It is wholly unnecessary to expatiate on the advantage, to American readers, that this edition possesses, over every imported edition of any system of Geography extant. The addition of maps of the several state, procured at a very great expence, and from the best materials that are attainable, speaks such full conviction on this subject, that it would be disrespectful to the reader's understanding to suppose it requisite to enter into a detail of arguments to prove its superiority. In no similar work have such maps benever introduced.

The emendations and additions which are made in this work, are innumerable, and occur in every page. The public are referred to the preface for a slight sketch of a few of them.

The publisher takes the present opportunity of returning his most sincere thanks to those respectable characters who have favored him with documents for improving the maps of several of the states. He requests a continuance of their kindness; and hopes that such public spirited citizens, as are possessed of similar documents, will favor him with their assistance in perfecting his undertaking.

The extraordinary encouragement with which he has been favored, has excited in his breast the warmest sentiments of gratitude—sentiments which time will not efface. He pledges himself to the citizens of the United States, to spare neither pains nor expence to render the present edition of Guthrie's Geography improved, deserving of their patronage.

UNITED STATES.

NEW-YORK, March 22.

Extract of a letter from Albany, March 14.

"I informed you some time since, that the Senate has passed a bill for fortifying New-York, with money out of our treasury, in full confidence that Congress would repay us. After much time spent thereon, the bill was rejected by the Assembly on the principle, that it was the duty of the United States, and that it was unconstitutional for us to take up this business.

"On a suggestion that the United States would fortify our port, but that their means were inadequate; Mr. North next morning brought in a bill for loaning money to the United States, for the purpose of securing and fortifying New-York. It is probable it will pass in the Assembly, and there is good hopes it will succeed in the Senate.

"The bill for providing field artillery, arms, accoutrements and ammunition; for the use of the militia of this state, bro't in some days since, by the same gentleman was after much debate, passed yesterday by the assembly, and 75,000 dollars appropriated for these objects. Mr. Matthew Clarkson, James Watson, and Benjamin Walker, are appointed commissioners for making purchases, disposing, &c. under the direction of the Governor.—The artillery, arms, &c. are to be deposited in the four great districts, and left subject to the orders of the commander in chief, until further legislative provision shall be made.

"This bill is of such consequence to the state that there is no doubt of its passing the Senate; perhaps they may not be so liberal, and perhaps they may try to put in other commissioners, not because those already nominated, are not perfectly good and proper, but because they are not of the right party.

"The Legislature have an immensity of business yet before them, and if they remain here until the public objects only are gone through, they will not rise till the middle of April."

We find by accounts from Europe and the West Indies that the present war is assuming a most ferocious aspect. The inveterate hatred that subsists between the belligerent nations is calling forth every malignant passion, and barbarism marks the progress of the contest. The unparalleled depredations on commerce by the British nation, has provoked universal indignation; and the mysterious detention of neutral vessels in the French ports, and the violent seizure and sale of their cargoes at half the first cost, by the commissioners, is a proceeding, not to be accounted for on any principle of policy. One would think that the nations at war are determined, in venting their fury at each other, to commence pirates and plunder all nations. Indeed what is their conduct but universal piracy! It seems as though they were treading back the steps of civilization and hastening to the savage state of the 9th and 10th centuries, when the sea was covered with roving corsairs from Norway and the Baltic.

Philadelphia.

Last week sailed from this port the ship La Ville de l'Orient, of twenty four nine pounders, and Monday Le Republican, of eighteen six pounders. These ships have on board upwards of 7000 barrels of flour, and are to join the fleet in Chesapeake.

A correspondent informs, (says the American Daily Advertiser) that about 18 days ago, the cargo of a prize to the Sans Pareil, was publicly sold in Charleston. The prize was freighted at New-Providence, by the British Governor, and bound to Augustine. Her cargo consisted of paint, blankets, gorgets, bracelets, and other ornaments, for Indians. Added to these, was a very considerable quantity of scalping knives, muskets, and tomahawks!
