THE miners and laborers in the Schuylkill coal regions are organizing unions against monopoly. They feel that something must be done to protect themselves against the steady decline of wages, half-time work and the competition of the low-priced and filthy Hungarians.

Wm. Lewis. P. GRAY MEEK,

They have been suffering under these reductions for the last three years, and are convinced that the protection system held up by some politicians is more benificial to the capitalists than to the laborer. The unions preserve secrecy and no details can be obtained about their inner workings.

A Movement for Hancock.

There is a quiet developement of opinion in Democratic circles in favor of the renomination of General W. S. Hancock. It is now clearly believed by every one of the politicians that Tilden is out of the race through his physical condition and that therefore Hancock is a very available man. His great popularity and the fact that it was largely the handicap of the unpopular English that defeated him in 1880 are remembered. Hancock, with a popular man for Vice President, it is thought would make a strong ticket and one that will probably receive consideration at the hands of the Democratic Convention.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26,1884 There is much interest on all sides to know just what position the majority in the House will take on the Morrison Tariff bill, and for two earnestly discussed, among the Democrats, whether it should be made a party matter and sanctioned by caucus action. Beyond all question, a large majority of Democratic Representatives are in favor of the bill, and if a caucus is held it will be adopted. But Mr. Randall and some others are not disposed to be bound by such action, if taken. Efforts have been made be presented and harmonious action tion in our politics and one that must be met sooner or later. Nothing can be gained by a policy of dodging and cowardice. If the Democratic masses are for tariff reform, as they uncan do no less than show the courage of their convictions and stand or fall by the position taken. The policy of having no policy and of standing round waiting for something to turn up, running for cover every time anything happens, is not a lofty or winning business for any party.

It has been again said lately that

Secretary Lincoln would resign his place in the Cabinet because his name is mentioned in connection with the Presidential nomination. But I would not advise him to do it. His candidature, if such it is, grows out of a sentiment that might possibly give him second place on the ticket, but hardly the first. The only strength he possesses is that which he derived from the reat name of his father and the affection in which his memory is held Chicago, who is the leader of the opposition in Illinois to General Logan, may use Lincoln in an effort to deprive Logan of a few delegates from that State, but at this time Mr. Lin-Presidential candidate. His nomination for the first place would be as great a surprise to the Republican managers as was that of Garfield in 1880. For the second place Mr. Linded, of course, Logan should fail to fourth. get the first place. Either Blaine and Lincoln, or John Sherman and Lincoln would possess greater strength than to name Lincoln for the first place in connection with any of the names that are likely to be presented for the Vice Presidency. When the Keifer-Boyton investigating committee sent to the Treasury Department last week for a few official ed to have the venerable Secretary come to the committee room in person to deliver them-a duty which could have been performed by any erything and depending on others for nothing, a habit which has naturally made his duties in the department very arduous. A gentleman who sing with him one day remarked: "Mr. Secretary, I see you do everything in this department except one thing." "What is that?" said Mr. Folger "Why, you don't run the elevator," said the gentleman. That is about the only thing he does not do.

SAVANAH, Ga., March 16 .- While Mr. Samuel McDaniel, a young white farmer, was ploughing in a field near Island Shoals, his ploughshare suddenly disclosed to view a large earthen jug securely corked and sealed. Opening it McDaniel recognized the smell of whiskey and liquid proving to be a fine old article, he sat down and continued papers, they were very much surpris- drinking until he fell asleep. Worried by his continued abscence, the man's mother sought him out and awakened him.
