THE Republican State convention having been held at Harrisburg last Wednesday resulted in the instruction of the six delegates-at-large for Blaine and no more. Two of them even are suspected of going back on their instructions when it comes to a point at Chicago, while the district delegates

BLAINE and Lincoln, Edmunds and Lincoln, Grant and Lincoln, Arthur and Lincoln, Hanley and Lincoln, Sherman and Lincoln are the combinations talked of by Republican politicians. They would go to show that Lincoln is positively billed for the vice-presidency.

WE see by the Clinton Democrat that Hon. S. R. Peale enters the canvass as a candidate for congress from this district. The article announcing the fact is subscribed by CLINTON and winds up with the following paragraphs:

Mr. Peale has been a Democrat for not less than thirty years and his devotion to the principles of the party is known to be fervent and sincere. He is a lawyer of recognized abitity; possesses legislative experience and will, we know, never be guilty of anything that may bring reproach upon himself or his constituents.

Mr. Peale is a man who combines administrative, executive and legislative abilities that few men possess. This, together with his high reputation for honesty, integrity and ability, constitutes him one of the most popular men in this Congressional district. He would make a representative to the National Congress, his constituents would be proud of. We cordially commend him to the people of the several counties. That he will carry Clinton by a large majority without opposition we do not doubt. CLINTON.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23, 1884, From this standpoint, the portentous Arthur boom appears to be assuming the character of a Blaine stampede of yery considerable proportions, particularly in the President's own State where the whole stalwart army seems to have broken ranks and completely forsaken their old commander. In the New York deal the President finds his most discomforting surprise, because he had counted upon the aid of a class Royer, administrators of &c. of Jonathan E. Royer, late of Potter township, deceased as of men in nearly every Congressional district, whose lives had been devoted, as his own had been, to the manipulation of J. L. Spangler, administrator of &c. of James Rupert, lafe of Liberty township, deceased.

Royer, lafe of Potter township, deceased, as fired by John Groye, acting administrator of &c. of James Rupert, lafe of Liberty township, deceased.

JAMES A. McCLAIN. tion of the machine politics of the State. But there was ex Gov. Cornell with his sores of 1884 still unhealed, and there was Mr. Conkling, who is out of politics only in the sense of repaying titled old scores, and whose hand is seen in ty," and there all of this anti Arthur work, and there was, aboye all, the apprehensions among the leaders of the party that the Monda Democrats could not nominate a candidate who would not easily put New York in the Democratic column next fall as against Arthur. That Arthur has been unfortunate in the distribu- 143 tion of patronage in New York, goes without saying. His appointees in New | 433 York city were selected for him simply | 431 from the want of courage to select them for himself. The result was a class of officials that care as little for 30 Mr. Arthur's preferment now, as he cared for them when he was anxious to give their places to those in whom he had confidence. Upon the idea that 383 honest men get their dues when rogues fall out, the disturbances in this once 413 happy Republican family will as surely give the Empire State to the Democracy next fall, as that Vermont will go the other way.

Mr. Morrison has got his tariff bill before the House and in Committee of 433 the Whole, in spite of the predictions of his failure. His opening speech was a sound, common-sense presentation of of its leading features, spiced with some historical data touching the manner in which tariff commission and tariff measures in past Congresses had been in the interest of the manufacturers and capitalists of the country. An 433 analysis of the vote by which the bill was taken up for consideration, develops a pretty strong indication that the 433 contest over it will be both long and exciting. It is known that while quite a-number of Democrats who voted to take up the bill will finally vote against it, there are also a number of the 39 Democrats who voted against its consideration will ultimately record their votes for it.

It seems that Mr. Bob Lincoln's aspirations are a trifle higher than those which satisfied his boss four years ago, and the fellow is playing double for all he is worth with both Logan and Arthur. While he sends dispatches to Chicago announcing that his name cannot be used while he is in Mr. Arthur's cabinet, he is knifing Arthur in the Eastland throttling Logan in the West upon every possible occasion. It cannot be that the President is not cognizent of this dublicity on the part of a member of his cabinet, but what is he going to do about it if he is? If he should kick him out, what would become of the prestige of that name under which the son of his father got into the cabinet, and how many would view it as an insult to the memory of Garfield? From the time that Lincoln was taken up and carried into the office of town supervisor of Chicago ten years ago, upon this sentimental sort of politics, has been afflicted by the political bighead in its worst form, and it shows the possibilities of American politics including its civil service reform, when such a man as Robert Lincoln can be seriously spoken of in connection with the highest political office in the world.
