Stewart Arraigns the Big Boss

Not to particularize, so that there may be no misunderstanding, the one controlling will in the Republican party of Pennsylvania, today is that of James Donald Cameron. He it is who practically gathers up with himself all the faculties and powers of the people and believes that of all active participation in public affairs except the perfunctory business of voting, by determining according to the counsel of his own supreme pleasure who will best serve and what will most advantage the interest of his political dynasty.

ance. You have seen your State conventions bow submissive to his imperious will and sign his resolutions by a base betrayal of the people's cause. You have seen your Legislature just as often display like servility and disregard of popular demands, and, as the crowning act of all, you lately saw this same power doer, as so much marketable commodity, the votes of a number of your Congressional Representatives in a contest for the speakership of the Federal Congress.

Wolfe Tells Why Beaver was Nominated.

They who tell us, he continued, that Beaver could have been nominated against Cameron's will, and in spite of his opposition, must remember that General Beaver was a candidate for Governor in 1878; that he was a recognized and a Christian gentleman then, but that the press and the people were not clamorous for his nomination then. Why not? Why did he only receive twelve votes in the convention then? Simply because Mr. Cameron's organs had not been ordered to give for him; Mr. Cameron's boys had not been ordered to "whisper her up" for him; Mr. Cameron's delegates had not been instructed to vote for him; and because, when things were a little stormy for Governor Hoyt, and Senator Cameron was urged by some of General Beaver's friends to take him as his candidate for Governor, he, as he expressed it, was afraid that he could not carry him.

Now and then the conscience, the manhood and the patriotism of some noble soul would assert themselves, and he would revolt against such tyranny and such debasing influence. In the next election he would find himself confronted by a strong opponent for nomination, perhaps, and unless strongly entrenched in public confidence and affection he would find another man the candidate of his party, or, if he chanced to get the nomination, he was in danger of waking up in the morning after election with the knives of all Cameron's political assassins in his back and a Cameron Democrat as his successor.

THE PEACE PROJECT DEAD

Rumors Concerning the Final Conference. Mr. Barker Defines His Position. The gentlemen who have been considering the subject of effecting a compromise between the two branches of the Republican party met again yesterday in the office of John Welsh, on Walnut street, above Third.

His Excellency, President Arthur

actually rode in a common express wagon down at Newport last week, and the papers make a big fuss over it. No occasion at all. Bigger men than Arthur have done that long before. Why we have even seen editors riding on very ordinary wagons, and right glad they were for the opportunity.

Rev. J. L. W. Seibert, of Milford

Somerset county, has been nominated as one of the Independent candidates for assembly. Mr. Seibert is a prominent minister of the Evangelical Association and was once editor of The Evangelical Messenger.

THE colored citizens of Bucks county are after their white brethren with sharp sticks. They demand the nomination for assembly of Edward Hartless, one of their own race, as the price of their future allegiance to the party.

BLAINE has achieved a grand personal triumph in Maine over Arthur, Conkling and all other Stalwart forces combined. The plumed knight again looms up as a formidable candidate on the republican side, for President in 1884.

New York Herald interview with Tom Marshall. "You will oppose the Beaver ticket?" "I am opposed to Cameronism in all its forms, and the success of the regular ticket would mean the perpetuation of the Cameron power in the State. The Independent policy should be to extirpate the entire gang in the county ticket as well as in the State. The roots, if left, will spring up in a new growth and flourish. The Independents should and will run a candidate against Errett in this district."

Organized Operations of Burglars.

WILLIAMSPORT, September 11.—There is an organized band of burglars operating in this section of the State. A few nights since a safe in the store of E. R. Weed & Co., at Trout Run, was blown open, but the burglars failed to get any large amount of money. One night last week the safe in the store of Charles Croyel, at Pennfield, Clearfield county, was blown open by gunpowder and $500 secured and carried off.

September 13.—Burglars are still at work in the small towns in this part of the State. Last night the store of S. H. Burrows, at Picture Rocks, was entered by the use of tools obtained from a neighboring blacksmith shop, but nothing of any value was carried off. The thieves then proceeded to the dwelling of Mr. Burrows, which they entered, but not finding any valuables they quietly retired. The jewelry store of Clinton Molyneux was next broken in to, where twelve dollars in silver were found and carried off.

Cameronism Doomed.

From the New York Tribune, Rep. The plain fact is that there are two republican tickets in the field, and the one are not enough republican voters in the state to elect more than one. Indeed it is a fact that a first class republican ticket, satisfactory to both republican factions, could be elected over Mr. Pattison, the democratic candidate, only by hard work. No party can brook a quarrel like that which Mr. Cameron's management has caused in Pennsylvania and not lose strength by it. In addition to this, there is Mr. Pattison's independent reform record, and the fact that thousands of republicans in Philadelphia have voted for him as Controller, and have seen no cause for regretting it. What they have done once they will find it easy to do again. It is absurd to say, therefore, that General Beaver has any chance of being elected. He could not be if the independent ticket were out of the field. He simply blocks the way.
