The LYCEUM, for free Debate, In the College-Hall.

On Wednesday Evening next the 11th January, 1797, the following question will be debated. (The Chair to be taken at seven o'clock.) "Is the traffic in and holding of slaves consistent with humanity, morality, liberty, or policy; or disgraceful to any nation that sanctions or tolerates it."

The question of last Wednesday on the establishment of a National University, was debated by a numerous and respectable company, and decided in the negative; only five in the affirmative.

The Trustees of the University have been pleased to favor this institution with the use of the College-Hall; and Mr. FENNEL in the same liberal spirit, giving the use of the accommodations provided for his Lectures; the managers of the Lyceum think it proper thus publicly to acknowledge their respective sense of this liberality thus publicly. Additional fires shall be provided in the Hall during the remainder of the cold season, and ladies and gentlemen coming early may be accommodated with comfortable seats. The managers finding the receipts of the first evening exceed their expenditures, think it proper to notify, that the surplus of that and every future evening, will be applied to some useful, public, or charitable purpose. Admittance for Ladies & Gentlemen 1-8th of a dollar. Jan. 6.
