

Two Washington Women.

A Washington correspondent says: I noticed an instance of Washington snobishness the other night in one of the leading groceries of the Capital which well illustrates the character of one class of our high-toned court society. I was waiting to buy some little things and a very pretty and modest lady was standing at the counter watching the clerk do up some packages for her. Another lady, the wife of an old Washingtonian, was also waiting, as I was, when Mrs. General...

All the clerks were as busy as they could be. But with the most arrogant air she turned to the one above spoken of, and said: "Do you not see, sir, that I am waiting?"

The clerk dropped the bundles he had and rushed over to her. She then pointed with a majestic air to a lot of tomatoes marked twelve cents a can. She said: "I will take one of those cans of tomatoes; you may carry it out to my carriage, and with that she swept out of the store in the same regal way in which she had entered. As she did so I noticed a smile of contempt on the countenance of the old Washingtonian, who had the blood of some of the most noted families in the country in her veins. She quietly waited until her time came to be served, and taking her purchase, which amounted to many times that of the snob who had pushed into her place, in her arms, she said, 'I thank you, but I can carry these out myself.' She took the bundles in her arms, and going to the door, stepped into a finer carriage than that of the female snob and was driven quietly away. It is no wonder that some of the old Washington ladies object to the rude ways of those who in part compose our great court circles.

A Rum-Crazed Father. The Heroism of a Mother in the Defense of her Babe. From the Morning Journal. With a ghastly white face, bandages covering five ugly wounds on his head, a stalwart man murmured as he moved restlessly upon a cot in St. Catherine's hospital, Brooklyn:

"It was my own fault—my own." As he made this confession his trembling wife stood in a justice's court telling in faltering tones how she had stricken her husband down with an axe as she guarded the life of her babe.

"It was to save my child's life, Judge, I would have died to save him, the woman said. The woman was Mrs. Julia Fox, of No. 150 South First street, Brooklyn, E. D., and she was telling her story to Justice Nacher. She said that on the previous evening her husband William came home and said to her:

"YOU MIGHT AS WELL SAY YOUR PRAYERS, for I am going to murder you to-night. I am going out to get drunk, and when I came home I will kill you and the young one."

"He threatened me," said Mrs. Fox, "because I would not give him money to buy rum with. He left the house angry. At midnight he returned. He was intoxicated. I was reclining. He ordered me to make him a cup of coffee, and while I was making it he said: 'Hurry up, and give me that coffee; then you can say your prayers for I am going to finish you to-night.'"

"He finished the coffee," continued Mrs. Fox; "then he tried to grab me. I ran into the bed room where my little two-year-old child Georgie, was sleeping. My husband picked up from the stove a bowl of boiling oatmeal and threw it at me. It missed me, struck the bed scattered over my child. The poor little fellow was dreadfully burned. I ran to the door of the bedroom and closed the door in his face, and latched it. He stormed around and threatened to burn the house. Then I shouted to him:

"If you come in here you must take the consequences, YOU SHALL NOT KILL MY CHILD. I seized something on the floor which in my excitement and in the darkness I thought was a shovel. William burst the door in and came at me like a tiger. Then I struck him over the head with the weapon, which was really an axe. I must have struck him more than once, for he kept striking at me. When he fell I hauled him on the bed and asked one of my neighbors to go for a doctor. A policeman appeared on the scene and an ambulance was sent for. It was found on examination by a surgeon that Fox was suffering from five wounds on the head, one of which will in all probability cause his death. He was covered with blood from head to foot. The infant Georgie was found to be badly scalded; the boiling oatmeal had struck the little one's face and naked limbs and raised huge blisters. It was deemed advisable to send the child and Fox to St. Catherine's hospital, although the former will recover.

limbs and raised huge blisters. It was deemed advisable to send the child and Fox to St. Catherine's hospital, although the former will recover.

Yesterday Fox was conscious for a short time and seemed to realize that he was in a critical condition. To one of the physicians in attendance he said: "MY WIFE IS NOT TO BLAME. I alone am at fault. I was crazy drunk and did not know what I was doing. I couldn't have injured either my wife or child if I knew what I was doing."

Justice Nacher evidently sympathized with Mrs. Fox, but he was obliged to commit her to jail to await the result of her husband's injuries. She was surrounded by sympathizing neighbors, but did not seem to worry so much about herself as about her child. She bears an excellent reputation.

The Kind of a Father-in Law He Got. From the Wall Street News. Last fall, as he turned into Wall street from Broadway, rubbing his hands and smiling like a June morning, an acquaintance asked the cause of it. "Just made $10,000 was the reply. "How?"

"I'm going to marry a girl up country in December, and I've just unloaded Texas Pacific on her old dad at 48 above quotation. That's the kind of a father-in-law I'm to have."

A few days ago he was encountered in Pearl street, and he looked mighty solemn around the mouth. "Well, how does the father-in-law hold out?" was asked. "I expected to marry $30,000 with the girl," he replied, "but hang me if the old man didn't put in Texas Pacific on me at 55 above quotation for $20,000 of it! That's the kind of a father-in-law I've got."

An Opera Glass. The power of opera glasses is from two and a half to five times that of the average eye. That is to say, if you are forty feet away from the stage, an opera glass will put you on the same footing with those who are from eight to sixteen feet away. There are several simple tests of the power of the opera-glass. The most convenient one, perhaps, is to pin a card on the wall and to look through the right barrel of the glass with your left eye. The difference between the actual distance as measured by your right eye and the apparent distance as measured through the glass, will represent the difference between your eyes and the glasses. Of course this is only an estimate, but a fairly accurate and sufficient one can be made. The field glasses which many people bring to the theatres range in power from six to nine times that of the eye.
