After enumerating all the laws relative to the Bourbon family, he spoke of the wretched fituation of the two petitioners, and of their submission to the laws of the republic during the revolu-tion; and concluded by moving, "that the fequestration should be taken off from their effects; that the free dispositions of them and the rights of citizenship should be granted to the petitioners." This motion was almost unanimously adopted.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 28 Yesterday the Chevalier D'Yrujo returned to this city from his tour to the East-

We are happy to learn that the Chevalier was received with the utmost respect, and treated with every politeness and hospitality by all ranks of people at Boston, Portsmouth, and at every town he visited. [Argus.]

A correspondent, who has just returned from the country, was surprised to hear the the dreadful ravages made by the Yellow Fever in the city of New-York. He finds with extreme pleasure that the city, owing to the firetness of the police in keeping the streets and yards clean, was never more healthy than it is at present. It is sincerely to be wished, that every person going into the country will feel himself under a sacred and indispensable obligation to invalidate the belief of the country people with respect even to the ex-istence of the Yellow Fever at all in this city; in order to remove so powerful an objec-cause of our government. One of these un-der the signature of Americanus, who appears in a Richmond paper, has very ably develo-ped the causes of the differences between the United States and France. He has entered fully into an examination of Mr. Jefferson's conduct, which he confiders as extremely injurous to our public interests. He ascribes the hoftile afpect of the French government towards the United States, wholly to the influence of a party, of which Mr. Jefferson is a leader-in this idea he is unquestionably well founded. The arguments of the French government, in support of their measures, are evidently borrowed from the opposers of our government in America-Our own citizens, who assume the exclusive merit of being "patriots" and republicans" have supplied the French with the weapons by which our government is affailed, our trade annoy ed, and our country menaced with war.

The bold efforts of our citizens in the fouthern states, to enlighten their countrymen on their political interests, among which we notice the writings of Americanus and of Mr. Harper, as prominent instances, will be followed by very falutary effects. These efforts ought to have been made earlier, as they were in the northern states. But late as they are, they will be ufeful in preparing the public mind, either for peace or war .-The two points to be aimed at in all our political disquisitions, are, to promote Union and a fentiment of Americanism-a fentiment that fprings up in the heart and is cherished and matured by the understanding—a fenti-ment that loves public justice, and invites the respect of all nations—but disdains to receive fetters from any; whether prefented by armed foldiers, under royal authority; or by fawning hypocritical republicans, un-der pretext of friendship and alliance.

"The famous Modeste privateer is at last taken: the fast sailing frigate Fox, caught her, after a chase of eight hours, when the Modeste carried away her fore-top-mast, else she would have escaped. She had before made a fuccessful cruize against the English, and sent several of their valuable country ships to the Isle of France. It is reckoned that this privateer alone has captured property from the English in their seas to the value of above a million of dollars, and near as much more from the Dutch, Portuguese and Spaniards, at the first of the war. But all English India speaks much in praise of the conduct of the captain and officers of the Privateer Modeste; as upon all oecasions they restored private property, trunks, clothes, &c. and set all her prisoners ashore on their own coast. Their unexampled conduct to the ladies and gentlemen of the Triton English Indiamen, last year, stands high in the lift of noble actions.

"The English sleet of Indiamen, with a Died, on Wednesday evening, aged 19, convoy, sailed two days ago from Madras, Miss Ruth Hulme Fenno, eldest daughter

WASHINGTON (Penn.) Sept. 19. Commissioners on the part of the United States are about holding a treaty with the Six Nations, at Big Tree, on the Genefee river. The object is to obtain a relinquish ment of the Indian title to land in the Massachusetts preemption, the property of Robert Morris and others.

Robert Odlin and Alexander Crawford, apprehended at Lancaster in June last, for paffing counterfeit dollars, have received fentence, one to fuffer twelve, the other fix-teen years imprisonment to hard labor.

To the editor of the Western Telegraphe.

IN the latter part of the month of July I was in the Upper and Lower Sandusky, where I saw the following prisoners, viz. In Lower Sandusky I saw a boy, about 16 years of age, of the name of Hampton Northnp. He was taken out of the cornfields above the mouth of Big Kenhaway, upon the Ohio, and is now with the Wyndot nation:—The family he lives with, of the Hedge-Hog tribe, was about to move to a Wyndot town, five miles above the Upper Sandusky, where the said boy may be had at any time. He can talk but little English, and it was with much difficulty I got to snow his name and where he was taken .-Should this boy have any friends, it is my advice to them to go after him as foon as possible, for should he stay there a few years it will be impossible to prevail on him to leave the Indians.

At Upper Sandusky I saw a young man of the name of Armstrong, who told me he had been taken from near Pittsburgh, and as well as I can recollect, he told me he had been with the Indians five years; he speaks very good English. After considerable considerable conversation with him, I told him I would try to find out his people and let them know he was alive; at this he appeared not to be well pleased; I asked him several questions afterwards, but he would talk not thing but Indian; when I came away, I ask ed him if he had any word to fend to his people; he answered no, in a very furly man-

It grieved me to fee him fo much of a savage; he is a handsome young man and of a beautiful countenance, about 5 feet 8 inches high, and remarkably active.

PITTSBURGH, September 23.

A few days ago, a white man by the name of Clerk, was killed by an Indian on Beaver Creek. The circumstances, as far as we can collect, are—That he was going into the country with two Indians who were drunk, and it is supposed a quarrel must have taken place, as Clerk was found dead under a tree with a knife flicking in his fide, known to belong to one of the Indians. The Indians have been taken and are now confined in the gaol of this

Nothing that the poor, despised bard of the Time-Piece is capable of saying, could possibly excite anger—nor, in the present in-stance, any notice, had not a salsehood from his paper been transferred into the Aurora. The author of the paragraph in which "tar and feathers" are spoken of, (if he means to apply this infinuation to the person mentioned in the paragraph) is a liar and a scoun-drel—Nor do I find him deserving of much better epithets who defiguedly gives currency to a known falsehood.
