The following item from the Bellefonte Watchman speaks well for our home mechanics:

Mr. Thomas Zeigler, of Rebersburg, and Mr. Lewis Tobias, of Millheim, were in town on Monday last. They had been at the State College, making and burning brick for the new Reformed church there. The bricks manufactured by Messrs. Zeigler & Tobias, have attained a wide celebrity, and are in great demand. The operations of this firm extend throughout Centre, Clinton, Clearfield and Mifflin counties, and away out into the State of Ohio, into Stark county, Steubenville and other points. Centre county has reason to be proud of this; it is another instance of the perfection to which her industries have arrived, and shows the energy, skill and prosperity of her citizens. Messrs. Zeigler & Tobias' bricks are hand made, and they don't get out of anybody's way in their line of business.

FIRE AT CENTRE HALL.—On Monday forenoon the news were brought to this office of a large fire which occurred at Centre Hall at about one o'clock Sunday night. When the town was awakened from its slumbers the inhabitants found the two stables, of Mrs. Neff and Wm. Wolf, in the rear of the Lutheran church on Church street in a fierce blaze. By a back cornice which projected over one of the burning stables, the church also soon became a victim of the fire, which it was impossible to control and which destroyed the entire structure. Nothing could be saved except the organ and a few pieces of loose furniture. In one of the stables Mr. Sando had two cows, a calf and eleven hogs, all of which perished in the flames. Also several buggies and spring wagons were burned. The entire loss occasioned by the fire is estimated at $8000. The church carries an insurance of $3300 in the Centre Hall company Mr. Wolf's stable, $2000. The supposition is that the fire was the work of incendiarism. The only thing that saved the town from a large conflagration was the still and foggy night.

On Saturday, Oct. 25th, 1884, at two o'clock, p. m., the valuable farm in Penn township, of Daniel Kreamer, deceased, will be offered at public sale by the executor of the estate, Jas. P. Coburn. OCTOBER is a good month for merchants to examine their stock of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and include a winter's supply in their next order. The people have found out by experience that it can be relied on in all cases of croup, whooping cough, colds, and lung troubles of any nature, and will have it. A good article draws trade while worthless articles drive it away. It should be a source of satisfaction to a dealer as well, to know he is giving good honest value for money received. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Letter from Ellsworth, Kansas.

EDITOR JOURNAL:

Since I am in Kansas, which is now about two months I have been a constant reader of your most welcome paper. It arrives here regularly every Sunday evening with the 6 o'clock Express. I write more particularly to comment on a local which appeared in a recent issue of the JOURNAL. It seems a certain young man from Centre Co. who is at present staying in Ellsworth has written to some one living in your town that I did not like Kansas, could not get anything to do and would start for the east in a few weeks. Now Mr. Editor that same young man made a great mistake in using my name in connection with his case. I am positive at this writing that he was describing his case exactly and in a mistake got my name mixed with it. I will just say this in connection with what I have written to relatives and friends in the east, that I think a great deal of Kansas (generally speaking) and every day adds to my desire for staying. I will acknowledge that I have a longing some times to be with those who are near and dear to me, and who would not rather be with his family than among strangers. If I had my family with me, I think I would be perfectly happy and contented, in my new quarters for several years at least. As to getting a job (using the correspondent's own language) I could have had a job immediately upon my arrival in Ellsworth but I did not ask for a job at once and would not have accepted any. Going to work so soon would have deprived me of many enjoyments which I have had. I spent part of one month in riding over some of the finest country I ever saw and driving one of the finest span of ponies (acknowledged to be such by competent judges) in Ellsworth or Lincoln counties. My brother was always very anxious to have me accompany him, to do the driving when he went to fill his different appointments. These sacred drives of course came every Sunday and always not less than twenty five miles from home. On several occasions we had hardly made the round trip, when a message was brought to the parsonage to return at once to the place we just left and attend a funeral or solemnize a marriage. I was generally invited to go along, but did not always accept. I got tired riding over the country and especially the same road so often. I can tell you Mr. Editor, I would not be a preacher here in this western country. While I am here I find my brother works harder in the ministry than he ever did in the east. Although the work is hard nevertheless it is encouraging to see how anxious the people are to have the Gospel preached to them. Imagine for one moment a school house 16 feet wide by 24 feet long standing out on the open prairie, a bright moonlight Summer night, corn, wheat and other grain standing in shock and stalk close around the building. See, there comes a two horse wagon laden with people! They stop right here at this little school house, they get off, yes, there comes another, and another and so they continue to come until I counted 21 two horse wagons tied up around this little school house. How do you suppose Mr. Editor, we got all these people with many others to come there on foot into this little school house? Well they did not all get in, but we filled her chock full; they crowded right around the little preacher, the balance hung around the windows, and took every possible way to get an ear in hearing distance. I can tell you it was a curiosity for me, I enjoyed it all the same. You will probably ask was this the first meeting with these people. No sir, about the 51st and the audience grows larger every meeting. This is one part of church service on the western frontier, and I must say I like it about as well as any. Three sermons every Sunday, hard work, but the people are kind and never let the preacher go home empty. I declare I lost my subject. Well I got a job. Started in on the first of last month. Have a nice, clean and pleasant position and am receiving good wages. I am running a confectionery, oyster and ice cream parlor for Mr. B. A. Foster whose advertisement no doubt you have seen in the Ellsworth papers that have been sent to you in the past. He has given me entire control of the business, while he gives his attention to his grocery (The Bee Hive) located in another part of the city. I merely mention these facts to show you and your readers, that your youthful correspondent made a mistake when he said I could not get a job. Well as to my starting for the "east in a few weeks" from the time he wrote, I think will hardly take place. I have set no time for returning home but will stay a few months longer at least.

Will weary you no longer, this is my first attempt in writing for the press, if you think it worthy publish it, you may hear from me again in the future.

Respectfully Yours, C. G. BRIGHT.

Ellsworth, Kan. Oct. 5th 1884.

The B. & O. Red Book for Pennsylvania is ready for distribution, and in more than one respect, is the most valuable of any of the editions hitherto based upon this State. As has always been the rule, the forwarding of a stamp to C. K. Lord, Baltimore, is all that is necessary to secure a copy, and in fact the only way, as the Red Book issues are all for mail circulation. The present volume is replete with political statistics and condensed data, not only as the latest Presidential, State and Congressional elections in this State, but relating as well to elections since admission into the Union. It would be difficult to imagine a more complete showing of past results in the State, or a more neatly put together and printed little book.

DRUGGISTS all report a rapid and steadily increasing demand for McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders. There is no secret or trick about their popularity. It is solely because people have become convinced through trial or hearing their neighbors say that they are the best and easiest to take vermifuge ever produced. Nasty, sickening, old-fashioned worm syrups won't sell. People demand McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders, and won't have anything else, hence their sales are greater than all the other vermifuges combined. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.
