[PER THE LATE ARRIVALS FROM CORR.]

LONDON, Sept. t to 9.

His majesty, by the advice of his prive council, has been pleased to order the sollowing declaration to be issued. The unjust aggressions of the persons exercising the governments of those parts of Italy, to which the order of Council refers, demand that they should be treated as evenies of this

At the Court at St. James's, the 29th o

August. '98, present, the King's most excellent majesty in Council.

Whereas, by the unjust aggression of the persons exercising the powers of government in France, now in hostility with his majesty, many parts of Italy have been forcibly taken possessions, and the ancient governments erected under the influence of their councils, for the purpose of aiding more effectually their defigns against the common interests of Europe, and specially for the profe-cution of their hostile intentions against the commerce. navigation, and property of his majetty's faithful fubjects:—And whereas divers acts, injurious to the just rights of his majetly and to the interests of these kingdoms, have in consequence been committed; his majesty is pleased to declare (by and with the advice of his privy council), that such parts of the coasts of the Mediterranean as are occupied by the arms of the faid perfons exercifing the powers of government in France, or are subject to the government of persons acting notoriously under their influence and direction, and especially the coasts and ports of Genoa and those of the territory of the Pope, shall be considered as in a state of hostility with his majesty; and all his majesty's subjects and others are required to treat and consider the inhabitants and subjects thereof as his majesty's enemies.

W. FAWKENER.

There is redon to believe that our Iquadron in the Mediterranean, and the reinforcements which government intends to fend to that uarter, will give us such a preponderanc in those seas, as to strike awe into our eneries, and inspire our friends with confidence. The above measure, therefore, combines with the preparations made by the king o Nayles to be on his guard against any survise which may be attempted by his persidous ally, will open ports to our ships, where they may take shelter or get fresh provisions. It will also probably prevent the second armament, now fitting out at Toulon, from being able to join the first; and thus intercept the latter from returning to port from whence it sailed.

The French papers say, that the sluices of the Texel are in a most alarming condition, and that there prevails at present a with confidence. The above measure, there-tion, and that there prevails at present a strong fermentation amongst the inhabitants of Zealand, the coasts of which are threatened by the English with an immediate de-inft. at Dover, on board of which was major general Coote, accompanied by Mr. Jarvis, furgeon of Margaie, and major general England. They have parole permission from the Directory to remain three menths in Alexandria." ngland, then to return and deliver themfelves up as prisoners of war in France. They less the citadel of Lise on the 31st ult. at which time the officers and men of the artillery, of the datachment of guards, of the 23d and 49th regiment of foot, as well as the officers and men of his majesty's ficit forms a had omen for the ways and navy, were in good health. The greater part of those wounded at Oftend are reco-veres, and have joined their respective corps.

The minister of the French marine has addressed a letter to the naval commanders in the several ports of France, on the subject of the loss of la Sensible man of war, in which he makes use of the following lan guage:

"It is time that the navy should know, that it is not enough to justify the loss of a ship, that it surrenders to superior force; it is necessary that a long, and obstinate, and a terrible resistance should all viate the forrow of a defeat, and soften the regret of the republic. The executive directory will not fuffer themselves to be seduced by any confideration repugnant to this determination, which I now communicate to you. It will give its confidence only to officers who shall deserve it by talents and courage,"

On the 17th of last month the city of Terracina, on the northern confines of Na-Terracina, on the northern confines of Naples, was taken by affault by the French and Polish troops. Four stand of colours, placed on the ramparts of citadel, were taken, but that of Naples escaped. Several of the Poles, including a major, and a great many French officers and soldiers, were killed.—

The lofs of the rebels was very confiderable.

Lord Aylmer, who is left in France among the English forces who were captured at Ostend, is a young nobleman of great worth and most promising talents, and whose military ardour is likely to render him a distinguished ornament to British service.

The Bishop of Derry lately attempted to make his escape from the callle of Milaa, but having been unfuccessful, he and two affociates were put into close confinement.

The neglect of Admiral Nelson and General Buonaparte in not feading intelligence of their proceedings, has irritated the public to such a degree that nothing less will appeale them than the death of both these heroes—which accordingly has been confidently believed for fome days past. In confideration only of Nelloa's former services, Buonaparte was made to die firft. This it is to trifle with an indulgent public!

Yesterday a letter was received from an

"The whole of the Channel fleet, under the command of Admiral Lord Bridport, are at this moment in fight of the French fleet, at anchor in Brest harbour. We count with exactness twelve line of bittle ships, nine frigates, several corvettes and gunboats, at anchor; and yesterdiy asternoon we plainly discovered two sail of the line, two frigates, and a corvette, under weigh, not more than two gun shot from the headmost of our ships, which I am sorry to say, were in a place of perfect security, being protected by a range of batteries. But a still more mortifying circumstance is, that we perceive at this moment about thirty fail of merchant ressels, not more than sive fail of merchant ressels, not more than sive still security and security should be recaptured the American brig May-shower, from Lisbon to London; and also the Britannia, extra ship, from Bengal to miles from us, going into Breft, not one of which, I fear, it will be practicable either to take or destroy. The fleet at anchor shew at present re inclination to come out and at prefent no inclination to come out and meet us. We have however, certain information, that an expedition had been fitted out for Ireland, confiding of four fail of the line and fix frigates; and I have no doubt of the fhips which we faw under weigh yefterday being intended to form a part of this force. It is with regret I add, that great apprehenfions are entertained of their having the goals of the pricht through the passage of Raz. Some unpleasant discoveries respecting the intentions of the Irishmen on board several of our ships, have lately been made; but happily their defiges, which were of a most shocking nature, were effectually frustrated by their timely detec-Tippoo Saib's cannon foundery is a very curious instance of the perfection to which the natives of India have arrived in the casting of iron and brass guns. CONSTANTINOPLE, July 27.

The news of the arrival and landing of the French army, under general Buonaparte, in Egypt, was first brought by the captain of a merchant ship with the Austrian siag.

The intelligence was received by our court and ministry with great furprise. - The French charge d'affairs, citizen Ruffin, was immediately after fent for to a conference, which for the length of time it lasted was quite unexampled, as it continued 14 hours, from before noon 'till midnight. The refrom before noon 'till midnight. The re-fult is not exactly known, but it is faid, that cirizen Ruffin, expressly declared that the expedition of Buonaparte was underta-ken exclusively against England, the most implicable enemy of France, and by no means against the territories of the Turkish emperor; that the directory of the French republic would hold facred the interests of republic would hold facred the interests of the Porte, and faithfully observe the existing treaties.

In the mean time, our government has issued orders that all our ships of war shall immediately be made ready for sea; and the workmen in our arlenals and dock-yards are considerably increased; and orders have been fent to all the coasts of our European and Afiatic territories to recruit our navy with failors, and even press such as shall refuse to serve the state at this critical time.
