LESBURG, March 14.

THE LYON, NO QUADRUPED! On Tuelday evening last arrived in town from Philadelphia, General STEPHENS THOMPSON MASON, accompanied by his most valuable friend the VERMONT. LYON, of SPITTING memory. Immediately on his arrival he received the adorations of all the DEMOCRATS, of our country, who were not averse to partake of his saliva, who were not averse to partake of his saliva, and the only thing wanting, to render the scene completely awful was the presence of Logan and Calender. The difference between the African and Vermont Lions is very considerable, the latter, tho' no quadruped, appears to be far the most beastly, while he pessesses the sanguinary disposition, he is entirely desistue of all the n ble qualities of the former. What the object of our of the former. What the object of our blabbing fenator is in receiving into his house such despicable beings as a Calender and a Lyon appears mysterious, unless they are to receive some of the commissions that were probably received at Charleston in the tubs, from the French directory

NEW-LONDON, March 20. Capt. Van Deurson informs that Mr. Robinson, the officer sent by captain Truxton to Guadaloupe, Bassaterre, to negotiate an exchange of prisoners, on landing was obliged to draw his sword to defend himself from infult. A file of foldiers, however, foon arrived for his protection. Desforneaux being at Point Petre; horses and a guard were furnished Mr. R. to conduct him there. Mr. Robinson has returned, and the French prisoners were all fent to Guada-loupe, before captain V. left St. Kitts; ex-cepting about forty Danes, Swedes, &c. who Captain Vandeurson brought dispatches from captain Truxton, which were this morning fent on to Philadelphia by express.

Arrived, ship Concord, Van Deurson, 12 lays from St. Thomas's; two days before he left St. Thomas's, a French privateer brig chaced on shore a brig from S. Carolina, on the west end of St. Thomas's. Cam through the passage in company with the Montezuma, whom he left in chace of a brig, which he took for the French cruifer that run the brig a shore on St. Thomas's.

Captain Van Deursen informs, that the Infurgente was all compleat for fea, when he eft. St. Kitts, which was on the first of March, and commodore Truxton informed him that he intended the should fail on a cruise in one week; they were recruiting men for the Insurgente at St. Thomas's when he left there.

BOSTON, March 16. The schooner Mary, capt. Watkins, arrived yesterday from Bourdeaux;—passage of days. Doctor Timothy Green came passage. enger in her.

From the length of the passage political news cannot be expected. We have been favored with Paris papers to 10th Frimaire, [about the first of December] and Bourdeaux Commercial Advertisers to the 5th Decemper. They contain little on subjects wor hy observation.

By this arrival we learn-that notwithstanding the French Directory enforces all its mandates with violence, and the public its mandates with violence, and the public voice is obliged to take any pitch given it, the general opinion is opposed to an open war with the United States; while at the same time, a description of subjects are very willing to share the American property which daily arrives at Bourdeaux, and which is readily pronounced bon prise. To the disgrace of the American name, many of our unworthy countrymen, are partakers in this nesarious brigandage. Amongst them we have heard of a Randall, a Savage, &c. whose conduct would appear as black as Erebus, if even placed in contact with the most attrocious enormities of the licensed plunderers of ous enormities of the licenfed plunderers of the coast of Rarbary.

NATIONAL ETHICS.

THERE are many influential men in THERE are many influential men in America who possess much of the present French philosophy; men who are inimical to the Christian religion, and to the most important moral obligations, and rules of society which it imposes; some of whom are atheists, and wish to unbridle every passion; to diffolve the bonds which hold community and introduce every thing unchafte, corrupt and devilifh .- Others have prophefied, expected and affilted with all the weapons of farcasm, ridicule & sophistry, the speedy distruction of Christianity. There is an unfeeling feeling in insidels to make all of their opinion; to deprive men of a solace and comfort, which they can see gives cheerfulness to their prosperity, and a balm to their afflictions. This unjustifiable inclination is predominant among the advocates of French Philosophy. The introduction of brothrels would be to them a happy inflitute for the divine obligations of the marriage covenant. They would be satisfied were the ministers of the gospel, stage actors; and the temples of God converted to playhouses of indelicate and corrupt manners, or a rendezvous for gamblers, tiplers, and the promiscuous frui-tion of abandoned profitutes; a frolicking decade, instead of the sabbath, and eternal fleep, for a happy immortality.

We wish not to impress the idea that all the Jacobins are men of this class; but that the larger part of the leading characters are fuch. The chief ruler among them has long borne fuch a character.

We would demand of fuch men what can be their obsect. The language of their hearts will respond—am ition, such as moved the spirit of our Grand Parent, previous to his sall from Heaven, urges us on to deeds of hellish consequence and dreadful fame. Let them ask themselves a question, always use ful in revolutions of religion as well as go-vernment: CUIBONO? Whose good will be advanced ? Truth will answer, the good of none, not even of yourfelves. We cannot but regret there should be, as certainly there are, many men of respectability for probity and understanding, who unwittingly fupport a party, the confequence of whose politics & opinions they themselves detest. Some of them have a dislike to the conflitution; but the larger part a jealoufy, virtuous when not carried to extremes, which makes them suspicious of every public officer and every measure of government. Let this jealousy be carefully watched, less it carry them to lengths of which they may have afterwards cause of bitter repentance,

From the Farmer's Weekly Museum.

THE ENVOY'S CRITERION No. II. THE means, employed to awaken our distinguished Envey from his political lethargy, must be highly gratifying to every friend of honour and patriotism; and to every mind that views with contempt, a voluntary subject of Gallic chicanery and imposition. The mind of Mr. G. as was manifelt from the cradulity and pridity with which from the credulity and avidity, with which he received professions of the next glaring inconsistency, never experienced a single humiliating emotion, till his fensibility received a shock from the consideration of personal resentment and personal indignity. It was then that his mind became first susceptible of other ideas, than the volatile suggestions of vanity, aided by the fawning complaifance and grateful infinuations of defigning fycophants. It was then that he was brought to consider the source of his diplomatic authority deserving of higher consideration than his character. It was then, in short that a political regeneration began its work, and left our folitary Envoy no longer in a fuitable habit to "dream of things impos.

Although the renovating shock must have been too violent to leave him at first with the faculties of reasoning; on the return of cool restection, the simple progress of analogy would lead him to a consideration of the original contempt shewn him in conjunction with his colleagues when personal prejudices rendered him more conspicuous, than the diplomatic feal of his country!

The motives of this extraordinary politician, whatever may be his pretentions, are fo clearly demonstrated in his line of conduct as to preclude the necessity of an explanation A popular name must be singularly grateful to one so captivated with

whose praise defames, as though a fool should mean
By spitting on your face to make it clean.

To be the sole agent of softening the affections of the most formidable power the world had exhibited toward an offending name of the solution of the most solution. tion, whose candid, and liberal proposals, could merit no return but " refign your anthority, and deliver your purse" must be a deed of immortal honor; And the memory of the author must be cherished with the most lively emotions of gratitude, when his honourable bones, no longer active in the fervice of his country, should take up their peaceful abode in dull cold marble.

But our fagacious Env y has imagined the genius of his country unable to fathom the depths of his profound understanding; and trace the clue of politics that exalted him to the fole dignity of the Talleyrand negociation; he has, therefore, through the medium of the Secretary of State, in a learned and elaborate communication, bid his countrymen " be filent that," they " may hear, and give ear that" they " may understand." A critical review of this comnunication, with further remarks on the character therein depicted, shall appear in future numbers.

VINES.

To the Gentlemen of Philadelphia. AMONGST fruit trees, the superiority of the vine is univerfally acknowledged, and the reason why there are so few, and why those few bear so little fruit, is, that the plants are not properly cultivated.

That part of the culture of the vine which requires most experience and most care, is the pruning, for which the feason is now arrived. The subscriber, who has to remain some days in the city, will with pleafure prune the vines (gratis) of any gentle-man who will accept of his fervices, and who will fend his address to him at Mr. Moutea's, No. 27, Sugar alley. — His long experience in the culture of the vine, and the extraordinary fuccels of his vineyard at SPRING MILL, must be imagines, be a sufficient assorance, that this inestima-ble plant can never suffer under his hands. LEWIS JOCKY.

Philadelphia, 20th March, 1799.

P. S. Mr. Jocky requests the several printers to give the above a place in their gazettes; and, though its inferrion can tend to the benefit of their customers alone, he will look upon it as a favour, which he shall be happy to repay by a bottle of his old American Wine, if they will honor him with a vifit at Spring Mill, 13 miles from Philadelphia, on the Ridge Road.

To all whom it may consern.

PETERSBURGH, November 15. The Emperor Paul I. immediately after his accession to the Throne renounced the Alliance with the Powers at war with France by the advice of Prince Karakin, whom he appointed his Minister. Having since been succeeded in the office of Vice-Chancellor, which is the fecond station in the Empire, by M. de Kotstubey, nephew of the Chancel. lor Prince Bedborodsko, there was an immediate change in the political fystem of the count. It was M. de Kotstubey, who during his Embassy at Constantinople made the basis of the Treaty between Russia and the Porte. The first change was followed by many others both in the Administration ind the Army. The Corps of General Rosemberg entered Germany to ferve as anxiliaries against the French it is composed of two columns, each confisting of two divisions. The first column and division, commanded by Lieucenant-General Levow, coufifts of 6,380 Infantry and 3-234 Cavalry. The first division of the second column has 6,307 Foot and 2.787 Horse, is under the com Lieutenant-General Paul Swelkowski, having Brigadier Tirlow under him. He also leads the second division, with which are the Majors General Kodschin and Sercikowski; that is composed of 5,145 Infantry, and 3,072 Cavalry—the whole of the four divisions amounting to 23 462 Foot and 12,287 Horse. In this army are a great number of Cossacks, who from the advan-

The Court Gazette has published the ordor issued to the Army by the Emperor previous to its march. His Majesty expresses, to the Colonels of the Regiment and the Commandants of Grenadier Battalions, "his great satisfaction and acknowledgment of the order order that reigns in this corps; and to the foldiers, convinced of their invio-lable fidelity, their zeal and bravery, he already anticipates those heroic actions by which they will fignalize themselves in the annihilation of those who are the enemies of eligion, as well as of humanity in general."
