sian Czar's Coronation was Made. The proclamation by the heralds at Moscow that the coronation of the emperor had been fixed for the following Sunday at the Cathedral of the Assumption was one of the most interesting spectacles as far as the public were concerned, they being absolutely shut out of any view whatever of the coronation ceremonies. In the space between the senate house and the arsenal as early as 8 o'clock a large number of people had assembled. The place was kept clear by mounted and foot police, who discharged their duties with good temper, but there was no attempt to preserve order when the heralds threw copies among the spectators. The wonder was that those who happily caught copies flying through the air were not torn in pieces by those less fortunate. First the troops arrived, 200 Gardes-a cheval, or Emperor's Guard, in which tunics with silver helmets and breastplates and red laces with pennons.

Then came one of the most curious parts of the procession-twelve led horses, beautiful animals, perfectly white, caparisoned in a gorgeous fashion, their whole body, neck and tail inclosed in a housing of yellow silk emnational colors and curious devices. This cloth was drawn off at each leg, terminating in gold n tasseis. On their heads were plumes of white ostrich feathers. Each horse was led by two grooms, a third walking by its side. The men wore high boots and splendid vious proclamation hal there been more than six. On the present occasion six formed part as representing the dignity of the emperor and six the While the crowd was patiently waiting the arrival of other troops and the approach of the heralds, Prince Vladimir drove past in an open The emperor's guards shouted, "Good health to you!" Soon after two hundred Chevalier Guards. or regiment of the empress, rode to the ground in splendid uniforms, which differ slightly from those of the emperor's regiments. The helmets have golden cagles and large pennons of blue. Between the squadrons of the two regiments there was an interval for the heralds and masters of ceremonies to take up their positions. When they appeared there was the greatest excitement among the crowd. Half a dozen mounted gendarmes rode among the people to clear the space.

The two heralds were remarkably fine men. They were magnificent tabards, as if kings or princes themselves. At first sight one was irresistably reminded of Henry VIII., as pictured at the meeting with the French king on the field of the cloth of gold. Their yellow silk tabards looked like a mass of gold. On their breasts was the large imperial eagle, worked in imperial colors, and a headdress of white velvet, and turned up cap, with hanging plumes of the imperial colors, and broad buff top boots. Their horses had white trappings, with emblazoned eagles and the imperial colors. They were accompanied by six masters of ceremonies in full gold laced uniforms with the secretary of the holy synod and the other officials in court dress. The secretary of the holy synod, with another court functionary, rode out in front of the line. For a moment he position he recently assumed on the Irish was interrupted by the horse of one of question. the heralds which suddenly became restive. With the greatest difficulty the rider kept his seat. Some officers luckily closed round to prevent his being thrown, Certainly that would have been an unfortunate commencement of the ceremonies. At last the only a small special edition was issued. clock struck nine and the proclamation was read for the first time.

As translated from the Russian it was to the following effect: "The grand and puissant Alexander Alexandrovitch has ascended the throne of his ancestors and the thrones of Poland and of the grand duchy of Finland, indi-solubly united with his sovereignty. And according to usage adopted by his glorious predecessors he has deigned to ordain that with the aid of the Omnip tent his coronation and the act of sacred unction should take place on Sunday next, and to which coronation should also be admitted his august spouse, Marie Feodorovna. The solemn announcement is made of this sacred act by this present proclamation to all his faithful subjects, in order that they may renew their endeavors of piety and implore favor of the King of Kings that He wou'd deign with His almighty prote tion the reign of his majesty and of his august spouse, and that He will assure to that reign the peace and tranquillity which are indispensable for the glory of His holy name and the happiness of the Fatherland." The secretary of the holy synod, who was a smart, good-looking young man, discharged his duty well. and read in a clear, loud v ice.

In tantly he ceased the crowd. which stood uncovered, raised loud cheers, waved their hats and made the sign of the cross. The troops saluted. Then followed the scene of excitement already described. Two heralds riding forward threw copies of the proclamation broadcast. These immediately disappeared among the people. Another supply was then forthcoming. The secretary of the holy synod then marched off to the next spot at which the ceremony was to be repeated. This was nearly in front of the monument of Minin and Pojarsky, the bands of the emperor's regiment leading and playing the national anthem. At the conclusion of the reading of the proclamation the bands played the anthem, and before the secretary commenced four trumpeters, two belonging to each regiment, gave a flourish of trumpets.

The Bad Boy Quits Work. "Why are you not working at the livery stable?" the grocery man asked the bad boy. "You haven't been discharged have you?" And the grocery man laid a little lump of concentrated lye that looked like maple sugar, on a cake of sugar that had been broken, knowing the boy would nibble it.

"No, sir; I was not discharged, but when a livery man lends me a kicking horse to take my girl out riding,

lines around the whip, and he let me have one he said would go all day without driving. You know how it is, when a fellow takes a gir' out riding he don't want his mind occupied holding lines. Well, I got my girl in, and we went out on the Whitefish Bay road, and it was just before dark, and we rode along under the trees, and I wound the lines around the whip, and put one arm around my girl, and patted her under the chin with my other hand, and her mouth looked so good, blue eyes looked up at me and twinkled as much as to dare me to kiss her, and I was all of a tremble, and then my hand wandered around by her ear and I drew her head up to me and gave her a smack. Say, that was no kind of a horse to give to a young fellow to take a girl out riding. Just as I smacked her I felt as though the buggy had been struck with a pile driver, and when I looked at the horse he was running away and kicking the buggy. and the lines were dragging on the ground. I was scared, I tell you. I wanted to jump out, but my girl threw her arms around my neck and screamed and said we would die together, and just as we were going to die, the buggy struck a fence and the horse broke loose and went off, leaving us in the buggy, tumbled down by the dashboard, but we were not hurt. The old horse stopped and went to chewing grass, and he looked up at me as though he wanted to say 'philopene.' I tried to catch him, but he wouldn't catch, and then we waited till dark and walked home, and I told the livery man what I thought of such treatment, and he said if I had attended to my driving and not kissed the girl I would have been all right. He said I ought to have told him I wanted a horse that would not shy at kissing, but how did I know I was going to get up courage to kiss her? A livery man | The habit of life and the demands of fash ought to take it for granted that when a young fellow goes out with a girl he is going to kiss her, and give him a horse according. But I quit him at once. I won't work for a man that hasn't got sense. Gosh! What kind of maple sugar is that? Jerusalem! Whew, give me some water. Oh, my, it is taking the skin off my mouth."

The grocery man got him some water and seemed sorry that the boy had taken the lump of concentrated lye by mistake, and when the boy went out the grocery man pounded his hands on his knees and laughed, and presently he went out in front of the store and found a sign, "Fresh letis, been picked more'n month, tuffer'n tripe."-Peck's

On a fine day one can scarcely walk a square in any of the more thickly populated districts of Tokio without hearing the shrill whistle of the blind shampooer, as with long stick in hand he slowly feels his way, calling out from time to time his fee for a complete shampoo. A system of employment for the blind so suited to their condition, affording, as it does, fair profit and an abundance of healthful exercise, indoor and out, certainly deserves, at least, passing notice. Shampooing, or, perhaps, more properly speaking, massage, as practiced by these blind men (called amma), consists of a gentle rubbing with the palms of the hands of the surface of the whole body, together with passive exercise of the joints, and a slow kneading of the superficial muscles, more particularly those of the trunk and extremities. A WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE.

What a Ludy of Great Preminence Has to any About Her Nex. (Boston Globe.)

On a recent trip by a representative of this paper to the city of Haverhill, Mass., a most important incident occurred, which cannot fail to be of the greatest interest to all, and especially to our lady readers. The newspaper man met a lady a trifle middle age with luxurious white hair that contrasted strikingly with piercing black eyes. She possessed a straight, full habit, womanly, but commanding, combined with manners wolly lady-like, and yet pro-nounced. Any acute judge of human nature could see at once that he was in the presence of an unusual personage-one destined to accomplish more than most of her sex, and that settles it. I asked the boss if to exert an influence far reaching in its power. This lady was Mrs. M. W. Wingate. I couldn't have a quiet horse that Almost from childhood she has taken a would drive hisself if I wound the special interest in the bodily troubles of her ex and has probably been more successful n relieving suffering and saving lives than any other woman in America. Indeed, she eems to have been to women what Florence Nightingale and Dorothy Dix were to the suffering soldiers. The instances of women who were in the greatest agony and apparently beyond the reach of human aid, that she has restored to health and happiness, are almost incumerable, and it was only natural that the scribe should become spec ally interested and wish to converse with more in detail. 'How long have you leen engaged in the ractice of medicine, Mrs. Wingate

'For more than twenty-five years."
'A long time, certainly. How did you "A long time, certainly. How did you happen to enter the field at that early day hen women in the professions were specially frowned down upon?" "I think I must have inherited a taste from ny father, Professor J. C. Wood, of Harard college. He was eminent in the pro-ession, a hard worker and equally earnest in recreations. He hunted considerably and I remember when only nine years old used to dissect the birds and animals he had villed. I felt infatuated with medical science even then, and the infatuation has continued up to the present time."

And did you begin your studies so early "I can hardly say when I began, for I canot : emember when I did not read medical iterature. You would scarcely believe it. out I was a slender girl and did not weigh over 12) pounds, but I used to sit up night after night until 2 o'clock in the morning poring over my studies and never dreaming f the flight of time. It seemed as though calls for my attendance on the sick always came unsolicited. I certainly cannot fix the date when I first began practicing. Of course most of my patients were women, and the natural sympathy I felt for my sex has increased during all these years where I have een brought so closely in contact with them and have learned to anticipate their needs and sympathize with their sufferings After the opening of the Boston Medical College I appeared before the faculty; passed examination and received a diploma. racticed for years previous to that time but ought it desirable to receive another di oloma, which I did without any effort.

"Your experience with the many and serous diseases of women having been so extensive must also be valuable. Can you give me some facts regarding them.' "I find that woman seems born to suffering, and where she avoids it, it is by reason of some care on her part or owing to some special renewing power. It is true some women go through life without unusual suffering, but they are none the less in danger, for there are critical periods all along their pathway when the utmost precaution is required. The innumerable complaints called female weaknesses; the irregularities of life and changes of the system all indicate the perils which hang over every woman's career, and which, unless attended to, may result disastronsly. "But is there no way by which these ter rible troubles can be avoided?" "That has been the problem for years. ion are clearly at war with the health of women. I have been, perhaps, unusually successful in my treatment of their troubles but there have been many cases that seemed specially stubborn. I recall one in particular. I had exhausted all the usual expedients and the results were not satisfactory. I became worried over the case and really did not know what to do, but finally thought would try something out of the usual line. had heard a certain remedy recommended very highly and so I procured some and made a chemical analysis of it. I found it was perfectly pure, and that the ingredients were unusually valuable. So I began giving it to my patient, changing it, however, into a bottle of my an. To my great joy it seemed to have an almost immediate and a complete cure was the result. Since then I have used it constantly in my practice and have cured every form of female weakuess, as well as displacements, dropsical tumors, cellu dropsy and all such troubles. I have also used it with the best results in cases of pregnancy and gestation. Indeed I have found it of untold value and benefit. "Have you any objection to giving me the name of this remedy of which you speak?"

"None whatever. It is Warner's Safe

"Certainly, but what of that? I have but one end in view in the treatment of my patients namely—their restoration to health. In the accomplishment of this end I pre-I believe to be beneficial, no matter what the professional consequences may be."

I notice in the New York papers that Doctors Hammond, Agnew and other promi-

I am, however, on the best of terms with my professonal brethren as you can see,' lady produced a beautiful gold medal mounted in the form of a badge which had been presented her by the medical society, known as the Ensign of the Humble Family, of which she is a prominent member. After examining it closely, the reporter remarked that the medical profession evidently were proud of what she had done, as she might well be in the possession of such a medal.
"I am proud of that" she replied, "and I was also pleased a short time since to receive an offer at a large salary to take the prof-seorship in the new medical college at Walla Walla, on the Pacific coast. I do not know how they heard of me out there, but I was ou! ged to decline their offer." 'And so, in your experience with the dis-

bases of women. you have found success, and that Warner's Safe Cure has been a most

"Yes, I have had unusual success and the remedy of which you speak has been proven of great benefit. There are, however, some base imitations of it to be found in the market; these are bad and should be avoid d, but the genuine remedy is one of the very

"And has not the practice of your profession injured your health?"
"No, I am better now than ever before in my life. I froze my limbs last winter, while riding one cold night to see a patient and was obliged to remain indoors for over two months. Otherwise I am healthy, as you can see by looking at me."
"And may I publish this interview, Mrs.

The Prophet Honored in His Own Country, Even in His Own Honee.

THE honest, simple narrative of Mrs. S.J. WHIPP, who resides at No.177 Williams St., Providence, R.I. "During the past six or seven years 1 nave been severely afflicted with kidney disease, causing intense backaches, dizziness and other severe pains through my body and limbs, rendering me so weak and prostrate that at times it was impossible for me to do any part of m r housework. I have had also a flut tering of the heart, and was terribly distressed for breath. I was very miserable, and completely worn out and discouraged: I had no ambition to under take to do anything, and barely sufficient strength to render existence desirable, having failed to find any relief from the doctor's prescriptions. At this trying crisis a friend persuaded me to obtain a bottle of Hunt's Remedy, and now I rejoice that I followed this friendly advice, for the Remedy acted like a charm in my case. After I had taken a few doses my health began to improve; I felt better every way. The fluttering of the heart, the intense backaches, and terrible shortness of the breath speedily disappeared, my strength and ambition soon returned, and before I had taken two bottles of the Remedy I was entirely well, and able to wash and iron and do my housework. Once in a while I am troubled with the headache, and as soon as I am taken I resort to Hunt's Remedy, and a few doses fix me all right. I shall never be without it in the future. I have frequently recommended the Hunt's Remedy to my friends, and they have experienced relief from the first dose. I beartily recommend it to all who are afflicted with kidney disease or diseases of the Liver, Bladder or Urinary Organs. I think no family should be without it MRS. S. J. WHIPP No. 177 Williams St., Providence, R. L."

Acts Like a Charm. "I have used Hunt's Remedy for Kidney troubles and recommended it to others, and always found it to act like a charm. JOHN CHAMBERS, 723 Carson Street, Pittsburg, Penn. Twenty-four Hours to Live. From John Kohn, Lafayette, Ind., who announce that he is now in "perfect health," we have the following: "One year ago I was, to all appearance, in the last stages of Consumption. Our best physicians gave my case up. I finally got so low that our doctor said I could not live twenty-four hours. My friends then purchasel a bottle of Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, which considerably benefited me. I continued until I took nine bottles. I am now in perfect health, having used no other medicine."
