CLOVER .- N. Griffin says there is no substitute for clover, so far as 1 knownothing to take its place. It is better in its effect on land than any other forage wound. Do not stop for the hurt, but plant. It is said that a good crop of clover continue until it bleeds freely and becomes -say such a crop as will yield two tons of cured hay from an acre-will leave an equal weight of roots for the soil. That is to protect it from the dirt. Do not is like a coat of manure. I am sorry to stop short of the bleeding and the numbhear that clover is failing into disrepute, for its renovating power is greater than that of any other plant, Lately clover does better than in a few years past, so I hope we shall soon have all the old measure of success. Many years ago the farms in Duchess county used to give large crops of timothy and they were taken away and sold. Those farms are now exhaustedruned because the crops were taken off. But clover is never all taken off when the roots are left. Forty-five years ago a great deal of timothy was raised in Tompkins county N. Y. and the land that produced it ran down under its production and the occupants had to turn their attention to clover. At first it was difficult to get it established. but little by little under its influence the lands grew better. Farmers had to ditch their lands as the first condition, then they used plaster, and at last got full crops of ciover and better crops of grain, for their lands improved through clover. Hungarian grass has been tried, but, like timothy, when the crop is taken off nothing is lett. and the soil becomes poor. The best crop is that which leaves most to the soil, and that is what clover does. I hope it will not lose its place in our farming, for there is no other plant so beneficial in its effect.

HORSES, MULES AND OXEN .- When thin steers, poor cows, and scrub stock generally, are very plenty and very cheap, hogs of all kinds and fat cattle are scarce and high-priced, and another kind of stock is more scarce still, and that is working horses and mules. For the last three or 4 years there has been a large demand for horses and mules, from the best to the poorest, and last summer it had increased so much that the loss of an eye, a curb or a spavin, would not prevent a sale, and unscund plugs sold last fall for nearly as much as sound common stook ten years ago. But this winter the price has been increased by the home demand for mule teams, if not to cultivate acreage, at least to do the work better, and it looks now as if the old army price in greenbacks will re-appear in gold in the course of the season. Already good, heavy mules and horses cannot be had at what are thought to be fair prices. Oxen are being substituted by those who own large herds of rough steers; and this may be a start in the direction of a partial substitution of oxen for horses for farm work.

FLOUR was formerly made by simply grinding wheat at one operation to the finest flour, and then separating by sieves the flour from the bran, necessarily grinding in much of the bran with flour and discoloring it, while much of the very best masure to win. - Cincinnati Enguirer. terial was separated with the bran and lost. The later common method is to grind very coarsely the wheat several times, using strong blasts of air between each grinding to separate the bran from the granulated interior portion and at last crush it to the floor, relieved of all the bran. The new electric method consists in passing the middlings under revolving hard-rubber cylinders, electrified by contact with sheepskip. The particles of bran fly up to meet the rubber, from which they are turned off in a side channel, the purifled middling, freed from bran, passing through rollers to become fine flour.

We have used and seen this used on all kinds of simple punctures for thirty years, and never knew single instance of a wound becoming inflamed or sore after treatment as above. Among other cases: A coalrake tooth going entirely through the foot, a bad bite by a pig, several instances of file shank through the hands, and numberless cases of rusty nails, awls, etc., but we never knew a failure of this treatment. After the bleeding apply a little simple cerate on a clean cloth.

A Raffroad Official Interviewed.

Not every one so cheerfully comunicates his knowledge and opinions as recently did E. L. Loweree, Esq., cashier of the Cincinnati Southern Railway, that splendid outlet to the South from the Ohio. Our representative waited upon Mr. Loweree, and in reply to certain questions the latter gentleman observed : "I was suffering from a very severe attack of rheumatism in my right foot ; it was in a terrible condition, the pain was almost intolerable; our family physician waited on me without success; I sent for another wellknown M. D., but even the twain could do nothing for me; I could not get down here to my office to attend to my duties; in fact I could not put my foot under me at all, and after nine weeks suffering I began to grow desperate. My friend (whom, of course you know, for he is later. known by every-body). Mr. Stacey Hill, of the Mount Auburn Inclined Plane Railroad Co., called to see me; he spoke very highly of St. Jacobs Oil, and recommended the remedy to me in glowing terms. I laughed at the idea of using s proprietary medicine, and yet the party recommending, it, (Mr. Stacey Hill, remember), being a man of sound judgment, set me to thinking the matter over. The next day when the physicians called, I dismissed them, and said to myself 1 would let nature take its course. That resolution lasted just a day. On the following morning I, in a fit of desperation, sent a servant for a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. applied the wonderful remedy, and penetrated me so that I thought my foot was about to fall off, but it did not; in fact it did just the opposite. The next morning the pain had entirely left my foot. the swelling was reduced, and really the appearance was so different altogether from the day before, that it actually surprised me. # THAT RICH EXPERIENCE, A Free Prese Interview Sustained and Its Source

Revealed. (Detroit Free Press.)

A few months ago an interview with prominent and well known physician, formerly a resident of Detroit, but now living in New York, appeared in the columns of this paper. The statements made by the doctor and the facts he divulged were of so unusual a nature as to cause no little commotion among those who read them, and many inquiries were raised as to the genuinensss of the interview and the validity of the statements it contained. The name of the physician was at that time suppressed at his own request. The seal of secrecy, however, can now be removed, as the important and interesting letter which appears below will abundantly show. In order, however, that the reader may better understand this letter, a few extracts are herewith given from the interview in question.

After an exchange of courtesies and a few reminiscences about the war, in which the doctor was a prominent surgeon, the reporter remarked upon the doctor's improved appearance, upon which he said : "Yes, I have improved in health since you last saw me, and I hope also in many other ways. One thing, however, I have succeeded in doing, and it is one of the hardest things for any one, and especially a doctor, to do, and that is 1 have overcome my prejudices. You know there are some people who prefer to remain in the wrong rather than acknowledge the manifest right. Such prejudice leads to bigetry of the worst order. Now, I am a physician, and of the "old school" order, too; but I have, after years of experience and observation, come to the conclusion that truth is the highest of all things, and that if prejudice or bigotry stand in the way of truth, so much the worse for them -they are cortain to be crushed sooner or Why, when I knew you in Dotroit. I would no sooner have thought of violating the code of ethics laid down by the profession, or of prescribing anything out of the regular order, than I would of amputating my hand. Now, however, I prescribe and advise those things which I believe to be adapted to cure, and which my experience has proven to be such." "How did you come to get such heretical ideas as these, doctor ?'

"Oh, they are the result of my experience and observation. I obtained my first ideas upon the subject, though, from having been cured after all my care and the skill of my professional brethren had failed to relieve me. Why, I was as badly off as many of my patients, with a complication of troubles, including dyspepsia. and consequently imperfect kidneys and liver. and I feared I should have to give up my practice. For months I suffered untold agonies. Dull, indefinite pains in the various parts of the body; a lack of interest in everything around me; a loss of appetite: headaches; all these disagreeable symptoms were added to pains which were both acute and constant. Sick as I was, however, I became restored to health in a most surprising manner and in an incredibly short space of time, and it was ### no longer had to arouse the bowels with cathartics. My headaches disappeared with my dyspepsia; but still I was not

"Nature did it," 1 reasoned. convinced, But, determined to push the investigation to the extreme, while I was in active work, I tried the effect of the remedy on my patients afflicted with kidney, liver and urinary diseases, watching every development carefully and studiously. Then I was completely disarmed, for the remedy stood every test imposed !

Under such convincing circumstances, the matter of confessing my cure became a question of conscience and of duty to humanity. "Here is a remedy," I said, "that has done for me what the best med!cal skill of the country could not accomplish"-and as an honorable man I will not suppress the facts. 1 ther, fore write you and most unhesitatingly assert that tor all diseases of the kidneys, liver, stomach or urinary organs which are amenable to treatment, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure surpasses any remedy I have ever known or used, and since physicians have so much ill-success in the treatment of diseases of these organs, I am prepared to accept all the consequences when I say that they are, if conscientious, in duty bound to use this pure vegetable compound in their practice.

Yours very truly, J. W. SMITH, M. D.

Statements so outspoken as the above and coming from such a reliable source are valuable beyond question. They conclusively show not only the power of the remedy which has become so well known and popular, but the great importance of attention in time to the first indications of declining health. When professional men of such high standing sink their prejudice and willingly declare their belief in that which they know to be valuable, the tion about his bad points. #### A PICTURE of still life : A vagrant scorpion strolled leisurely down a plank leaning against a fence on Rusk street, just as the sun reached the zenith yesterday. On that plank pensively reclined a negro whose contemplation was profound and most musically evinced by a sound emitted from his open mouth that recalled to the minds of passers the days of the pitsaw. When scorpion and the African made the conjunction, to say that the African awoke is not an exageration. As he tore the reptile from his swarthy neck and pulverized it in the mud beneath the heel of a No. 18 brogan he got off some such expression as the following : "Dat scarapinhzard must think I got my neck half-soled wid a leather apon, dog-gone him!"

THRASHING Othello: A theatrical company was performing "Othello" in one of the Connecticut provinces. Owing to the illness of the lady who played the role of Desdemona a local tragedienne was assigned that part. When she saw the enraged and foaming Moor advancing to smother her, her courage gave out and hastily crawling under the bed she began to yell for the police. The chivalry of the pit was aroused. A sturdy young countryman mounted to the stage and grappling Othello mopped him around vigorously, amid the applause of the boys. When he recovered his freedom and his breath he explained that he didn't mean to hurt the girl and was only tollowing the cue of Shakespeare. "All right," replied the rustic champion, "when you come around again fetch Shakespeare with you and if he can lick me I'll treat."

As stages are quickly abandoned with the completion of railroads, so the huge, drastic, eathartic pills, composed of crude and bulky are quickly abandoned medicines, with the introduction of Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," which are sugar-coated, and little larger than mustard seeds, but composed of highly concentrated vegetable extracts. It is well known that a black object on white ground will appear to be much larger than it really is. A white stripe, for instance, on a black surface seems broader than a black stripe on a white surface, although both be of the same width. This phenomenon of simultaneous contrast is physiologically explained by Peter Sherffer in this way: When one of our senses receives a double sensation, one of which is active and strong while the other is weak it will be found that the latter is not felt. This must be particularly the case when both impressions are of the same kind, or when a strong effect from an object on one of the senses is followed by another of the same kind which is milder and weaker.

EXISTING orchards illustrate the varied cpinions of orchardists relating to the distance trees should be planted apart. Thirty feet was considered sufficient for all purposes when I planted my orchard of ten acres twenty years ago, but we are gradually learning that to grow perfect truit in size and color, plenty of sunshine, and a free circulation of air are important essentials, and as many are now practicing thirty-five or even forty feet apart is decidedly a preferable distance for a fully matured orchard.

MANY dairymen practice milking their cows steadily without allowing the animals to go dry. They feed heavily on commeal and oil cake until the milk fails, when the cow is replaced by a fresh one.
