

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

A fine line of Easter cards for Sunday schools just received at the JOURNAL STORE.

Mr. Wm. Peeler left our town and Mr. Snook's employ last week. Sorry to lose such a good, genial fellow, but we cannot help it—else we would.

Judge Frank has taken out letters of administration on the estate of Samuel Winter, deceased. See notice in another column.

FOR SALE.—Rev. C. F. Deininger offers his valuable property in Millheim at private sale. For particulars inquire of H. K. Luse, on the premises.

The flitting season has already opened and the teams loaded with household goods too numerous to mention are passing to and fro every day.

The Lewisburg Chronicle calls the hanging of Jonathan Moyer a technicality. In exactness and refined cruelty that beats any lawyer we ever heard.

Mr. Jacob Gephart's tobacco crop is now all "stripped and ready for market." Jacob has about four and a half tons of the weed on hand and it is worth at present prices about $1000.

Mrs. C. A. Sturgis is here on a visit to her parents. Her health is somewhat impaired and she came home to recruit. Her condition has already improved considerably.

If you have classes in Sunday School and wish to present them with beautiful Easter cards—or in fact any other kind of cards—the JOURNAL STORE is the place to get your supplies.

The Methodist congregation of Millheim raised $2,532.04 last year, $1,300 of which was applied to pay off a debt on the parsonage. Rev. A. M. Barnitz is the efficient pastor.

Capital and labor seem to get along very harmoniously at Mann's Axe Factory, near Bellefonte. Some of the workmen have been engaged there for forty successive years.

The matrimonial business is booming just now. Pastor Tomlinson officiated no less than three couples one evening last week, while a fourth one could not be served and had to get another minister.

If some of our farmer subscribers have more corn than cash, they can settle their subscriptions in corn—and it makes no difference to the printer whether it be for arrears, in advance, or for the current year.

Our friend Val. Breen will take charge of the old Musser mill, in April, and Frank Richards expects to run the brick mill. Both are excellent millers. Mr. Meyer intends to make a trip to the west.

Barber Springer had to get himself an assistant. The young man is a nephew of Jacob, hair from Seltsigrove and answers to the name of George L. Springer. He is bright and active and takes to the business quite naturally.

If Millheim can not get up an axe factory, woolen mills, or other manufacturing establishment let us try to raise a quilting club. It would at least be something in the line of enterprise, and we doubt not that a united effort would insure success.

MUSIC.—Vocal and instrumental music practically and theoretically taught in the Musical College at Freeburg, Pa. A session of six weeks begins Tuesday, May 1st, 1883. Address F. C. MOYER, Musical Director.

The Bellefonte Republican is out of humor with the bad music and singing prevailing in that town and says "the choirs in our churches are ridiculously inadequate to the demands of the occasion—some are not even worthy of the name." Now that's bad of brother Tuten to talk so, but who would have thought it?

Next Monday the new mercantile firm of Pealer & Long will start up business in Mr. Kunk's store building at the iron bridge, Spring Mills. Both these gentlemen possess practical business training and have financial and social standing, which are the prime factors to success. They have our best wishes in their new enterprise.

J. A. Lambert is really one of the most accommodating and reliable fellows that ever drove a stage. Throughout the year he carries a very large amount of express goods all along the route, and delivers them in person. Everything is always right and his charges are really moderate. You can safely entrust our business to him.

Mr. Jonathan Weaver, a substantial and well-to-do citizen of the Farmers' Mills neighborhood died the other Wednesday. Mr. Weaver was an honest, upright man, a good neighbor and an active member of the church. On Sunday his remains were laid to rest at the Union Church. The funeral was attended by many sorrowing relatives and friends. Rev. W. E. Fisher preached a comforting sermon.

The project of building a large new flouring mill at Lewisburg looks like success. Judge Hoffa, Geo. S. Matlack, W. D. Himmelreich, a Mr. Follmer, of Milton and the firm of Heaton, Hunter & Taylor, of Ashland—all rich fellows—constitute the company.

They had a little wreck at Coburn on Saturday morning by which a car loaded with grain was thrown down the embankment and emptied of its contents. It was caused by the spreading of the track. The same train collided with a cow at Fowler and the poor cow got the worst of it.

In looking around for any kind of Parlor or Kitchen Furniture, whether needed in entire suits or only single articles, do not forget that Squire Camp, at Centre Hall, can furnish you as well and as cheaply as you can be accommodated anywhere in this part of the state. The squire understands his business thoroughly and will sell you good work at the lowest possible prices. Give him a call.

Rev. Benj. Hengst, the new preacher, gave us a call on Saturday. As a minister and theologian, Mr. H. is much above the average in ability, while as a man he is one of those few exceptionally kind and genial spirits who seem never to have an enemy in the wide world. Wherever he labors he is not only popular in the current meaning of the term, but really beloved by the entire community. Welcome.

MUSICAL INSTRUCTION.—The undersigned will again resume his work of teaching and will give lessons on Piano or Organ at reasonable rates. The spring term will begin the first week in April. Persons residing in Aaronsburg, Millheim, Rebersburg or in the vicinity of any of these places, who are desirous of taking lessons will please write or apply in person to Wm. T. MEYER, at Aaronsburg, Pa.

We clip the following from the Patriot of Monday last. Rumors had been afloat concerning this matter for some time, but for want of something definite and tangible the JOURNAL refrained from making reference to it. We hope Grant may be able to establish his innocence, not only for his own sake but for the sake of a highly respected father.

On Tuesday the inspectors arrested Grant Shafer on a charge of robbing the post office at Madisonburg on January 1, 1883. The prisoner was taken before the United States commissioner at Bellefonte, and after a hearing was held in $200 bail for trial at the session of the United States court at Williamsport, commencing the third Monday of June next.

Mrs. Nancy S. Tuten, mother of Mr. E. T. Tuten, of the Bellefonte Republican, departed this life at the home of her son, Wednesday the 14th inst., in the 63rd year of her age. Mrs. Tuten was a Christian lady of excellent qualities of head and heart, and died in full hope and faith of immortal life. Some thirty years ago her husband died, leaving a widow with six children to provide for and educate, a task which she performed with true heroic devotion and exceptional success.

The remains were transported for interment to her former home in New Hampshire, on Thursday, accompanied by her affectionate son, to whom we express our condolence and sympathy in his bereavement.

We clip the following item from the Harrisburg Patriot of the 13th inst., which shows that our townsmen, Messrs. S. K. Sankey & Co., are availing themselves of a very liberal offer by the citizens of Duncannon, Pa., to locate their agricultural implement works at that place:

A New Industry at Duncannon. A PATRIOT reporter, in conversation with J. E. Scheibley of this city, general agent for the machine and foundry department of the Harrisburg car company, learns that the enterprising citizens of Duncannon have donated three acres of land and one thousand five hundred dollars in cash to Messrs. S. K. Sankey & Co., of Millheim, Centre county, Pa., as an inducement to have them locate their agricultural works at Duncannon, affording them unusual facilities, being located along the line of the Pennsylvania railroad and in close proximity to the junction of the two rivers and Pennsylvania canal. The buildings are under way and will be completed by the 1st of July 1883.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for April is already on our table, as welcome as the flowers of Spring, and quite as fresh and beautiful. The embellishments, as usual, are very fine, particularly the steel-plate, "A Modern Cinderella," the colored steel fashion-plate; and the colored pattern in creases, a bunch of dog-daisies. But the specialty of the number is its stories, which, though always superior in "Peterson," are better this month than ever. Mr. Benedict's novel, "A Professional Beauty," is alone worth the subscription price. Then there is one of "Josiah Allen's Wife's" humorous sketches, "In Kittery," by the author of "The Second Life," is also such as one rarely reads. The illustrated story, "My First Ball-Dress," is charmingly told; and so is the romantic "Modern Cinderella." All the Spring fashions are given in advance, and the fashion cuts, work-table cuts, etc., etc. are without number. No lady should be without this magazine. It is not too late to subscribe for 1883, as all the back numbers can be supplied, if desired. The price is but two dollars, and to clubs it is much cheaper. Specimens are sent gratis, to those wishing to get up clubs, and handsome premiums are given for getting them up. Subscribe at once. Address CHAS. J. PETERSON, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

WOODWARD NEWS.

Mr. David Krape bought the old Motz homestead here, together with some land. George Vonada bought a small tract of the timberland and J. C. Motz got the balance of the Motz property. The heirs had a family and settlement meeting which was attended by Mrs. Sarah C. Neff and Mrs. C. A. Weaver and son Luther.

Mr. Emanuel Motz, after an absence of nearly a year, during which he made a trip to Europe, was also here on a visit. Man looks just splendid and is chock full of news. His business to England was to negotiate the sale of his gold mine in South Carolina, and though he failed therein by reason of the unsettled financial state of affairs in England, yet he struck another bonanza which promises as rich a financial harvest as most gold mines. He brought his rare scientific knowledge to bear on the improvement of electric light, and the result is what he calls the Incandescent Electric Lamp. By this improvement the light is much increased, the rays are concentrated and can be thrown on any desired point. All damage by explosion is avoided. Mr. Motz has already taken out letters patent both in England and the United States, for his important invention, and his prospects for an early and general introduction of it are very flattering. He is now negotiating with the officers of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co. for its use by that giant corporation.

DUKES.

THE MURDERER ACQUITTED.

The trial of N. L. Dukes, for the murder of Capt. A. C. Nutt, Cashier of the State Treasury, began at Uniontown, Fayette county, Monday the 12th inst., and ended on Wednesday evening following in the acquittal of the murderer.

The general circumstances of the case are still familiar to the public, but the infamous letters of Dukes to Capt. Nutt, and the incensed reply of the latter to Dukes were only made public during the trial. Dukes is a practicing lawyer of some prominence at Uniontown, and was last fall elected a member of the legislature; but the murder of Capt. Nutt with all the horrid circumstances connected with it, prove him a villain of the basest kind. Dukes had paid attentions to Miss Lizzie, a daughter of Capt. Nutt, a intervals for several years, and after having debased her wrote a letter to her father, then at Harrisburg, revealing to him the state of his daughter, coupled with an intimation how he could save her and his family from disgrace. It would be difficult to find a parallel to this letter for baseness and infamy. The indignant and outraged father replied to Dukes in a spirit and tenor that left no room to doubt his feeling and intentions. He puts the alternative to Dukes to marry the girl or take the risk of the consequences. This Dukes flatly and insultingly refused to do in a second letter to Capt. Nutt, although he again admitted his criminal relation to Lizzie, in language that would drive any father who had even a spark of honor, to desperation. Then followed the fatal meeting between the two men in Duke's room at Uniontown, on the morning of Dec. 24th. They first had a scuffle but had been separated, and were standing about eight feet apart, Capt. Nutt resting his elbow on the mantle, exhausted by the scuffle, when the fatal shot fell. He lived only half an hour but could not talk. When the dreadful news spread over the town the excitement and indignation were intense. Violence was freely threatened but Dukes was already safe inside the prison walls.

During the three days' trial the court house was literally packed with people. The evidence, the masterly plea of Hon. W. H. Playford as well as the able charge of Judge Wilson, all pointed to the conviction of the murderer, either in first or second degree, but when the jury brought in their shameful verdict of "Not guilty" the disappointment and indignation were general and knew no bounds. Judge Wilson seemed amazed and said to the jury: "I suppose the verdict that you have rendered is one that you thought should render under your oaths, but it is one that gives dissatisfaction to the Court, because we thought the evidence was sufficient to justify you in rendering a different verdict. If you have committed an error, it is one that you cannot avoid, but can only express our condemnation of it in this mild way. The prisoner is discharged."

The crowd rushed out, but waited about the halls to see the acquitted man start out. He started down the back way, but remained coiled on the stairway while his counsel passed out the other way, and the crowd, seeing him go, in a measure dispersed. On the streets indignation at the verdict ran high. An impromptu procession formed at once and paraded the streets with a rude effigy of Dukes upon a pole and crying his name with oaths and jeers. The threats of lynching were freely made. Dukes sought the protection of the Sheriff, and closeted himself in the jail building for the night. The jurors who were discharged, and armed at the threats of tar and feathers that greeted them as they passed through the crowd, sought security away from the hotels and the streets. It has been impossible to see them since.

The effigy of Dukes, after being carried in procession through the town, was hanged upon a tree before the McClelland house, the crowd singing: "We'll hang Lyman Dukes on a sour apple tree!" Meanwhile the sober-minded men were giving expression to their feelings in another way. A paper was rapidly circulated, calling an indignation meeting next day of all who are jealous of the reputation of Fayette county. It was hurriedly signed and posted through the town and neighborhood.

THE INDIGNATION MEETING. UNIONTOWN, March 15.—Owing to the cold and blustering weather to-day grave thoughts were entertained of the success of the meeting called to express the indignation of the community touching the verdict of the jury acquitting Dukes of the murder of Captain Nutt. The assembly was to have convened on the post office corner, but the lads were to wring, so it was decided to have it in the public school hall. In ten minutes after the ringing of the school house bell there was not standing room in the hall. People of all classes, conditions and creeds and of every party flocked there. Many were unable to gain admission. Captain John Hierer was called to preside. He spoke for ten minutes. He reviewed the character of Captain Nutt in his relations to society and his family. He dwelt upon the deep damnation of his taking off, and when he came to speak of the jurors who acquitted his assassin, no words were strong enough to frame his awful condemnation of their acts. When he affirmed his abiding belief in the absolute purity of the young girl whom Dukes had so vitally traduced his audience burst into a storm of applause, which clearly indicated how fully his sentiments were received. A special train from Conneville had brought large delegations from that place, Dunbar and intermediate points on the South-western railway. While Mr. Hierer was speaking the excitement of the meeting was rising to a high pitch. C. H. Bell, of this place, declared the climax by rising to his feet and exclaiming: "I was born in Maryland and am damned glad of it. I don't belong to Fayette county."

TEXT OF THE RESOLUTIONS.

The following are the resolutions which were unanimously adopted. WHEREAS, A great public calamity has befallen us by the untimely death of a citizen of this county, the hand of the base traitor of the honor of his family, and with shame and indignation be it said, a jury has been found in Fayette county, and a grossly disqualified for the proper discharge of their high trust to make exemption from punishment a premium upon crime. Resolved, That the acquittal of N. L. Dukes, the murderer of Captain Nutt, by a Fayette county jury, is a reproach to the intelligence and decency of our people and destroys public confidence in the intelligence and purity of the decisions of the jury box.

Resolved, That in the light of the recent verdict acquitting N. L. Dukes a Fayette county jury has proclaimed license and prodigality in the libertine and assassin, and has brought dishonor to the honor of every household in Fayette county. Resolved, That the friends of N. L. Dukes and some of his friends to thwart public justice by jacking up and tampering the jury, because of their own selfishness and their traitor of youthful innocence and the apostolates of seduction and murder.

Resolved, That we demand exemption from the partisan efforts of public officers to tamper with the best of justice and offer as the only alternative the bloody arena at the skirts of Judge Lynch. Resolved, That we tender the Hon. Alexander Wilson sincere thanks for the able and impartial discharge of his duties during the trial of this case, and assure him that the mortification and disgrace of the verdict rendered by the jury box is as galling to an honest juror as the intelligence, impartiality and manliness displayed from the bench.

Resolved, That we offer sincere condolences to the widow and orphan children of A. C. Nutt; bereft of a kind husband and tender parent, may they find solace in the assurance that the memory of their dear father will be embalmed in the affection of a host of living friends when the departed memory shall be remembered by the people of Fayette county. Resolved, That we offer our heartfelt thanks to the Hon. Alexander Wilson, for the able and eloquent efforts which he made to secure a verdict in accordance with the law and the evidence, and to prevent this shame from coming on our county; and regret that their worthy wifely and parental duties prevent a just and true verdict before God. The reading of the resolutions was frequently interrupted by prolonged outbreaks of enthusiasm. When Rev. Kerr had finished the audience vociferously demanded a speech from him, and to their request he readily assented. He said that words would fail to express the intensity of his feeling over the outrageous act of twelve men who had pretended to do their sworn duty. Well may parents tremble for their daughters when twelve men can be found who are so base, so lost to all sense of manhood, decency and honor as to render directly contrary to all the evidence, the verdict which acquitted Lyman Dukes of the murder of Captain Nutt and of the responsibility for the terrible crime which he had attempted to put upon the fair name of his dear family. May the names of these jurors go down to posterity as the black list of Fayette county, to be remembered only with feelings of shame and inexorable disgust, to be remembered throughout the state as those who had committed the monstrous act of infamy; and as for Nicholas Lyman Dukes, may he go forth to learn a Cain did, what it is to bear upon his brow the brand of a murderer. May he learn that there is a punishment which no bribery can avert and no treachery turn aside. Let him go forth to learn that when he shall stand in the presence of purity and innocence his conscience shall sting him and accuse him of the lowest forms of licentiousness and debauchery. Let him learn that the hand that penned such letters as he wrote to Captain Nutt is the hand of a cowardly assassin, the hand of a man unworthy a place among honest and upright people. Let him learn that all in all he is a man who would shame the most abandoned inhabitant of the infernal regions.

The scene created by Rev. Kerr's address was absolutely indescribable. Again, and again, and again was it cheered and applauded. The furor was so great that it shook the walls of the building. The impression which followed Rev. Kerr's speech was that nothing more remained to be said. So the meeting quietly dissolved, feeling that at least something had been done toward retrieving the fair name of Fayette county.

HARRISBURG, March 14. The news of the acquittal of Dukes has excited the Capital. In hotel lobbies and at street corners disapproving and indignant legislators, both Republicans and Democrats, openly declare the trial a farce and the verdict an outrage against the Commonwealth. The Democrats are particularly disgusted and say that he shall not sit with them in the House. They do not believe that they can prevent him from taking the oath as a member, but if he should take that step they are determined to expel him.

A Duke's "Error Badly Noted." PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 16.—A Uniontown, Pa. special says N. L. Dukes, the murderer of Capt. Nutt, is at his mother's home in German township. A reporter visited him this p. m., to whom he expressed great satisfaction with the verdict. He also stated that he contemplates claiming his seat in the state legislature and will remain in the county and practice law. Another dispatch says that Jacob A. Jinn, one of the jurors who tried Dukes, has settled on the streets of Belle Vernon this evening and so badly beaten that his life is despaired of.

MARRIED. On the 15th inst., at the Lutheran Parsonage, Aaronsburg, Pa., by Rev. John Tomlinson, Mr. G. H. Barter, of Spring Mills, and Miss Louisa Breen, of Penn township. At the same time and place by the same, Mr. G. B. Crawford, and Miss Mary E. Petteroff, both of Spring Mills. At the same time and place by the same, Mr. George N. Ehrhard and Miss Mary E. Musser, both of Haines township. On the 15th inst., at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. E. D. Keene, Mr. W. E. Keene, of Millheim, and Miss Sadie J. Stover, daughter of Mr. Noah Stover, of Haines township. Still another one that will call us "Uncle Ben," but where will this thing end at this rate? Three brothers getting married within twenty-four days—written on the 22nd ult., Mon on the 18th inst., and all, the last but by no means the best, on the 10th. That exhausts the list on the boys' side and young ladies must now look for husbands somewhere else. The Keenes are all as far as we know. We hope the last couple, as well as the other two, may fare well and do well. They all have the JOURNAL's best wishes, as far as the cake is concerned, our own and the other editors' wife agree to pronounce it "just splendid" and they both know exactly what they are speaking of. DIED. On the 8th inst., in Boalsburg, Samuel H. Stover, aged 71 years, 7 months and 21 days. On the 10th inst., in Greig township, Jonathan Weaver, aged 58 years, 4 months and 20 days.
