That item in last week's Poe Mills letter about the sausage mnst have moved that kind hearted woman Mrs. Burd for she sent us about four yards of the finest sausage and some pudding to our camp. You ought to have seen the hungry gather around the table to sample the Burd sausage. Such good hearted women are wotrh having and suppose that is exactly what our chief of police thinks. We are ever so much obliged. Last Friday the king of all the logs came to the tram road." That piece of timber was kind of a sticker for the boys. It required knows the thief and advices him to return eight head of mules and four drivers to trail "old dad." The log was 56 feet long and 24 inches thick at the top.

Last week Harry Deibler, James Smith and Saml. Weiser, all of Millheim, sent ome very fine oil paintings to the Swamp Poodle camp. The boys are ever so much obliged for the paintings. Poe Mills always ahead and our women

> A lively time over at Buzzard's Glory. A younded deer came along and reached the little settlement. One of the female population spied the deer and gave the signal for a general chase. She was joined by three others and they got down to business. The one was equipped with a gun, that wasn't loaded, another had the powder horn the third had an old garden rake and the other

he got the buck fever, and, using a board, shot the deer on the head. It dropped and Two Coburn nimrods were out hunting he sprang on it and tried to cut its throat with a pine knot. He was just congratulating himself that he had the deer for sure, and was about dividing the spoils with the four women, when the hunters who had shot the deer came and claimed their own. They gave a small portion to Cuppy and the four women. Poor Cuppy had a fear-
