AND EVENING ADVERTISER.

[No. 29 of Vol. V.]

WEDNESDAY, January 15, 1794.

[Whole No. 487.]

THE YOUNG LADIES' Drawing Academy,

Under the Direction of
S. FOLWELL,
Will, in a few days, be resumed.

HE feels a gratitude to those parents and guardians of the young ladies, who have entrusted to him their tuition—and as most of them are to return, he will have an opportunity, by his endeavors for their further improvement, to acquit himself of a debt, which he esteems it an honor to have incurred.

One or two large Rooms,

In a central situation, suitable to accommodate his pupils, are wanted. Apply to him, at No. 2, Letitia Court—where he will be thankful to receive commands for Miniature Painting or Hair Work, and all kind of Drawing on Ivory, Sattin or Paper.

For the GAZETTE of the UNITED STATES.

Altho' it is believed that there is but little danger to be apprehended from the declining influence of the Democratic Society in this City, we can be at no loss to discover from the conduct of the present active members, the motives by which they were governed in bringing about its establishment.

With a view of impressing on the minds of our unsuspecting citizens, the evils which naturally arise out of such political institutions, I must beg you to republish the following excellent letter from a paper of last Summer.—

VIRGINIA, 27th July, 1793.

AT a meeting of Citizens, Hanover County, Virginia, the Principles, Articles, Regulations and Circular Letter of the Democratic Society, at Philadelphia, having been read and considered—

Resolved unanimously, That the following letter be addressed to DAVID RITTENHOUSE, Esq. and others, members of that Society.

Fellow Citizens,

THE principles recognized by your society being among those on which our free and happy Constitution is founded, no true Republican will hesitate to subscribe to them. We join you also most cordially in opinion, that at this crisis it is more particularly the duty of every individual to use his utmost efforts to remove the prejudices and conciliate the affections of all other fellow citizens; and that, to obtain these most desirable objects, it behoves all to cultivate on all occasions peace, order, harmony and attachment to the Constitution; and, having the general welfare only in view, sedulously to avoid even the appearance of party distinctions. But we cannot refrain, fellow citizens, from expressing our apprehensions that political societies, branched out and assuming powers to the extent you recommend, may, however pure and well intentioned in their commencement, be perverted into clubs of faction, as has been too often experienced, and terminate at length in Courts of Inquisition. We apprehend that a dread at least of such consequences will at any rate excite heart-burnings and dissensions—fatal precursors of Anarchy, and its invariable fellow—Despotism.

We are happy in the conviction that the citizens of the United States, who of their own free choice have adopted the Constitution under which we enjoy Peace, Liberty, and Independence, are fully competent, by the modes prescribed by that Constitution, to correct the abuses which may and will, from time to time, creep into this and all other human institutions. We are happy also in the conviction, that the citizens of our free independent Republic can, without being driven to the necessity of forming themselves into societies or parties (proper at certain times for subjects of monarchical and despotic governments, where the correction of abuses or change of public men cannot otherwise be brought about) approve and aid those whose valor, virtue and patriotism, contributed to procure and continue to preserve to us the blessings of Peace, Liberty & Independence, and can by constitutional modes too, discountenance or punish their public servants of a contrary description, and change the whole system of government, when they judge it proper to do so.

We are more particularly averse at this time to the appearance of party distinctions, being deeply affected by the horrid massacres and devastations recently experienced by our insular friends, with whom we sincerely sympathize on the melancholy occasion. We deprecate the like dreadful calamities, which will inevitably deluge our common country, should party differences sever the fraternal band and dissolve the Union—that barrier which alone can save us from the miseries of civil discord, and its certain consequence—foreign domination. It is Union alone that can continue to us the peace and honors of an Independent, and the happiness of a Republican Government.

We are, with great respect,
Your Fellow Citizens.

CONGRESS.

IN SENATE.

Wednesday, January 8.

The following motion was made and seconded:

ORDERED, That the Secretary of the Treasury do lay before this House the following statements, to wit:

First. A Statement of the domestic debt of the United States, as due on the 1st day of January 1794, specifying under distinct heads—

1st. The funded debt, distinguishing the six per cents, three per cents, and deferred stock, and in each kind of stock, stating separately, the amount created by the assumption of the state debts.

2d. The registered debt.

3d. The debt subscribable to the loan of the United States, but which not being funded or registered at the Treasury, is not entitled to a dividend.

4th. The balances due to creditor states and already funded (if there be any such) being the excess of the sums respectively by law assumed, for such states, above the sums actually subscribed in the debts of the said states.

5th. The domestic loans for cash contracted since the commencement of the present government, stating the respective times when borrowed & when becoming due, together with the rate of interest.

6th. All other kinds of domestic debts not specially included under the five preceding heads, for the payment of which no appropriations have been made.

Second. A Statement of the domestic debt redeemed since the commencement of the present government to the first day of January 1794, distinguishing the different species of debt, and specifying the mode of redemption, and, when redeemed for money, the amount of monies expended in purchasing the same.

Third. A general statement of the foreign debt of the United States, as due on the 1st day of January 1794, stating separately the French debt, the other debts contracted before the commencement of the present government, and the loans contracted since that time; and specifying in each debt or loan the original amount, the time from which the interest commenced, the payments already made, with the dates of the same, and the places where paid, the amount yet due, and the respective times when the same shall become due.

Fourth. A specific account of the application of the monies obtained upon foreign loans contracted since the commencement of the present government, to the 1st day of January 1794, stating the amount of the monies drawn over to America and of those applied in Europe, together with the dates of such applications or drafts.

Fifth. A summary statement of the actual receipts and expenditures from the commencement of the present government to the last day of December 1793, including all monies received on account of the United States, such parts of the foreign loans as have not been drawn over to America only excepted; distinguishing the monies received under each branch of the revenue and the monies expended under each appropriation, and stating the balances of each branch of the revenue remaining unexpended on the 31st day of December 1793; specifying separately such balances as were on that day in the Treasury, and such as were uncollected or in the hands of any banks, officers, or other persons.

Sixth. Similar and separate statements for the years 1791, 1792, and 1793, respectively, specifying separately in each
