From the FARMER'S WEEKLY MUSEUM.

The plaintive and affected file of CHARLOTTE The plaintive and affected stile of CHARLOTTE SMITH is samiliar, it is supposed, to most readers. Criticism has frowned upon the verbose grief of a sobbingloottes, and wit has laughed at "the derest ed haviour of her wisage," and "the trappings and suits of her woe." We insert the following as a pleasant introduction to an attack from the bemade upon the above sighing sounctieer from the Shop of Colon and Spondee.)

SONNETS, Attempted in the manner of "Contemporary Writers."

PENSIVE, at eve, on the hard world I mus'd, And my poor heart was fad: fo at the moon I gazed—and figh'd, and figh'd !—for, ah! how Eve darkens into night. Mine eye peru, 'd With fearful vacancy, the dampy grafs, Which wept and glitter'd in the paly ray: And I did panfe me on my lonely way, And mus'd me on those wretched ones, who pa O'er the black heath of forrow. But alas! Most of myself I thought! when it best, That the sooth spirit of the brezzy wood Breath'd in mine ear—"All this is very well; But much of one thing is for no thing good." Ah! my poor heart's inexplicable swell!

To SIMPLICITY.

To SIMPLICITY.

O! I do love thee, meek Simplicity!

For of thy lays the lulling fimplenefs
Goes to my heart, and foothes each finall distress, Distress the' small, yet happy great to me!

'Fis true, on lady Fortune's gentless pad I amble on; yet, the' I know not why,
So fad I am! but should a friend and I
Grow cooland mif, O! I am very sad!
And then with sonnets and with sympathy
My dreamy beform's mystic woes I pall;
Now of my salfe friend plainty plaintively,
Now raving at mankind in general;
But whether sad or fierce, 'cis simple all,
All very simple meck SIMPLICITY!

PURSUITS OF LITERATURE.

" Whoever indeed flands forward at fuch a perilous period as the prefent, with bold-ness, confidence, and an honest intention in the public fervice, with a name or without a name, known or unknown, is furely worthy of some regard, and I should think, of kindness. But when a gentlemen (without any interest, but that of every other subject in the country,) has devoted his time, fortune, and ability in the hope of being useful, it is but a common cause to rescue bis memory from the gripe of injustice, and the fanga of malignity. When he has defended THE TRIPLE FORTRESS of religion, morality, and literature, from its foundation to the topmost battlements, must be be left on the field without the common honours of a common foldier? Because a few trumpery poetasters, half critics, jugglers in science, or indecent commentators are held forth and configned to ridicule or contempt, as they have respectively descrived, must take work on the Pursuits of Literature be degraded and depreciated? I trust not. The public and depreciated? I trust not. The public will never suffer such impotence and dulness, such under conjurors and journeymen astrologers, the Sidrophels and Wachums of the day, to read backward for them the great page of Literature, and declare the interpretation of it. When the sun is high in the heavens, who asks for subsidiary light?

"Literature indeed, at this hour, can hardly be divided from the principles of political safety. Satire also has a character, which she was never before called upon to which she was never before called upon to assume. Sensum calest demissum traxit ab arce! She must now to operate with the other guardians, and watchful powers of the state in her degree.

"Such an union is now demanded of the minds, the talents, and fortunes, of the fouls and bodies, of all the inhabitants of Great Britain, as never before entered into the hearts of Englishmen to conceive. We must be preserved from the tyranny and power of France; from all her principles, and from all her arms, open or concealed, mental, moral, or political. I have pride and satisfaction in seeing, and feeling that we are all so convinced. We know we must die or defend ourselves from THE MON-TROUS REPUBLICK. Inflat terribilis vivis; morientibus hæres "Nulla quies : oritur prædå cessante libido ;

"Divitibusque dies, et nox metuenda maritis; "Emicat ad nutum stricto mucrons minister! If we confider it from the commencement, is as threatened, devoted, and given over all der and final death. Broon is the cement of the Republic of France.

"Some victims have bled for principle, others for example, some for funeral pomp, and some for a civic feast. Blood must flow. Each faction has delivered over its predeces fors to death. The Priests of Reason hold their rites in the field of Mars. First, iniced, they foothe awhile their favageness with fong and festival. But these are the with long and retival. But those are the presudes of fanguinary cruelty; the stops and paules of their war-symphonies. With their laures and cypress branches bound together and dipped in blood, they advance to the altar, and perform their abhorred suffration. The manes of all that is brave, and ill that is ferocious, are invoked in their demodratick incantations to reafon and her

Savis opus est, et fortibus umbris; Ipsa facit manes; Hominum mons omnie IN USU EST.

" On the blood of their murdered monarch they have Iworn hatred to tyranny and they have established a directory. On the blood of innocence and virginity they have Iworn to reflore, and to protect the female dignity; and they have annulled the bond of marriage, and the charities of confanguinity. On the blood of their generals streaming on the seaffold, and on the blood of armies partially devoted by other generals in the day of battle, they have fworn to give honor, and encouragement to the defenders of the republic. Such are their decrees: fuch are their oaths registered in blood. All is contradiction with them, yet all is in action. Principles of the moment, principles of reslection, principles of desolation, principles of safety, all have had their hour; all have risen and fallen. Banishment and deporta-tion have now superceded the axe of the guillo-tine, and the sabre of rustian massacre. How long?—All changes with them: all, but the fixed luft of plunder, and aggrandize-ment, and the rooted hatred to the Christian ment, and the rooted hatred to the Christian Religion. To every government, and to every establishment in Europe they apply but one axiom, "whatever is, is wrone!"

"Whoever strives to refise such an advertary upon principle and reflection, with eloquence, or wisdom, or learning, in the robes of state, or in the vestments of religion or law, with arms in his graip, or with well directed opulence, by counsel, by precept, or by example, must be numbered among the FRIENDS OF MAN.

"I am most serious in my words, and "I am most ferious in my words, and earnest in my thoughts. I have been in-structed by these great events, to consider all actions as of some weight, and that nothing is now to be neglected, as wholly unimport-ant. If the efforts of the united genius, ant. If the efforts of the united genius, learning, poetry, and eloquence of a country can be directed with strength and discretion, in their proper and natural coarses, we may yet have considence. Enterprizes of great pith and monent will succeed, and a righteous security may be established. Consider for a moment what is the hope of bad men.

The orator of Athens has declared 'Their hope of fafety is placed IN THE EXCESS OF THEIR WICKEDNESS, AND INIQUITY A-LONE.' The haunts, and caves, and tene ments, and feulking huts of fophistry, awar-chy, rebellion, democracy and jacobinism-will at length be fully revealed, and finally, levelled and ruined. When the fountains of hallowed fire are once opened, and flowing with liquid purity in the filence of the night, the objects which darkness would conceal, are not only discovered, but destroyed.

"The force of France is indeed formidable, but the transfer of the second of the le ; but HER PRINCIPLES, wherever the take root, and grow, and bear, are alone invincible. If we think otherwise, I fear we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not with us. France invites every European government to suicide. Her high priest (Voltaire) told her long ago, that no government could perish but by its own hand, and by its own confeat to die. The government of Great Britain has given no such consent. Her King, her Nobles, her Commons, her Senators, her Statesmen, her Lawyers, her Artists, her Merchants, her Citizens, her Peafants, all maintain and declare with one voice, and with arms in their hands, "GREAT BRITAIN HAS GIVEN NO SUCH CONSE

she has not lifted her arms against herself: she has not lifted her arms against herself: she is willing and desirous to live. She has humbled herself before God the Judge of all, through the Great Mediator of humanity. She knows her strength, and has felt her infirmity; she is carriest for her preservation from her foes within and without; and having done all, and still committing herself, and her cause, to him who judgeth righteously, she hopes yet to stand.

"Whether the end of all things may be at hand; and what the accrees of Eternal Power, Wisdom, Justice, and Goodness may intend in the last refort, we acknowledge to be inscrutable. But we trust, it cannot be deemed an unwarrantable presumption, to suggest or to affirm, that, if the attributes of God are true; if man is bis creature, and governed by bis laws; the opposers of this overbearing, desolating, impious, and universal. Ityranny must be justified Before Him. As to us the inhabitants of Great Britain, if we would exist at all, we must be preserved as we are a few according. Britain, if we would exist at all, we must be preserved as WE ARE. Our constitu-tion is not lost; and the ramparts we have raised around it, will maintain it entire. Our liberties are supported equally against arbitrary power, and against the engines of licentiousness and democracy. Upon us the destiny of Europe, and perhaps of the whole civilized world, ultimately depends. It seems placed in our hands: a fearful and an awful charge.

Si quidquam mutare velis; UNOQUE SUB ICTU. STAT GENUS HUMANUM!"
