Killed While Attending a Funeral.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 20 .- William Leroach, aged 20, with all other employes at the slate mantel factory at East Cangor, quit work this morning to attend the funeral of a fellow workman, As the funeral was entering the church where the services were held, Leroach was sitting between the rails of the Bangor and Portland railroad track with his legs dangling between the ties. While in that position he was struck by a passenger train and cut to pieces. News of his death was brought to his mother in the church while the funeral sermon was being preached.

THE GHOST'S LAIR FOUND

His Paraphernalia Consisted of Brimstone, Sulphur, Human Sculls, Etc.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Oct. 20.-The excitement over the nocturnal rambles of the eight-foot ghost, whose exploits have been chronicled in the newspapers continues unabated. With a trusted friend detective Edward Hutchinson went to the place where the ghost disappeared. Following up the banks of the creek about half a mile, he saw something shine near the water's edge at the foot of a steep bank overgrown time they found nothing further, but, partly ascending the bank, they saw an light of their bull's eye, they saw it large for a person to enter.

With a lantern ablaze and revolver cocked, Hutchinson went inward, his standing guard outside. He followed; the hole for about five feet, when it opened into a natural chamber about twelve feet high and six by eight feet in the bottom. At last the retreat of the "ghost" was found, A search was came to light. First they saw a small brimstonewas scattered over everything. Some had evidently been on the stove, as Hutchinson said the place smelt like the infernal region itself. A package of phosporous, out of which the piece been taken was placed beside the brimstone. And then they found in a corner a lot of sheeting, several masks, some women's dresses, an old pair of trousers and two skulls. In one of the skulls a stick was fitted.

The officers will get reinforcements and try to capture the miscreant in his den. It is almost certain that it is some half demented person who has been doing some odd jobs about town.

THE ANARCHISTS HAVE NO HOPE.

Preparations Being Made for the Execution-Riot and Bloodshed Expected.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20 .- The sober judgement of nearly every person in Chicago whose opinion is worth anything is that the seven anarchists in the county jail will be hanged November 10, according to their sentence. A CHILIAN "SHE."

Isidora de Consino, the Monte Cristo of South America.

A flashily dressed young man of me dium height, with a large diamond in his shirt bosom, stepped off the barkentine Aldavia a few days ago when it arrived from Chili. There was something so sharp and shrewd in his appearance that the attention of an Exminer representative was attracted to

'That is Mr. 'Jenkins, the grand secretary to the richest woman in South America-Mme, Isidora de Consinocommonly known as the Monte Cristo of South America,' said an officer of

'So you would like to know some thing of the madame,' observed Mr. Jenkins, stroking his moustache on being introduced. 'We'l, there is lots to tell you. I could talk about her possessions and her eccentricities for a week and the subject would not be half exhausted. It's a rather curious thing that she was not discovered long since. She is known all along the South American coast and is almost a Queen over the people. In fact, there is no one who disputes her in anything she says or does, and she revels in the luxuries that her enormous wealth can surround her with. About 50 years have passed since she was born, and, though few women have dissipated as she has, she is well preserved, and goes out and has her nice little time the same as

'No, she is not fair. Her features are coarse, like a servant-girl's, but she has had many lovers.

'She has a partiality for the French, on the opposite shore. Finding no boat and a few years ago when a gentleman he and his friend waded the stream, and from France happened around she invariably invited him and fell in love with shrubbery, they discovered a with him. 'Isidora cares little for money. Her income is enormous, but she manages to spend about as much. In 1885 her brother died. In her bereavement she made donations to hospitals, churches, convents, etc., to the amount of $600,-000. She was left $8,000,000 by him. Included in her estate was a handsome residence on one of the principal streets and owned for a time by a former Californian, Don Enrique Meiggs, who had all the material and workmen brought

DOING HIS BEST.

The young man "who does the best his circumstances will allow," makes even that a stepping-stone to success. When poverty obliged Stephen A. up all hope of entering college, he indentureà himself as an apprentice to a cabinet-maker. For two years he done. worked at his trade with such industry as to become a first-rate cabinet-maker. A feeble body and poor health forced him out of the shop. When he discovered that he could not be a mechanic, he determined to study law. He began a ourse of classical studies at an academy, and carried it on with the applicayears to master nearly an entire collegiate course. During that time he also persistently followed a course of law studies, under the instruction of an able lawver. At twenty years of age he left the academy and law office to seek his fortune in that vaguely defined region known as "the West." He wandered through Cleveland, Cincinnati, Louisville and St. Louis, seeking in vain for ome "opening" through which he might pass to self-support. In his pilgrimage he arrived at Jack. onville, III., with thirty-seven cents in his pocket, and he himself unknown to any person in the town. He sought employment as a law clerk, offering his services for board and lodging. No lawyer wanted bim. He sold his schoolwalked to Winchester on a cold Decem-

The morning after his arrival he left his lodgings to find employment. As he approached the public square, he saw a crowd, and joined it. An administrator, about to sell by auction the stock in trade of a deceased merchant, was halted by the want of some man competent to keep a record of sales, and to make out the bills of purchasers.

He consented; the auction lasted three days, and the temporary clerk had six dollars in his pocket, no mean sum for a man whose cash amounted to thirty-seven cents. But he gained more than money. The promptness with which he discharged his duties won for him the admiration of buyers, administrator and auctioneer.

How Stoves are Put Up.

This being the season of the year when multitudes of people are adjusting their heating apparatus, preparing for cold weather, some will recognize Donglas, a boy of fifteen years, to give their own experience in the following amusing description from the American Artisan of the way it is sometimes In the first place, the man pats on an

the pipe ought to go, and blackens bis fingers, and then studiously makes a black mark down the side of his nose. Having got his nose properly frescoed, the man grasps one side of the bottom tion which enabled him within four of the stove, and his wife and the hired girl take hold of the other side, and in this way the stove is started from the woodshed to the parlor. In passing through the door, the man carefully wings his side of the stove around and ams his thumb nails against the door post. At last the stove is set down in the right place, and the man and his wife and the hired girl set out in a triangular search after the stoye legs. Two are finally found inside the stove, where they have remained since spring, and the two others are found hidden under four tons of coal. Then the old man holds up one side of the stove. while his wife puts two of the legs in place; then he holds up the other side while the other two are adjusted, and one of the first pair is displaced. The books to pay for bread and bed, and trick of getting the four legs into their proper place is praticed with yarying and indifferent results for some ten minutes, and by this time the man gets his coat regardless of the consequences.

Then the man goes for the stovepipe and gets a cinder in his eye. The stove was put up in the best shape last year by the stoye man, but this year the pipe proved to be a little too long. So the man jams his hat down over his eyes, takes a piece of the pipe under his arm, eral of them had been asked, was will- and starts for the tin shop to have ing to undertake the duty.
