There is no lack of roads in Ireland, and for the most part they are fairly good, though often extremely hilly. The car is on the whole excellently suited to them, and undoubtedly Blauconi, who introduced them, is one of the greatest benefactors of Ireland. Had the Irish been more punctilious in paying their debts, the Italian would have had his statue in every market town. I may remark in passing that he was originally a picture dealer in Clonmel, who, having seen the possibility of a fortune in the improvement of the communications, started the first of the cars from Clonmel to Cahir in the "Waterloo year." Queer stories are told of how he pushed his enterprise, particularly by getting up fictitious competition. The competition was carried rather far, when one of his drivers burst triumphantly into his office one day, begging half-a-crown of his honor to drink his honor's health, since "he had just bruck the heart of the brown mare" in the opposition conveyance by pushing her hard up the hill of so-and-so, the mare being, of course Blauconi's own.

The car, I repeat, is well adapted to the country; it is generally to be obtained on a few minutes' notice, and the drivers in default of relays, will take their passenger incredible distances. The man who drove me from Danglow brought me on to Ardara from Glenties, where we had failed to find a change. I expressed a fear that I might be "planted" at Ardara should we be equally unfortunate there. "Sure, sir," said my friend, "and sooner than ye shall be bated I'll rowl ye on to Carrick myself, ye and to Killybegge to the back of that." I may remark that the hills in some places were tremendous. Yet the Irish car has its obvious drawbacks. It shakes you even with tolerable springs on the smooth roads, and where the roads are rough the jolting is terrible. It exposes one to the wind and the weather, though much may be gained by sitting the inside. And, although seated either for four or six besides the driver, it will hardly carry more than two people with comfort if they have any quantity of luggage. When two share the expenses of a private car they are cheap enough. I have found the ordinary charge for posting to be 8d. per Irish mile; while the drivers seem generally to expect the other 4d. Indeed, they make themselves so agreeable that though the "tip" seems high it is difficult to grudge it them. — Cor. London Times.

Items of Interest.

Infant mortality in France is computed at from 20 to 23 per cent of the population.

A Paris company has submitted to the Pope plans for lighting up the dome of St. Peter's at Easter ceremonies with electric burners.

Near Danbury stands a white oak tree that is thought to be 200 years old. It is more than 100 feet high, and the circumference at the first limb is 13 feet.

Italy has to keep 5,363 persons under sentence of penal servitude for life. Prison expenses are $2,000,000 a year more than those for education.

A recent estimate, made by means of a very intricate testing apparatus, places the rate at which an electric dot travels over a telegraph wire at 10,000 miles per second.

A clean and perfect copy of John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" 1678, has just been added to the British Museum library. Only three other copies are known, and but two of those are perfect.

The wife of the jailer, at Oconto, Wis., was left on guard and armed for the day with a pistol, which her son doubted she had the courage to discharge. He made a test by putting on a prisoner's costume and whooping at her.

There is little of interest now to be found in Elba, Napoleon's island prison. All the relics of his stay there were long since carried away, and the place has sunk into the insignificance from which his presence raised it temporarily. The population is rather over 20,000.

The fire engines in Italian cities are still the same little hand pumps used in the beginning of the century; not a single steam fire engine exists on the peninsula, owing to the rarity of fires, but a movement is now on foot to introduce steam engines according to the American style.

Dr. Spitzka says the popular delusion that the human eye has an influence over insane people similar to that claimed for the same organ over wild animals, is one that is often ridiculed by the insane themselves. He adds that whoever attempts to utilize the notion will recognize its absurdity.

A dealer in cod-liver oil in marseilles advertises that his fish are caught in a safe and quiet harbor, where marine monsters cannot enter to frighten them into diseases of the liver. "They live there," he says, "in peace and comfort; their lives are healthy, and this is the reason why my cod-liver oil is the best."

That the cars upon the rails of certain railroads creep has been a matter for complaint which every one has heard. It will be greater news to many to know that the rails on sleepers creep, too, in the direction of greater traffic. On the St. Louis bridge proper the rails have been known to creep 260 feet in one year, and on the bridge approach 400 feet.

It is said that the sand used in the manufacture of mirrors is now used by a Paris company to make white bricks and blocks, said not to be injured by frosts, rain, etc., and to be very light, the specific gravity being only 1.50 to 1.85 of clay bricks. The sand is first strongly pressed by hydraulic power, and then baked in ovens at a very high temperature. The bricks are almost pure silica.

"Old Moses" is the name of what is thought to be the largest tree in the world. It stands in a grove near Tule River, in California. Although the top is broken off, it is 240 feet high and 13 feet in diameter at the broken part. The hollow of the trunk will hold 150 persons, and is lined with some of California, is carpeted and fitted up like a drawing room, with table, chairs, and pianoforte.

It has been discovered by experiment with dogs placed under the influence of morphia even to coma, that the hypodermic injection of solution of theine, the active principle of tea, is an almost instantaneous antidote, neutralizing the effect of the narcotic, and reviving the animal, after the action of the heart has become imperceptible. Caffeine possesses similar properties, but is less immediate in its operation.

Fredericksburg, Virginia, lays claim to the distinction of being the burial place of Edward Heldon, a contemporary and one of the pall-bearers of the immortal Shakespeare. A red sandstone slab marked the grave in St. George's churchyard until it was misplaced by Burnside, who cut a road through the burial ground and removed the stone to the Masonic cemetery, where it now lies under a locust tree. It was in Fredericksburg that the mother of Washington lived after she became a widow and reared her family.

The eucalyptus, or Australian blue-gum tree, is now grown in every civilized country almost, where frosts do not occur, but being by nature adapted to act as an evaporating machine, it will not destroy malaria or keep off mosquitoes if planted in a dry and not in a marshy soil.

A chestnut at the foot of Mount Etna is believed to be the largest and oldest tree in Europe. It is hollow, and large enough to admit two carriages driving abreast to pass through it. The main trunk has a circumference of 213 feet. This grizzly giant is said to measure 92 feet in height.

Until lately most of the supply of sugar in Denmark was imported. Now the material for sugar is provided within the boundaries of the kingdom. Six years ago the Danes made 2,600,000 pounds of beet-root sugar, and four years later the figures rose to 8,600,000 pounds. The production of 1883 exceeded that of 1881 by fully 2,000,000 pounds.
