Every man in the least suspected of affection for Gen. Garfield is removed from office and none but those who fell with Grant in the last ditch at Chicago need apply for appointment. To advertise this fact to the public is an unmistakable way and in glaring light, every one of the 306 who so faithfully sustained Grant at Chicago is put into important office, as fast as they apply, or commissions can be made out. The only exception seems to be the statesman Mouat, of Philadelphia, now in the penitentiary for election frauds, under State laws that Arthur's pardon cannot reach, and possibly a tew others similarly circumstanced.
