Extract of a letter from Amsterdam,

⁴ According to the lateft advices from Bruffels, the infurgents have made their ef-cape from that city. If they had not left the place, it was intended to have fet fire to it. One fide of the city was overflowed by the Deimer, and as the French troops had not Denner, and as the French troops had not polletifion of this poft, they found means to get off by wading through the water, on which occalion feveral hundred were drown-ed. The garrifon of Maeftricht took from the infurgents 2 field pieces and a ftand of colors. The remainder of the rebels of Dieft are wholly deftroyed. The rebels car-ried to France are to be fent to America. In the territory of Luxemburg fkirmifhes take place daily, and much blood is fpilt on both fides.
