A BLACK FRIDAY.

Five Murderers Hung in Pennsylvania.

Friday the 24th of March, 1882, will be memorable in the criminal annals of Pennsylvania as the day on which no less than five murderers paid the dread penalty of the law for the bloody crime of murder. At Harrisburg Frank and Henry Rumberger were executed for the murder of an old man named Daniel Troutman, near Gratztown, Dauphin county, Nov. 14th 1880.

At Clearfield John A. Neveling paid the penalty of the law for the murder of Samuel Pennington, Feb. 17th 1880. His mother came to see him last Sunday. The meeting between them was very affecting. Jack told her that his death upon the gallows was but the natural end of the life he had led, and exhorted her to warn his brother before it would be too late.

At Middleburg, in our neighboring county of Snyder, Jonathan Moyer, one of the four murderers of the old Kintzler couple, was launched into eternity from the gallows. To the very last he stuck to the story he has told all along, that he knew nothing of the murder until the day after it was committed, when he was told of it by Etinger, with whom and Uriah Moyer he then went to rob the house.

A Forcible Contrast.

The Harrisburg correspondent to Sunday Morning, in speaking of our State Legislature says that some years ago the House consisted of one hundred and the Senate of thirty three members, now the former body is composed of two hundred and one and the latter of fifty members.

to fifty. When the pay was $1.50 per day railroad passes were unknown, as were railroads. Then, boarding was $2 per week, and the member who paid an extra half dollar for the extravagance of fire in his room was esteemed prodigal of his means.

Then, there was nothing to paste and fold; now, there is the Legislative Record (commenced in 1857, and which generally got all pasted and folded about the 1st of August) and a score of reports, from the eight-page Fish Report tract to the four-pound Family Bible Internal Affairs Report. Then none of a member's constituents ever visited Harrisburg; now, they come by every train and always lack a dollar or two of money enough to buy a ticket home.

Then, all a candidate, expenses was two or three dollars for ticket printing; now, he is expected to subscribe to every church, base ball club, Y. M. C. A., fire company, missionary society and brass band, and attend every barn raising, revival, horse race, Sunday School picnic, circus, camp-meeting, county fair, mite society and public sale in his county, besides giving to every colporteur, tramp and organ-grinder he meets in his canvass, and balling or indorsing for all his delegates and their friends.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, March 29, 1882. The Senate Committee on the Improvement of the Mississippi River and its Tributaries have agreed upon a bill appropriating $500,000 for the improvement of the Mississippi River, and $1,000,000 for the Missouri River.

The President having signed the anti-polygamy bill the suppression of the crime which has so long flouted itself in Utah will now begin in earnest. No differences have existed as to the desirability of legislation which would remove this rank offense from the soil of the United States, though there have been disagreeable moments concerning the policy which ought to be pursued to make it effective.

It was estimated from advices received up to 10 o'clock last evening that the contributions already received at Philadelphia and Washington for the benefit of Sergt. Mason's wife and child would amount to at least five thousand dollars. Evidently the "American people" so often quoted by Gullieu as his firm supporters have transferred their sympathies to a more deserving object, and thus have driven another nail in the coffin of his egotism.
