"We have warred against them with tobacco water, saltpetre, alcohol, boracic acid, bisulphide of carbon, etc., in various combinations, but we finally settled upon an emulsion of kerosene oil and soapsuds as the remedy that all things considered, was the most satisfactory. It appears that one ounce of common vellow, hard soap, one pint of kerosene oil, and one and one-half gallons of water, well mixed and stirred, and applied by means of a rose from a watering pot destroys all worms that become thoroughly wet with the mixture, and does not injure the plant. Care must, however, be taken to keep the ingredients thoroughly mixed in the pot, for if the oil is permitted to rise to the surface, so that it will pass out upon a few plants. it will prove fatal to the few, while the remainder will not receive enough of the oil to destroy the worms."

Texture of Soils.

Soils differ not only in chemical properties, but in physical characteristics. In respect to texture soils range all the way from coarse pebbles to the finest and most tenacious of Speaking in a general way, soils best adapted for agriculture are those which consist of mixtures of sand with a moderate quantity of clay and a little vegetable matter. When sand or other coarse material predominates the soil, as all farmers know, is easy till and will grow a great variety of crops, but it is deficient in absorbent and retentive powers.

On the other hand, when clay is in excess the soil becomes too heavy to to till and will grow fewer crops; it is retentive of water, is cold and does not facilitate the chemical changes in the soil and the manure placed in i necessary to prepare proper food for plants.

Clay lands are the most difficult to work; sandy soils the most easy. Less work can be done in a day with the same power on clay and heavy soils than on light, sandy ones, and this consideration ought to be borne in mind when stocking a farm with working animals and when making estimates in the cost of growing crops .-

Churning

Sweet cream just removed from the milk does not churn as readily as older cream that has been "ripened," if any one knows exactly what that term signifies, says the New England Farmer Cream that is too warm sometimes gives trouble, but if it is much too cold it is very sure to. Very thin cream is longer in coming than cream that is moderately firm, but a very frequent cause of delay in bringing but. ter is from filling the churn too nearly full of cream. Something depends too, upon the character of the churn. A churn that agitates the cream with great violence, as when the floats are small, and are revolved at a high rate of speed, is likely to tear the cream to pieces and best it into a froth, like eggs under a beater. The churn, howcream or the operator. If cream is churned very slowly there may be so little friction that it will never come. By slow turning the temperature may change so much during the operation as to prevent success. If a plain box or barrel churn is filled very full, and the cream swells, the revolutions may go on without agitating the cream at all, and if the churn has a crank and floats the cream may be revolved in a solid body without friction, except upon very small portions of the cream As a rule, a churn should be not much more than half full of cream at any time, though much depends upon the character of the cream. If it has been raised from scalded milk it will churn under almost any condition. It is in cool weather in spring and fall that trouble is most frequent, but very hot weather, unless ice is used, is almost as bad. Those who change from the old-fashioned open pans to some one of the new deep-setting systems, are pretty sure to have more or less trouble in churning, chiefly because in deep-setting the bulk of the cream is increased, and the churn is consequently much fuller when used. This alone is often a sufficient explanation of the cause of the cause of the difficulty when cream refuses to be changed into butter.

SIX-LEGGED POLICEMEN.

The Arrest of a Drunken Ant-Something About Animal Prisons and Pri-

"Just cast your eye over this," said a naturalist. "There is evidence that among the animals there is a police department or an ambulance corps. one or the other."

The reporter closed one eye, holding it shut with one hand, and with the other gazed through a powerful magnifier. He saw three ants, and one was apparently in a very maudlin condition. It raised its legs in the air, waved its head to and fro like an elephant, and evinced a decided desire to walk backward. In the mean time the other two ants were vainly endeavoring to coax it along, at first caressing it with their artennæ, and finally, as if out of patience, seizing it and marching it off out of the range

"That," said the naturalist, "is a case of 'drunk and disorderly; $10 or ten days.' I fed the ant on sweetened rum, so that it was actually drunk; then I admitted two sober ants to see if they would take care of it, and you see they have done so.

"The idea of intoxicating ants is original with Sir John Lubbock. He found that ants nearly always arrested other ants that he had made drunk. In fact, if you asked me what was the most intelligent animal next to man I should say the ant. No, not because he will get drunk, but for a thousand

"Do you suppose ants imprison their kind for offences?" asked the reporter.

"There is no doubt of it," was the reply, "as they imprison vast numbers of insects for various reasons. In fact, the lower animals have their prisons and prisoners as well as we do. Of course they are a little different, but we must allow for a difference in tastes. Everybody knows how ants make prisoners of various species of aphides, and slaves of their own kind. One of the most remarkable cases of imprisonment is that of the bird hornbill, so called from the wonderful development of its bill, which is only used in crushing fruit. The breeding season is probably not looked forward to with any great degree of pleasure great labor for the father bird. As the time approaches the female searches for a hollow tree, and, having formed a rude nest, takes her place within. The male now flies away and returns with its bill full of mud, which it plasters about the opening of the nest. Load after load is thus brought and laid on until the crevice is completely plastered up, with the exception of a single orifice large enough to admit the bill of the prisoner. The mud soon hardens, and the bird is firmly enclosed, and so remains until the young are hatched and well grown. The male bird is not a hard jailer, however, but works to obtain food for its mate, so that she comes out of prison in

"Trees are not the only prisons," continued the speaker. "In marine ever, is usually less at fault than the life there is no end of prisons and prisoners. For example, here is the beautiful sponge called Venus's flower basket which grows in eastern seas. They are unsightly objects when first taken up, the rich sheeny silvery framework that we see being merely the skeleton of the sponge, so to speak. So much like basket work is this skeleton that when they were first brought to Europe they were supposed to be the work of men, and so brought fabulous prices. In this one that I have you see there are two prisoner crabs, but how did they get in? Each is as large as the end of your little finger. and the largest hole in the skeleton is not larger than a pinhead."

much better condition than her unfor-

"The reporter gave it up. "The truth is," said the naturalist. "that the crabs are prisoners for life, and have served out a life sentence.

In their younger days these crabs are called by different names, and in one stage-the zoea-they are extremely small, and live a roaming sort of life. During this time our crabs must have crawled through the minute window of the living sponge, and were unable to get out. The sponge grew, and so did the crabs. Finally the sponge was fished up, and the animal matter was washed away, leaving the bright. silvery prison with the two great prisoners crawling about-as great a puzzle as the egg in the bottle."—New York Sun.

BN U 46 A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

Messrs. Editors :--The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pink ham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings tnay be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the out of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady essistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. ()ne says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhoza, irregular and painful enstruction, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Decration, Floodings, all Displacements and the cor sequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life," It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system. It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass. For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound i ansurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to count the Compound in its popularity. All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole and keyholes. The generally approved way to keep them out was to plug up the keyholes and stop the cracks with cotton. Notwithstanding these preventive measures, the evil things had their own way and often came in as they pleased.

So comes malaria now-a-days. We try to keep it out of the keyhole and it comes in by the crack. We stop up the crack, and lo! it comes from a leak in the plumbing, or an opening from some neglected drain, or from some unsuspecied source and unguarded direction.

We cannot always keep malaria out, but we can give it battle and drive its effects from our systems. If Brown's Iron Bitters is taken in time, malaria has not a ghost of a chance. This is the great family medi-ine. Your dauggist sells it, and you ought to keep a bottle in the house
