-Boss-Machine papers to stop abusing the Independent, lest they might be sorry for it. We hope the 50,000 will take no more "sass" from the Bosses but shake off the galling Cameron yoke entirely:
Some of the hot-headed Republican papers, led by the Harrisburg Telegraph, have adopted a course well calculated to drive the Independent voters outside of the Republican camp to return no more. This thing of tantalizing, despising, and denouncing over 50,000 as intelligent voters as the State ever produced, may sound musical to Stalwart ears, but the effect may be said to be next fall. When people act consistently in a cause which they deem just and necessary, they are in no humor to calmly and silently gulp the biting irony of a victorious rival. If the Stalwarts really value their room more than their company, so be it. But we give what we deem consistent warning: If these 50,000 leave the Republican camp, they will not go alone; each man will take his neighbor; and 100,000 votes out of the Republican party will leave it in a deplorable condition. Better stop cursing this people, until you are sure that they deserve it.

A FIGHT WITH AN EAGLE.

Frustrating the Bold Attempt of a Bird to Carry off a Boy.

From the Monroe (Ga.) Advertiser.
On last Thursday morning John Abernathy brought home a monster eagle into town, which he had killed on his place, four miles from Forsyth, the day previous. He had gone to a field to work, carrying his little son, two and a half years of age, with him. It happened that he had his shotgun in his hands, thinking that he would need it to kill game. Suddenly he heard a sound in the air, which he describes as equal to the roaring of the wind, and saw a large shadow on the ground. Looking up he saw a huge bird swooping down upon his son. As quick as possible he raised his gun and fired and was fortunate enough to bring the eagle to the ground. He picked him up and started homeward, carrying the bird on his shoulder. Suddenly the eagle buried his talons on his right arm and seized his left with his beak. Mr. Abernathy called for help, and some neighbors, four in number, came to his assistance. It required their united effort to release the bird from his firm hold. When relieved he found that his arm was badly lacerated, the flesh being torn from several places. The beak was sunk to the bone in the right hand. The eagle measured seven feet four inches from tip to tip and weighed seventeen and one-half pounds. He was never seen in the neighborhood before, and it is probable he strayed from the coast. Mr. Abernathy says his strength was prodigious. He would have readily carried off the little boy had it not been that his father was fortunately armed with a gun.

JERKED FROM JUSTICE.

A Wisconsin Outlaw Lassoed in Court and Dragged Out and Hanged.

ST. PAUL, Minn., November 19.—A special to the Globe from Durand, Wis., gives the particulars of the lynching of E. J. Williams, one of the murderers of the Coleman brothers. He was caught in Hall county, Neb., last Saturday and conveyed to Durand, where he arrived yesterday. In court this afternoon he pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder. The court room was crowded and several men were outside. Williams had scarcely entered his plea and asked for time to procure witnesses when a noose was thrown over his neck. Those inside the court room shoved him to a window, while those outside pulled the rope and he was dragged some forty rods to a tree and hanged until he was dead.

LAST NOTICE.—All persons having unsettled accounts with the estate of Adam Zerry, late of Penn township, deceased, are hereby requested to meet the undersigned at the office of Jacob Eisenhuth, Esq., on MONDAY, DECEMBER 19TH, NEXT, for settlement.
