"WILLIAM PENN, the great legislator of the Quakers, (in Pennfylvinia) had the success of a conqueror, in establishing and defending his colony, among savage tribes, without ever drawing the sword; the goodness of the most benevolent rulers, in treating his subjects as his own children; and the tenderates of an universal father, who opened his arms to all mankind without distinction of sect or party. In his Republic it was not his religious creed, but personal merit, that emittled every member of society to the protection and emolument of the State."
