PLANTING GRAPE-VINES .- One would suppose that so simple a thing as planting a grape-vice would not need writing about; and yet the number of people inquiring, "How shall we plant?" is so great that a few words to these inquirers may well be shells, etc. Replace the fish with a scoop pardoned by those who think they already net; if you change the water twice in know enough about the matter. The rule each day, the second time it will only be is to plant the roots shallow. If they are necessary to turn out the water gently long when we have to transplant them, in- and fill it again without disturbing the stead of setting them deep we lay them fish. If scales are knocked off it takes along about four or five inches beneath the two months to heal the wound. Put in a surface, It is of course very necessary to press the soil very hard and firm over the roots; that is if the earth is tolerably dry, though in truth no vine should be planted except the earth is in this condition. It is cover the vase with a shell or netting, to very useful in planting a grape-vine to cut it closely in. Unless the last year's growth be very vigorous it may be almost all cut away; and even where the growth is strong one-half - may be cut away. THE eye of a steer, when prominent, bright and clear, with a muld and gentle expression, is an indication of health, with a quiet disposition and good feeding quality. If the eye is dull and sunken the capillary circulation will be defective and the functions of nutrition imperfectly performed, and there will not only be a deficiency in the ability to fatten, but a lack of strength and constitutional vigor. A restless and wild expression of the eye in. dicates a predominance of nervous action and an unquiet disposition that is not compatible with good feeding quality.

PRESSIA spends two or three million dollars annually upon the State forests and tarms. The farms of the State are rented to practical farmers, who are bound by their leases to take pupils in agriculture, and to keep blooded stock for improving the breeds of the surrounding community, and to introduce such machinery on trial as is recommended by the agricultural minister of the crown. No seeds are dis tributed free, except in time of scarcity. but railroads have to carry free articles for exhibition at agricultural fairs. The highways are lined with fruit or other trees, and the Government supervision of forests is strict.
