

posts from Landrecies to Bouchain. Their aim was to make themselves masters of the wood of Mormal. In this view they attacked with a superior force the village of Ors, above Landrecies, passed the Sambre near this place, as well as near Landrecies, and attacked with about 12 or 14,000 men the abatis before the village of Pommeretuil, occupied by the Austrian regiment of Brechenville. This regiment was, by such a superiority of numbers, forced to fall back, and to abandon the abatis and the village. During its retreat, the enemy's horse made an attempt to fall upon the regiment; but the Austrian regiment of Royal Allemaud attacked them with so much gallantry, that they were thrown into confusion, lost about 50 horses, and were obliged to give up their attempt. The two corps cannonaded each other till one o'clock. At this time, some reinforcements having arrived under the orders of General Kray, our troops were immediately ordered to re-attack the village, as well as the abatis. The regiment of Brechenville attacked in front, whilst General Kray was turning the village;—which manœuvre, executed with equal bravery and skill, succeeded so well, that the enemy were obliged to abandon the village, as well as the abatis; with the loss of five pieces of cannon, and a great number of men. The French left 540 men dead on the field, besides about double that number wounded. Our loss is 150 men killed and wounded.

NATIONAL CONVENTION.

7 Germinal, March 27.

Barrere—"It has been found that the Revolutionary army is a dangerous institution, on account of its being more immediately within the army of the General of it. It resembles the power of Cromwell; or the usurped power of a Senate—You want neither Pretorian band nor Janizaries—The Committee of Public Safety therefore proposes you to decree—

1. That the Revolutionary Army shall be disbanded—and that the soldiers who compose it shall return to their former occupations, surrendering first to the Republic their arms and equipage.
2. Their pay shall be continued to the first of Floreal (20th April.)
3. Such soldiers of this army as wish still to serve the Republic shall be incorporated into the other armies.
4. No alteration is intended to be made in the Artillery belonging to this army. The Executive Council, however, shall not be able to make any disposition in any one of these corps of artillery, without an order from the Committee of Public Safety. Decreed.

LONDON, April 5.

The King of Naples has lately communicated to the Sicilian nobility, that the augmentation of his army, for the present campaign, will consist of 19,000 men, and that the expenses of maintaining that corps will amount to 163,000 ducats; the barons, the nobility, and other rich land holders, therefore, were required to contribute monthly the sum of 120,000 ducats, the rest of which expenses will be paid out of the King's treasury.

The banking-house of De la Rue and Co. at Genoa, has lately opened a loan for the King of Sweden, at 5 per cent. interest.

Mrs. Jordan dines three times a week with the Duke of Clarence at St. James's Palace. Whenever she visits there, she is attended by her Maid of Honour, and the Nursery attendants of the young prince, in a second coach.

The situation of Paris is tranquil, and the discovery and destruction of the conspiracy seem to have produced on the part of the People an unanimous determination to support the National Convention.

UNITED STATES.

LEXINGTON, (Ken.) May 3.

Court of Oyer and Terminer.

On Monday last came on the trial of Wm. Cox, of Madison county, for passing counterfeit bills of the bank of North America. His trial continued two days, and on the third he received sentence of death—the time set for his execution is the 10th day of June.

By a letter from a gentleman in Botetourt county to his friend in Staunton, we learn that Mr. Leitwich, a deputy sheriff of Wythe county, was lately murdered.

AUGUSTA, (Geo.) May 10.

An express arrived in town on Tuesday last from Brig. Gen. Clarke to his excellency the Governor, giving information, that a party of Indians (supposed to be Cherokees or Upper Creeks) about 50 in number came into the frontier settlements of Franklin county, and stole a number of horses. Lieut. Hay, stationed at the high shoals of Appalachee, pursuing their trail with 18 dragoons was drawn into their ambuscade, himself & two of his men fell, and another dangerously wounded—the Indians went off with their booty.

Does this accord with the terms of peace spoken of by the Indian agent.

We are informed by Capt. Bonier, of Lt. Col. Runnel's regiment Hancock county, that on the 1st of May, Capt. McKenzie, of said regiment, had a muster of his company, two miles from Fort Fidius, to draft men for the frontier service, where Major Wooten of said regiment attended—That 25 soldiers of the federal garrison came to said muster ground—that a disturbance ensued, and that the said Major was killed by an unlucky blow on the head, given by one of the soldiers from that garrison; and that the said soldier was delivered up to the civil authority, and confined in McKenzie's Block house.

The performances at the Theatre this evening, are for the Benefit of Mrs. WARRELL—The comic opera of Lionel and Clarissa, will afford a fine opportunity for the display of those vocal powers which Mrs. Warrell possesses in so eminent a degree. This Lady is a pupil of the British Nobles—a circumstance which scarcely need be mentioned, when her style and manner of singing and playing, always true to nature, are considered—Ever solicitous to merit approbation, we doubt not Mrs. Warrell will this evening experience the beneficence of a crowded house.

The life of J. P. Briffot, translated from the French, written by himself—is published in London.

Lord Hawkebury in a speech the 3d of April in the House of Lords on the "naval trade and commerce" of Great Britain says—"That the ships fitted out for privateering the last war, in the port of Liverpool alone, had a greater number of men, than all the ships fitted out in the reign of Q. Elizabeth against the Spanish Armada—that the strength of Great Britain from these sources in the reign of George the first, was barely a fourth of what it is at present—and that the number of failors in merchant ships, now in Great Britain, only, amounted to upwards of 116,000 men."

Great ferments says the London Morning Chronicle, subsist in different parts of Poland, and nothing but the presence of an immense Russian army keeps the people of Warsaw quiet.—The same paper says—"It is now perfectly understood, and even acknowledged, that the king of Prussia has withdrawn himself as a principal from the war. He has done this upon an arrangement, the basis of which is, that if the French do not attack Germany, he shall not attack France, nor attempt to dictate to them in any way with regard to the settlement of their constitution.

Dispatches from Berlin announce that a negotiation is begun fortaking into British pay their troops, by which Britain is to be saddled with the expence of an army of 30,000 Prussians.

SALEM, May 27.

Capt. George Crowninshield, jun. arrived here, last week, from Calcutta, which he left last December. He confirms the accounts we have had, of the great success of the French privateers in that quarter. The enthusiasm which actuates the French in Europe, operates upon them as powerfully in Asia; their privateers make no calculations on the inequality of force, but attack and conquer a la mode de la revolution. A Dutch Indiaman of 40 guns was taken by a small privateer brig—the men throwing themselves into the water, and swimming to the ship with their cutlasses in their mouths, and boarding her on all quarters. One privateer of the Ile of France arrived with a large sum of ransom money for several vessels she had taken, and besides had ordered 21 prizes into port. A private expedition had gone from the Ile of France against Batavia, the result of which was not known. The inhabitants of the Ile of France were apprehensive of a visit, in their turn, from the English, and were preparing to receive them courteously. Great natural obstacles—vast quantities of ordnance—a powder mill in the Island—forges for heating shot—and men burning with patriotism and military ardor—such were their means of defence.

Capt. Crowninshield left at Calcutta, Capt. Chapman of Boston. At the Ile of France, Capt. Lewis, in the Pigou, of Philadelphia; Capt. Page, in the Betsy, of Providence; Capt. Campbell, in the Cleopatra, for Boston, and Capt. Rich, in the Union, for do. Mr. Hewes, supercargo. At St. Helena, ship Dispatch, Capt. Newell, for Philadelphia.—At the Cape of Good Hope, an English squadron of 5 sail of two-deckers, destined against the Ile of France.

NEWARK, May 28.

On Friday last arrived in this town, a gentleman immediately from New-Orleans, who descended the rivers Ohio and Mississippi to that place as late as March last, who informs that a body of Gen. Clark's party, to the number of 21, had collected at the mouth of Cumberland river, allotted as the place of rendezvous; their intentions were, when a sufficient number should have collected, to proceed to Louisiana, for the purpose of attacking that place, as has been mentioned in former accounts: but a sufficient number for this purpose not having been collected, and Clark not complying with his promise, viz. to compensate them for their services, they determined to stop detain and plunder, all boats that should be found passing the river; this gentleman having been previously informed of their intentions, by using every precaution passed them, in the night, unperceived, and proceeded on to Lance le Grace, on the Mississippi, (a Spanish settlement) where he gave information to the commandant of the designs of those ruffians. He immediately dispatched a party of Chickasaw Indians, who fell upon them, killed three, wounded four and dispersed the remainder, as he was informed by a gentleman who saw the affray, shortly after at New-Orleans.
