THE MILLHEIM JOURNAL, PUBLISHED EVREY THURSDAY BY

R. A. BUMILLER.

Office in the New Journal Building, Penn St., near Hartman's foundry.

$1.00 PER ANNUM, IN ADVANCE, OR $1.25 IF NOT PAID IN ADVANCE.

Acceptable Correspondence Solicited

Address letters to MIHEIM J OURNAL.

A PAPER FOR THE HOME CIRCLE. R. A. BUMILLER, Editor.

THE LOST BILL.

A THANKSGIVING STORY.

Milly Barry and Josie King served at opposite counters of a great dry-goods and millinery emporium. That was how they made acquaintance in the first place-nodding and smiling at each other in the intervals of serving customers. When they came to speaking, and by easy stages to the innocent should presently exchange vows of e-

They then hired a little room together, paid equal parts of its humble rent.

and went partners in their frugal housekeeping expenses; and when they drank their coffee and ate their

VOL. 58.

MILLHEIM, PA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27. 1884.

Milhem Sourcal.

NO. 47.

BUSINESS CARDS.

HARTER,

Auctioneer,

R. JOHN F. HARTER,

Office opposite the Methodist Church.

Physician & Surgeon,

REBERSBURG, PA. Office opposite the hotel. Professional calls promptly answered at all hours. DR. D. H. MINGLE,

MILLHEIM, PA.

Fashionable Barber, Shop 2 doors west Miliheim Banking House, MAIN STREET, MILLHEIM, PA.

Attorneys-at-Law,

BELLEFONTE, PA.

Office on Aliegheny Street, two doors east of the office ocupied by the late firm of Yocum & Hastings.

Attorneys-at-Law,

BELLEFONTE, PA.

Office in Garman's new building.

Physician & Surgeon,

MADISONBURG, PA. Office opposite the Public School House

WM. C. HEINLE,

BELLEFONTE, PA. Practices in all the courts of Centre county. Special attention to Collections. Consultations in German or English.

Attorneys-at-Law,

BELLEFONTE, PA. Office on Alleghany Street, North of High Street

C. G. McMILLEN,

Good Sample Room on First Floor. Free Buss to and from all trains. Special rates to witnesses and jurors.

OUMMINS HOUSE,

EMANUEL BROWN,

House newly refitted and refurnished. Everything done to make guests comfortable. Rates moderate. Patronage respectfully solicited.

TRVIN HOUSE,

(Most Central Hotel in the city.) LOCK HAVEN, PA.

S.WOODS CALDWELL PROPRIETOR.

Good Sample Rooms for Commercial Travelers on first floor.

Nos. 317 & 319 ARCH ST., PHILADELPHIA.

the city, are easily accessible by Street Cars constantly passing the doors. It offers special inducements to those visiting the city for business or pleasure.

Your patronage respectfully solicited.

Jos. M. Feger, Proprietor.

One Square South of the New Post e, one half Square from Walnut St. Theatre and in the very business centre of the city. On the American and European plans. Good rooms ed and newly furnished. W PAINE, M. D.

Terms, $1.00 per Year, in Advance.

DR. A. W. HAFER

MILLHEIM, PA.

JEWELER.

Attorneys-at-Law,

BELLEFONTE, PA. Office in Furst's new building.

W.H. REIFSNYDER,

MILLHEIM, PA.

DENNSYLVANIA

STATE COLLEGE.

FALL TERM BEGINS SEPTEMBER 10, 1834

Examinations for admission, September 9.

A Full Scientific Course of Four Years.

The following SPECIAL COURSES, of two years each following the first two years of the Seientific Course (a) AGRICULTURE; (b) NATURAL HISTORY; (c) CHEMIS-TRY AND PHYSICS; (d) CIVIL ENGIN-EERING.
A short SPECIAL COURSE in Agriculture. A short SPECIAL COURSE in Agriculture.
 A reorganized Course in Mechanicle Arts, combining shop-work with study.
 A new Special Course (two years) in Literature and Science, for Young Ladies.
 A Carefully graded Preparatory Course.
 SPECIAL COUSES are arranged to meet the wants of individual students.

Military delib a regulated Expenses for board.

Military drill is required. Expenses for board and incidentals very low. Tuition free. Young ladies under charge of a competent lady Princi-For Catalogues, or other informationaddress GEO. W. ATHERTON, LL. D., PRESIDENT STATE COLLEGE, CENTRE CO., Pa.

Mrs. Sarah A. Zeigler's

BAKERY.

Millheim, Pa.

of superior quality can be bought at

ICE CREAM AND FAN-

or Weddings, Picnics and other social gatherings promptly made to order.

SCHOOL SUPPLIES!

A full line at the JOURNAL STORE. Parents are invited to call at our place on Penn Street.

MILLHEIM

F. O. HOSTERMAN, Proprietor.

Main St., opposite Campbell's store. AGENCY FOR THE

SEWING MACHINES,

five years by the companies.

Needles, Oil, Attachments, &c. &c.

Second Hand Machines sold at exceedingly low prices.

a dainty little table they felt as if they had a home once more.

ternal friendship.

Milly was a fair, pleasant-looking girl, with soft blue eyes, trown hair, and a fresh red-and white complexion; Josie was tall, slight, dark and pale, with they had looked forward with so much glossy black hair and large, darkbrown eyes-a very handsome girl, as was often remarked by ladies when she served them, with a rather queenly

The girls were a direct contrast in personal appearance-another reason for their attraction toward each other. Mill and Josie had not large salaries not remarkable for generosity; quick for. sales, small profits and very small salaries was the rule, in the "great emporium." However, by dint of incessant economy, and by reason of sharing expenses, Milly and Josie contrived to put aside a small sum weekly toward a little fund for a great Thanksgiving celebration.

They were both New England girls, the party who had been invited to the that remained now only as a beau tiful during the brief noontime. and hallowed memory.

help them eat their turkey.

pumpkin pie; while the girls them. cranbery sauce and vegetables on their half the fun of the entertainment would | doubts forced on me by the loss of that be lost unless they personally superintended a portion of the cooking.

The great day approach d, and it was Thanksgiving Eve, and of course their marketing had to be done after store hours, for neither had been able to get leave of absence during the day time, the emporium being more than ussually thronged because of the coming holi-

"Come, Josie !" called Milly, from the door of their room, as she drew on her neat gloves, Josie having stepped across the hall for a moment to ask their rheumatic neighbor, just opposite, whether they could do her any service while they were out shopping.

"Yes, dear," Josie answered. "Go on, Milly-I will overtake you at the Milly went on, as directed, very leisurely, and buttoning her gloves as she decended the stairs.

When she reached the lower hall, she waited for Josie before opening the Minute after minute passed, and growing impatient, she amused herself by drumming with the tips of her fin gers on the banisters.

Five minutes passed, and, with a slight exclamation, she ran half way upstairs again. "Come, Josie-it is getting late!"

she called out, as she retraced her steps. "We will find nothing werth buying." "Oh, dear, dear !" responded Josie, in a voice of mingled distress and per-Milly hurried up the remaining stair.

and hastened into their room. Josie was wildly searching about the apartment, moving table, chairs, beaureau-even the bed-in a state of utter despair and bewilderment.

Milly could not repress a slight laugh, to return something belonging to you her friend looked so wildly anxious both which had chance to get into my and distressed, for no apparent cause.

F. O. HOSTERMAN. "Anything ? everything !" was the And Joste toward Milly.

tragic reply, with an appropriate tone and gesture. "The money! Our ten dollars is gone !" "Good gracious !-but is it possi-

Milly gasped for breath, and sank into the nearest chair, with even greatthan had just given rise to her merriment when she saw it depicted on her friend's face. But Josie didn't laugh.

too see any comic phase of it. "So I thought, too, when I first missof the room, every inch of the carpet, every impossible and possible place, and the appalling fact becomes more convincing-the money is gone !"

Again and again every article in the room was moved out of its place, and every likely and unlikely nook and crevice searched, but without success. Occasionally a remark was made by one or the other of the girls, and ab-Vienna roll opposite each other, across sently replied to; and still the searchwent on, until, tired out, they both sat down and despairingly removed bonnet, > jacket and gloves. There was now no occusion for going out; the merry marketing to which pleasure, was no longer possible.

Instead, they must find some way of sending word to their invited guests that foreseen their little festivity.

Josie was quite heartbroken, blaming herself for her carelessnes; and though Milly tried to comfort her, she could ot help thinking that she would have been more careful of the treasure they -the firm which employed them was had so leng and so faithfully striven

> And, to make everything worse, an coldness sprang up between these warm "You and Josie King are not such friends as you used to be," remarked a second acquaintance to Milly Barry, some weeks later. The speaker was Kate Weeks, one of "No, we are not-though I love Jo-But for once they determined to sie King dearly, and always shall," remake it as much of a joyous reality as turned Milly. "The trouble dates the flight of years and the loss of from the loss of that unfortunate ten friends and relatives would allow, dollars. You see, no one else was in They laid out in imagination quite a the room from the time she laid the sumptuous entertainment; and on money on the bureau until it was miss counting up their savings a few days ed, except ourselves. And where before the festive occasion, and find- could it go? I am sure the same ing that they amounted to the magnifi- thought is in both our minds-not that cent sum of ten dollars, both girls felt either of us really suspects the other of justified in inviting a few friends to taking the money-that would be impossible-but we are both miserable Mrs. Hobson, their landlady, promis- from fearing that we suspect each othed to roast the noble bird, and asked er, and we have neither of us the courpermission to contribute a mince and a lage to come to an explanation. The idea of such a thing seems so unutteraselves undertook the cooking of the bly mean ! Oh, dear ! I had rather have > wretched ten." A young man, who was passing along the crowded aisle of the great emporium at that m ment, chanced to over hear these words; for, in her excitement, Milly raised her voice, and spoke with great distinctness. This young man looked at her with marked attention, and before he left the store he had, by much perseverance. and by assuming his most engaging manner, adroitly managed to ascertain Milly's name, and also her place of res idence, without either giving offense or subjecting himself to a snubbing for his curiosity.

That evening, Josie and Milly were much startled by the receipt of a card sent up by a gentleman who had asked for them both, and was now waiting in the parlor.

"Say we will come down," said Josie to the gaping maid-of-all-work, who evidently shared their amazement, for neither Miss Barry nor Miss King had ever received a masculine visitor before si ce taking up their abode in those

"Albert Merton," Josie read from the card, as the door closed behind the servant. "! know of no such person. It must be some friend of yours, Mil-

"No, indeed! I never heard the gen tleman's name before. But it's a very pretty name. Suppose we go and see if the owner is worthy of his name."

Both girls hastened to the parlor, and man, "quite as pretty as his name,"

Milly, subsequently remarked, rose to meet them. "Miss Barry," he bowed to Milly, "and Miss King," he bowed to Josie, "I trust you will not consider this an intrusion when I explain that I come possession." lost nothing-at least I have not, "

"Nor I !" replied that young lady, THE CHINESE IN NEW YORK, emphatically.

"Are you quite sure?" smiled the visitor. "A certain ten-dollar bill was blown in my face ty a stray gust of wind last Thanksgiving Eve, just as I was passing this house, and I have been er despair written on her countenance on the lookout for the owner ever since. Something I chanced to overnear to day led me here "

"A ten-dollar bill ?" both girls ex-

The situation was far too serious for her | claimed at once. And Milly added, in self-reproach : "The window was open, Josie. I ed it; but I have searched every corner stepped across the room to close it, and which they had been accustomed in wrong of me! It would have explained everything."

> rushed toward each other, and exchanged a fervent embrace.

Mr. Merton smiled and seemed to understand, although neither of the girls remembered his presence just

"But it may not be our ten dollars after all."

"That is easily tested," said Josie. "I exchanged our money for the bill at the store that day; and having my pencil in hand at the time, I wrote on the back of it our initials, 'M. and J.'. inclosed in a circle.'

"And here it is !" laughed young Merton, taking a crisp note from his pocket, and smoothing it out, so that the mark was plainly visible on the reverse side.

"So like you, Josie," said Milly, taking possession of the money. "I shall take care of it this time." Josie made no answer, but her quick, artistic eye, noted the strong, white, well shaped hand on which the bill had unmistakable, though indescribable, rested; and some how the look of admiration was caught by the dark, blue eyes of the owner of that hand. Josie King blushed violently, and looked so handsome that Albert Merton instinctively uttered an exclama-"Oh, Miss King.you will forgive me, I know !" he explained. "But I am and in their childhood's days that day Thanksgiving dinner which never took an artist, and at that moment the turn had ever been one of great rejoicing place; and the young girls chanced to of your head and the expression of and much merrymaking in the homes be talking to gether for a few moments | your face, just realized the ideal I have been engaged on. It is a charming subject - if you would only grant me the privilege of a sitting to sketch your Milly discreetly withdrew to a distance, and pretended to examine the recovered ten-dollar bill. Josie did not grant the young artist's request immediately; but her refusal was not of a character to render him hopeless. She subsequetly repented of her lack of amiability so far that she granted Albert Merton innumerable sittings; and, in the course of the next six months, his studio teemed with sketches of Josie King's b-autiful head and face; in fact, he occupied her spare time so exclusively, and found her so invaluable as a model, that they agreed to enter into lost ten thousand dollars than have a life-long partnership; and on the own tiny gas stove-for each felt that given way to the wicked thoughts and wedding day, Milly, who officiated as brid-smaid, slipped the identical tendollar bill into Josie's hand, and whis-

"Have it framed and pat in a glass case, dear. You see our loss was a great gain in the end."

The President's Experience.

President Arthur and a few friends were enjoying the air and their cigars on the veranda of the White House one afternoon last week when the conversation turned on the experiments recently made by a French physici in on the head of a murderer immediately after the execution. "The French scientist is of the opinion that the head retains consciousness for several minutes after it was cut off," remarked .Gen. Sheridan, who had read a description of the experi-

"Gentlemen," said the President, removing his cigar, "I know of a still more singular case. I decapitated, on the suggestion of Col. Ochiltree here, a colored Federal official down in Texas, and he made more noise after his head was off than he did before." "Was he sensible for any length of time after his head was off?" asked one of the party.

"I don't know whether I can say that he acted sensible or not, but it is a fact that he retained sufficient consciousness, four months after decapitation, to cast thirteen votes for Jim Blaine at Chicago, first, last and all the a tall, good-looking, elegant young time. Didn't he, Tom ?" Col. Ochiltree blushed and was silent .- Texas Siften ys.

court house burned during the riot. "What in the world is the matter? "Impossible, I think! We have out of Pressed black walnut sawdust, Poor food, insufficient clothing and an the solid would itself.

Cincinnati is to have an old monument, in the form of a ruin, built from Peculiarities of the Orientals Described.

Their Superstitions and Their Unconquerable Fatalism-A Reporter in a Chinese Hospital.

Soon after the first batch of Chinamen put in their appearance in New York they began to surround themselves with heathen accessories to I never rememtered it afterward. How San Francisco. Before three months had gone by they had several flourishing opium dens, half a dozen "fan-ton" And without a word more, both girls games and lottery joints and a dozen stores for the sale of Oriental commodities. Having proyided for the amusements of their daily lives the moon-eyed strangers set up relations with the powers above, by establishing a Joss house, wherein they hang their prayers with commendable regularity and punctuality. Next they set about encompassing order by the founding of a Chinese law court, and lastly, and very recently they completed the social circle of Chinese life by opening a hospital, or more properly, a house wherein the sick may die without bothering their friends and relations. Chinamen are well known to be fatal> ists. This trait in their national character makes Chinamen, who are otherwise cowardly, meet death with the utno means unfrequent, and in no case has the victim of the law failed to march to the scaffold with the fortitude of an Indian. The belief that what is to be is to be, and no act of a person may avert a catastrophe, renders the healing art most difficult of application to Chinamen. Once John becomes really sick, he is pretty sure to die, betle faith he has in curatiyes not in ger. bags, and nauseating liquids blessed by the priests. This superstition affects his relations, and once the hand of death is considered to have set its mark upon the sick man's saffron forehead he is an outcast. He is no more fit to remain in human habitation; for should he die under the roof, a ll manner of ills will fall upon the inmates. Therefore he is hustled out to die. In San Francisco dying men are often found upon the streets. Parents are as ruthlessly sacrificed, once their ailment is considered hopeless, as the veriest strangerand yet the children of a Chinamen are the most dutiful of any children of any Hearing that a hospital, or sick-house, as the chinese term it, had been established in Chinatown, a representative of the Commercial Advertiser set to work to find the place, and explored it | ication.' if opportunity offered. From inquiries made among the white people in the neighborhood, the house was located on the north side of the street, five or six doors from the corner of Chatham street. The entrance was under a stoop, and opened into a long dark hallway, that in turn led into a blind court between the front and rear buildings. The drains from the adjoining house's emptied into the stone-flagged court, the sewage lay in little pools in the broken stones, sending up an overpowering stench. Garbage was scattered over the ground, where it had been thrown from the windows, and lumber boxes and barrels filled up the intervening spaces. Picking his way across the court, the writer reached a deal door that appeared to open into the ear house, but which really opened into a long alley, at the end of which was another door on which was pasted a red sign in black Chinese characters. Knocking produced no response. The visitor lifted the latch, and pushed the door open. A volume of foul air and smoke poured out, nearly stifling the reporter, who drew back for a moment, but recovering he entered. The place was dark, but gradually the eye becoming accustomed to the gloom, it was possible to distinguish the limits of the piace. Not a stick of furniture was in the place, but a brazier, made of an old coal oil can, burned in the middle of the room. On one side there were bunks, arranged end for end, and on one, covered by a quilt made of gunny sacks and rags lay a human form. As the visitor approached, the miserable creature half raised upon his elbow, and asked in a hollow voice: 'What for ?' 'You sick ?' interrogated the report-

'Me velly sick,' answered the Chine. man, falling back with a groan.

'Hungry ?' 'No-no can eat.' 'Where are your friends?' 'No got fliends. All gone.'

the broken pillars and fragments of the As the poor fellow ceased, a hollow cough told the story. He was uying from consumption, which carries off They now make handsome furniture fully half of his race in this country. France. which is capable of as high a polish as unsanitary mode of life soon work hav- The average number of hairs on the of with the weak physique of the coolle | head is 120,000.

and his vicious habits of opium smoking and gambling hurry him on until too weak to stand, his friends carry him to the sick house.

NEWSPAPER LAWS

If subscribers order the discontinuation of newspapers, the publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

If subscribers refuse or neglect to take their newspapers from the office to which they are sent they are held responsible until they have settled the bills and ordered them discontinued.

If subscribers move to other places without in forming the publisher, and the newspapers are sent to the former place, they are responsible.

ADVERTISING RATES

1 square | 1 wk. | 1 mo. | 3 mos. | 6 mos. | 1 year 2 column | 4 00 | 6 00 | 10 00 | 15 00 | 88 (6 2 column | 4 00 | 6 00 | 10 00 | 15 00 | 18 00 2 " | 7 00 | 10 00 | 15 00 | 30 00 | 40 00 1 " | 10 00 | 15 00 | 25 00 | 45 00 | 75 00

One inch makes a square. Administrators and Executors' Notices $2.50. Transient advertisements and locals 10 cents per line for first insertion and 5 cents per line for each addition-

There was nothing more to learn, John was dying, and he would do nothing to help himself, for was not the hand of death upon him? So, leaving a small piece of silver in the talon-like hand of the sick man, the reporter left. As he stepped into the court the proprietor of the sick house was coming in with a tin plate of rice and a diminutive cracked cup of tea.

'What is the matter with that man, John ?' asked the reporter.

'Oh, him die.' 'The sickness?' (consumption.)

'Yes. Him die to-morrow.' 'Where are his friends?'

'Him fliends plenty lich. Got'em store. Payee Sam Kee plenty money keep Ah Jim?

'Why don't you get a doctor?' 'Wha' for? Him die. Wha' for spendum money doctor?' 'Why don't his friends keep him home where he can be comfortable?'

'All same bad Joss come, he die there. Ah Jim all lite. Him die plenty click'n have big flun'ral. Send'um bones back China.' The next day when the reporter called Ah Jim lay in a pine box. He had on a new suit of blue glazed muslin and a skull cap with a bright red button. His face wore a calm expression, and the thin hands were crossed over his breast. Funeral punk burned and litmost stoicism. On the Pacific slope the gilded paper cornucopias were scatexecutions of Chinamen have been by tered around. Across the street grand preparations were making for a great funeral feast, for Ah Jim had died out of the house and he could now be honored .- N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

Where the Difference Came In.

A certain gentleman requiring legal assistance had been recomended to cause he gives up all hope, refuses to one of the two brothers, but had fortake medicines, and resigns himself gotten the Christian name of him he stoically to the fate in store for him. sought, so he called at the office of the He is superstitious, and places what lit- one first found and asked for Mr. Pod-> name here in town? 'Well, I wish to consult with the Mr. Podger-excuse me for the allusion-

'But there are two of you of that

'That is my name, sir.'

who wears a wig.'

'We both wear wigs, sir.' 'Well, the one I seek was divorced from his wife not long ago.'

'There you hit us both again, sir.' 'The man to whom I was reccomended has recently been accused of forgery, though, I trust, unjustly.' 'There we are again, my dear sir. We have both had that gentle insinuation laid at our doors.' 'Well. upon my word, you two brothers bear a striking resemblance. But I guess I have it now. The one I am after is in the habit of occassionally drinking to excess-sometimes to intox-

'My dear man, that little vice is unfortunately characteristic of the pair of us, and I doubt if our best friend could tell you which was the worst.' 'Well you are a matched pair certainly. But tell me,' continued the visitor, which of the twain it was that took the poor debtor's oath a few months a-'Ha, ha, we were both in that meddle. was on Bob's paper and he was on

'In mercy's name!' cried the applicant, desperately, 'will you tell me which of the two is the most sensible 'Ah, there you touch bottom, my friend. Poor Bob, I can't stretch the truth, eyen to serve a brother. If you want the more sensible one of the two

I suppose I must acknowledge the corn. I'm the man.'

Bill Nye's Advice to Parents.

Do not constantly tell your boy 'how tall' he is-that he 'grow like a weed' -and finally make him think he is a giraffe. If you keep it up you will finally make a round-shouldered, awkward, bashful bean-pole out of a mighty good looking boy. If every tall boy iu this country will agree to lick every wooden-healed man who tells him 'how he does grow,' I will agree to hold the coat of said tall boy, I am now dealing with a subject of which I happen to be informed. The same rule applies to girls as well. If you want to make your daughter fall over the piano and yearn to climb a tree whenever she sees anyone come toward the house, tell her 'what a great swalloping tom-bcy she is getting to be.' In this way, if her parents act judiciously and in concert, we can soon have a nation of joung men and women whose manners and carriage will be as beautiful and symmetrical as the plaster cast off a sore

The Chinese Government offers amnesty to all Chinese subjects who will return home and enter into the service of the Government in the war against

DEABODY HOTEL,

Owner & Proprietor.

MILLHEIM, PA. Practical Dentist.

MAIN STREET, MILLHEIM PA. DR. GEO. S. FRANK,

Physician & Surgeon Office on Main Street.

W. F. Reeder Hastings & REEDER,

C. M. Bower. A LEXANDER & BOWER,

TR. GEO. L. LEE,

Attorney-at-Law

J. W. Gephart. BEAVER & GEPHART,

BROCKERHOFF HOUSE, ALLEGHENY ST., BELLEFONTE, PA.

PROPRIETOR.

BISHOP STREET, BELLEFONTE, PA.,

PROPRIETOR.

CORNER OF MAIN AND JAY STREETS,

ST. ELMO HOTEL,

RATES REDUCED TO $2.00 PER DAY The traveling public will still find at this Hotel the same liberal provision for their com fort. It is located in the immediate centres of business and places of amusement and the different Rail-Road depots, as well as all parts of 9thSt. South of Chestnut. PHILADELPHIA.

Surgeon & Dentist. Office on Penn Street, South of Luth. church,

P. H. MUSSER,

Watches, Clocks, Jewelry, &c.

All work neatly and promptly Exe-

Shop on Main Street, Millheim, Pa.

SPANGLER & HEWES,

Auctioneer.

This institution is located in one of the most beautiful and healthful spots of the entire Alle-gheny region. It is open to students of both sexes, and offers the following courses of study: . A Latin Scientific Course.
. The following SPECIAL COURSES, of two on Penn street, south of race bridge, any time and in any quantity. CY CAKES

plies at exceedingly low prices. 34-3m

Sewing Machine

WHITH the most complete machines in market.

The undersigned also constantly keeps on hand all kinds of Repairing promptly attended to.

Call at her place and get your sup-

OFFICE,

World's Leader

Each machine is guaranteed for

Give me a trial and be convinced of the truth | Have you lost anything !"

confidence of their age they found they were companions in so many wayseach being orphaned, poor, lonely and very sociable-it was natural that they