A glimpse of several gangs of men, clad in the hideous uniform of have mid) an assignment to George W. State convicts, steadily toiling in the hot sun, under supervision of armel patrolling keepers, presents the initial idea to the gazer of the suffering endured by its population from the hard toil and iron discipline exacted and det rumat on to star in a strong empto al enforced in that non-discipline enforced in that penal institution. It was early morning, and sixteen newly arrived prisoners were being put through their preliminary exercises in a large chamber on the ground floor, dignified with the style and title "Reception-Room." At a desk erected in an elevated position, his book recording admissions before him, sat Hall-keeper Michael Kennedy. On the opposite side, ranged in rows, were numerous large baths and three or four chairs, such as barbers invite their clients to be seated in. A gauge and memorable life of a man who had taken for measuring the height of prisoners and a weighing machine completed the list of accessories to the "Reception-Room." Presently a keeper on the outside thrust his arm through the iron bars and, inserting a huge key in the lock, opened of State funds, have brought in a verdict of the door. Then entered the sixteen sinners in double file and ranged themselves in a row before Keeper Kennedy. "Your name?" shouted that official to the foremost offender. It was given. Then followed in succession the questions, "Your age?" "Native country?" "Religion?" "Occupation?" "Been here before?" and if the answer were in the affirmative, "How many times?" "Under what name or names?" These questions being satisfactorily answered and the replies recorded, the prisoner was handed over to an attendant who measured his height and weighed him, the result of these two operations, together with the color of his hair, eyes and complexion, being quickly added to the statement and spread before Keeper Kennedy. Each man was then made to strip and enter a bath "and, under the vigilant eyes of the keeper and his satellites, none failed to escape a thor-This cleansing ough washing.

The number of prisoners admitted daily varies greatly, but, approximately, it may be said to average ten. At present there are 700 male and 150 female prisoners in the penitentiary, but, although on one occasion -- in January, 1878--it accommodated the large number of 1,184, it is much overcrowded, and the system of "doubling up," as putting two prisoners in one cell is termed, is in some cases found to be necessary.

A Forty-Four-Ton Statue.

Probably the most colossal statue yet ordered for the States has just been finished in the plaster form by an American sculptor at Florence, Mr. Larkin G. Mead. There are but two in America that can ever be compared with it, Greenough's "Washington" and his group of "Civilization," which adorn the capitol in Washington. Some idea of it may be obtained by a short description. The subject is the "Mississippi River," a large recumbent statue, not unlike the treatment to the "Nile" group in Rome. The figure is represented leaning against a cluster of rocks whence springs the source of the father of waters, while as a support to the other arm is a broken paddlewheel caught in a snag, a not uncommon sight on that mighty river. At the base are represented in bas-relief the various objects characteristic of the stream during its long course, stern-wheeler and side-wheeler, sugar-cane and crocodile and its mineral wealth in the representation of a lead mine, while negroes are seen loading and unloading bales of cotton and tobacco and the sugar cane; crystals, too, are not forgotten, while the giant right foot rests on a ledge of limestone, and in the right hand stalks of that great product of the Mississippi valley, Indian corn, are held, one mature, the other in the shock. A wreath composed of tobacco and cotton crowns the head of the colossus, while a fishing net is carelessly thrown across the base. The plinth or pedestal is twelve feet in length and the weight of the marble no less than forty-four tons. This is to be presented to the city of New York by Mr. Elliott F. Shepard, a New York lawyer, a son-in-law of W. H. Vanderbilt.—Roman News.

A QUEEN OF THE STAGE.

Her Second Love," and the Important Secret She Reveals for the Benefit of Women.

(New York World.) Several years ago the American public were arou ed by the entree upon the stage of a little lady who had been previously but lit le announced. She was one of an innumerable number of aspirants for pub ic f vor and had no i strumental ty, from her own talents, to cause recognition. In spite of the s fact, however, she quickly achieved a warm place in the heart of the public, who isle has cont n ed to hold eve: since. When it was an ounced, therefore, that Miss Maud Granger would star th coming season in the play "Her Second written by Mr. John A. to ee the 10 ular I dy and ven y the rumor Miss Granger's counterance is 'amiliar to nearly e.e y one in the United States. It is face once seen never to be forgotten. Features re narkable in their outline and contour are surmounted by a pair of large and deep eyes indica ive of the greatest soal power. It is easy to see where Miss Granger obtains the ability to portray characters of the most emo'ional nature. within herself the elements of feeling, with out which no emotion can be conveyed to an audience. The man of news found the lady at her home in this city, and was accorded a quiet welcome. It was evident at once that she was in greatly improved health, which the expression and color of her countenance both indicated. "Is it true, Miss Granger, that you conuplate a starring tour the coming season?" "Yes indeed. My season begins in Chicago on July 16. From thre I go to San Francisco, and then play the remainder of the season through the Eastern and Western States.

'Are you confident your health will permit such an undertaking?"
A ringing laugh was the first reply to this estion, after which she said: Certainly. It is true I have been ill for the past two years, but now I am wholly recovered. Few people can have any idea of the strain a conscientious actres; undergoes in essaying an emotional part. It is necessary to put one's whole soul into the work in order to righ ly portray the character This necessitates an utter abandonment of one's reconsity and an assumption of the character portrayed. If this is an emotional part it is necessary to feel the same emotions the part is supposed to feel. For more than a year I actually cried each night certain passages of a part I was playing. The audience considered it ar . Probably it was, but those were none the less real terrs and the effect was none the less trying upon my health." But do you anticipate avoiding this in the future?"

"Not in the least. I expect to have just as great a strain as before, but with restored heath and a knowledge of how to retain it I do not fear.

You see k of a 'know edge of how to reta'n health.' Will you plea e explain what you mean by that?" You must be aware that women by their very natures a e subject to troubles and afflictions unknown to the sterner sex. The name of these toubles is legion, but in whatever form they may cone they are weaknesses which interfere with every ambition and hope in life. I believe thousands of noble women are to day surering agonies of which even the r best fliends and relatives know little or noth ng. and when I reflect upon it I confe s it makes me sad. Now all this misery arises largely from an ignorance of the laws of life or a neglect to carefully observe them. I speak from the depths, of a bitter experience in saying this, and I am thankful I know the means of restoration, and how to remain in perfect health."

"Please explain more fully."

"Well, I have found a remedy which seems specially adapted for this very purpose. It is pure and palatable and controls the health and life as, I believe, nothing else will. It is really invaluable and if all the women in America were to use it I am quite sure most of the suffering and many deaths might be What is this wonderful remedy?"

"Warner's Safe Cure." "And you use it?" "Constantly."
"And hence believe you will be able to go the oigh the coming season successfully. "I am quite certain of it." "A few questions more, Miss Granger.

Will you please give me a list of the parts you have created and the plays you have taken part in since your first appearance in "I first played for some time with the amateurs in New York and Brooklyn. Ithen went to the Union Square theatre for two asons, after that to the Boston Globe for one season and then to Boo h's theatre in this city. Next I supported John Mc'ullough and afterwards starred in Juliet, Cimille, Rosalind, etc. Subsequently I created the part of Cicely Blaine in the 'Galley Slave' and also starred in 'Two Nights in Rome,' playing the part of Antonia. The past year I have been playing in the 'Planter's Wife' and the coming season, as I have said, will be devoted to 'Her Second Love.'" As the writer was returning home he fell into a train of musing and wondered if all the women in this land who are suffering could only know Miss Granger's experience and the remarkable results achieved by the pure remedy she used, how much suffering might be avoided and how much happines

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO'S IMPROVED BUTTER COLOR A NEW DISCOVERY 13 For several years we have furnished the Dairymen of America with an excellent arti-ficial color for butter; so meritorious that it met with great success everywhere receiving the t and only prizes at both Intern Dairy Fairs.

13 But by patient and scientific chemical research we have improved in several points, an now offer this new color as the best in the world

It Will Not Color the Buttermilk. It Will Not Turn Rancid. It is the Strongest, Brightest and Cheapest Color Made, ed that it is impossible for it to become rancid.

FBEWARE* of all imitations, and of all other oil colors, for they are liable to become rancid and spoil the butter. And, while prepared in oil, is so compoun If you cannot get the "improved" write us to know where and how to get it without extra
