THURSDAY, MAY 27TH, 1886. Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

THE strikers in nearly all parts of the country and in all branches of business are rapidly returning to work and the cloud of business depression shows its silver lining.

THE House Committee on Invalid Pensions has agreed to report favorably on the bill extending the provisions of the pension laws to those who were injured while on furlough and not strictly on duty.

According to the Clinton Democrat the Democratic State convention will meet in Harrisburg on Wednesday, August 18th, 1886, at 10 o'clock, a. m. No official notice to that effect has as yet been given, that we know

'Tis hard to tell how ex-President Arthur's health is by the contradictory reports of the press. One daily paper has him improving, another says he is getting worse. About the only thing we are sure of is that he still GLADSTONE made another eloquent address in the House of Commons one night last week on the Home Rule bill. He defended the measure, explained some of its provisions, and in the most emphatic terms challenged opponents to provide a better and wiser plan for the contentment and prosperity of Ireland.

IT seems to be a settled matter now that Secretary Manning whose state of health is greatly improved, will remain in the cabinet, and that Mr. Fairchild will do all the work for some months to come. No matter how the work gets done, as long as it is done satisfactory and with Mr. Manning at the head of the depart-

THAT is another fine story about the Orphans' schools. The Philadel phia Record gives an account of the brutal treatment a boy received in the The boy was hit in the face with a ruler and almost had his jaws broken. Governor Pattison should exercise patience no longer with such a set of barbarians.

GEO. H. IMES, a prominent colored citizen of Dauphin county, announces himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor. His nomination would give the Beaver ticket a decided coloring and the Republican party of Pennsylvania will now have a good opportunity to display their old-time love for the colored race.

THE river and harbor bill passed the House with not quite two-thirds of a majority. 143 members voted for and 102 against it. It is not at all unlikely that the $15,000,000 which the House granted for the improvement of rivers and harbors, will be increased several millions by the Senate. All the more the bill ought to be vetoed by President Cleveland.

THE way of the transgressors is hard. The New York Alderman, Jaehne, a man of considerable means and political influence, and who was convicted of bribery, no doubt has a similar thought since he has entered Sing Sing and was consigned to the prison laundry to starch shirts. Nine years and ten months is a long time in which to reflect upon the simple motto "Honesty is the best policy," but such examples of justice are made for terror to some, and in this case some of Jaehne's fellow aldermen, awaiting trial, get the benefit of the

A LITTLE more than five months hence the voters of this state will be called upon to elect a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Auditor-General, Secretary of Internal Affairs, twentyseven Congressmen, one Congressman-at-large, twenty-five State Senators, to represent the even-numbered districts, and two hundred and one members of the lower house of Representatives. One of the duties of the next Legislature will be to elect a U nited States Senator, to succeed Senator Mitchell. As soon as the state conventions have been held and the tickets are in the field the warm battles of this important political campaign will begin and all parties will fight to the bitter end, the 2nd of November, when the ballot-box will give its inexorable decision.

A TERRIBLE MURDER COM-MITTED BY THE HUS-BAND OF A FORMER MILLHEIM GIRL.

From the Freeport (I.l.) Daily Journal, Shannon. Ill., May 15 -A terrible ragedy was enacted in this village last night about midnight, but not until the repeated ringing of the fire alarm this morning about four o'clock, did very many of the people know that a murder had been committed in their midst, and that Police Officer Pat Reddington had met his death at the hands of a cowardly assassin and that his remains lay cold in death at the undertaker's. From the evidence it is apparent that Patsy would have fared better had he done his duty and put Charley Lashell in the lockup instead of trying to shield him from this disgrace by taking him to his home. Very soon after the tragic event had taken place the sheriff and coroner were telegraphed for and were both on the grounds by four o'clock this morning; telegrams were sent in all directions, in consequence of which Charley Lashell, the murderer, was capt ured, early this morning about two miles east of Lanark by the night poicemen of the town, aided by the night perator, and is now in the county jail at Mt. Carroll. The evidence before the coroner's jury showed plainly that Lashell was the murderer, and we give the evidence of his wife-such other evidence as was given corroborated hers in the most material points, and is very damaging to the accused. Mrs. Emma Lashell, wife of Charles Lashell, testified :- At the supper table, she said, her husband showed that he was under the influence of liquor. Before leaving home, Charley kissed the baby and remarked to his wife: If I am not at home by half-past ten, come after me." When the time came at which he requested me to come for him, I went, and met him at Mrs. Valentine's furniture store. I asked him what he was doing there, and he replied -8. B Durfey, mate of Arizona, had in a stammering way: "Come into the barber shop, I want to tell you something." After we entered the shop he to be shown in the large stammer of the shop he shop in his shop he sh ed him to let me out, which he rufused to do. At this time Policeman Reddington came by and I asked him to open the door, but he could not get in. I then asked him to open the window and help me out, and he did so at once. ng sleep, heightened color in the cheeks This, apparently, made my husband vere angry, and he immediately got out of the window also. I started for home Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Altera- and my husband and Reddington had some angry words; but finally the officer persuaded my husband to go home. Charley came up stairs and remained a short time, and then went out upon the street again. I then went to father Laskell and we searched for him in the lower portions of the building; but as we could not find him any where I told the policeman that he was out of the house again and that he had a razor with him and a pair of hair clippers. Some time after this there was a knock at the lower door and my mother asked: "Who is there?" and the policeman answered. Mother askchild crawl upon the track. He revers- ed him to come in. Reddington came near my room and asked me what he should do with my husband, and I told him to bring him home; but if he could not, to lock him up. My mother was in the room with Reddington at the time this conversation took place. As the policeman was standing there, Charley came into the room and said to the officer: "What are you doing here? This is my-home and you have no business here." Reddington said: "I have; it is my business to see that you are at home, and not making any disturbance on the street." At this point, Mrs. Willow, the mother of Mrs. Lashell, says that Reddington stood with his back to the wall and with his hands in his pants pockets, and that Charley Lashell was right in front of him. She says that she was looking into the baby's crib when she heard a noise, and supposed that Charley had slapped Reddington in the face. She looked up at Reddington who was holding both hands to his throat, and blood was rapidly gushing from a wound in his neck, and I said : "Charley, what have you done; Oh! what have you done." My daughter came running from her room and cried out: "My God. Charley, you have killed that boy !" Red dington said : "Open the door and let me out." Continuing, Mrs. Lashell testified that her mother opened the door and Reddington passed band that he had killed Patsy. but he only shook his head; in a minute or part of the house, raised it, and climbed out on the shed and disappeared.

There was some other evidence given by Mrs. Lashell, which her mother did substantiate, and which we do not consider of material interest.

Mrs. Lashell, the wife of the murderer, is frantic with grief, and deplores the disgrace that her husband has occasioned. She has one child-a bovand clings close to him all the time. She stated substantially the facts that appear in the report of the inquest.

Patrick Reddington came to Shannon with his parents in 1861, when the town was in its infancy-in the same brought from the Tombs prison to- year that the Racine & Mississippi railroad was completed through this town-Court. Jaehne was pale and his eyes He had grown up to manhood in our had a weary look Motions for arrest midst, and his friends are legion. One both devied. When the prisoner stood as the night watchman of this village, and during the time he has had the of had to say why sentence should not be fice he has proven himself an efficient, painstaking and faithful guardian of the public peace, and had the respect of the entire community.

Charles Lashell the young man who committed the terrible crime, has lived in this village nearly his whole lifetime, and it seems more terrible on this account that he should take the life of one of his school companions; of one who has repeatedly done him many no particular reason can be assigned for the fact but that he has premeditated murder in his heart and committed the act while vilest kind of whiskey had him in its power. This is not the first time that Lashell has committed offenses against the peace and welfare of this community. Several years ago in a drunken fit he deliberately shot at Elias Shelly, a hotel keeper, and had it not been for the intercession of friends he no doubt would have-ere this-been behind the prison bars, a place he is eminently fitted to occupy. Lashell is about 25 years of age and has conducted a barber shop in this town for the past two or three years, and might have done a good business and kept his family and himself very respectfully but for his dissolute habits. He has repeatedly quarrelled with his wife, and her life has been by no means a happy one with him. This is a terrible blow to Lashell's parents, who are among the best people of this community, and the people here feel that they need a great deal of sympathy in this matter, and extend it freely.

It is stated that on a couple of occa- 415 sions before he threatened to end the career of Reddington. He was of a very jealous disposition.
