JAMES REED, Esq. to be the Company's resident at Canton.

COMMUNICATIONS.

It is submitted to the citizens of Philadelphia, whether the outrage lately committed, does not point out the necessity of some immediate measures for the protection of our persons, from the abuse and influence of the banditti with which our city is infested.—The patriotic citizens who march to Northampton, look for the safety of their parents, wives and children at the hand of those who remain behind.

It is not said that Alexander James Dallas, private councillor of the Governor, will be appointed paymaster to the army in this march against insurrection.—The Governor's co-operation is not yet requested.

What will the citizens of Philadelphia yet suffer ere they rouse from their lethargy to a sense of the danger which threatens them? Their Temples of worship are profaned; their fellow citizens threatened, beaten, assassinated; even their houses, which the law professes to hold sacred, afford them no protection. And by whom are these enormities committed? For shame Philadelphians! Be not thus awed by a handful of foreign renegades. Apprehend them, and let them be subjected to the penalties of the law.

One of the fellows who made the assault on the Editor of the Philadelphia Gazette, has been discovered; and proves to be no less a character than the pilfering fabricator of Gazettes, &c.—the same whom Dr. Morfe detected in an attempt to palm on the public, as the fruits of his own labor and ingenuity, the scientific researches of another man!

A citizen proposes that, in the event of the volunteer corps being ordered to quell the insurrection at Northampton, an armed association should be immediately formed to protect the city against the United Irishmen and other freemasons, who are still tolerated among us.

The late extraordinary attack upon Mr. Brown, is an occurrence which ought to bring our citizens to reflect upon their real situation. It is an occurrence which must prove beyond a doubt, if proof be still necessary, that there exists in the midst of us, a combination of men, linked together by the most flagitious principles, and in pursuit of the vilest and most abandoned purposes. Though the proofs which have already been presented to us, are amply sufficient to render this manifest, they appear to have been strangely disregarded by those whose interests are most nearly concerned in the discovery. One would imagine that the scenes which Ireland, within a twelvemonth past, has exhibited, in consequence of the principles and practices of the United Irishmen, would chill with horror our citizens, when they know that within the bosom of their country are contained many of the persons who have been agents, distinguished agents too, in these dreadful transactions. If barely a view of these scenes is calculated to excite such sentiments, what must be our feelings when we see them actually begun to be put in practice among us?—When we see these very persons openly violating our laws; when, in defiance of the principles of order and morality, we see them profaning the Sabbath with violence and outrage, and at last, inflicting a most atrocious injury upon one of our fellow-citizens, is it not time for us to be alarmed, and to be upon our guard against their future operations?—Will any one have the folly to imagine that an United Irishman, by quitting his country, forsakes the detestable principles he has there put in practice? If any one should think so, let him look not barely upon the general tenor of their conduct, but upon the open avowal they have made of their undeviating adherence to them. Let him look over the toasts they have drunk upon St. Patrick's day, and he will see that the reluctance they have met with, and the victory that has been obtained over them in the theatre where they first commenced the exhibition of those principles, has only served to rivet them more closely in their hearts.—their disappointment has only served to give them additional asperity and rancour. If them, as appears from their conduct, they are only waiting for opportunities to practice upon those principles in this country, what is our security that we shall not here have a counterpart of what has been passing in Ireland.—With the possibility of such a most direful event hanging over us, is it not right that the people should be alarmed? is it not the duty of every one to point out to them their danger? If, after having it shewn to them, they will take no measures to guard against it, but will still continue to go on in the same stupid security they have hitherto manifested, they must themselves be responsible for the consequences that may ensue. As theirs has been the indifference and inattention, so must also the suffering be theirs.

A letter was yesterday morning received from Northampton, stating that on Monday last, Mr. Balliot, one of the collectors of the revenue, was attacked on his return from Bethlehem and severely beaten, so as to make it necessary to send to Bethlehem for a physician. The letter does not give particulars, but it was supposed that this outrage was committed by some of the insurgents.

We also learn, that a company of Light Infantry met at Lower Sooken on Monday last, but the object of the meeting was not known to our informant.

A meeting of another body of men was to be held at Milford, but for what purpose we could not learn.

From the best information we can obtain on the subject, it is probable the march of the troops from this city for Northampton, will take place about Wednesday next.—Various detachments of regular troops are ready on their march thither; these it is supposed, will from a body of about five hundred men. (A. D. A.)

A Company of Marines, under the command of Lieutenant EDWARDS, arrived in town on Monday last, from Baltimore.

Carliste, March 19, '99.
In consequence of orders received from Brigadier General William Macpherfon, I do hereby require the Cumberland County Troop of Cavalry to hold themselves in readiness, to march at a moment's warning. It is expected that every member will be completely equipped, and furnish himself with a Valeefee as soon as possible.

The Constitutional Gazette; AND Republican Courier.

The Subscriber respectfully offers to the Public, proposals for a Newspaper, under the title of the Constitutional Gazette; and Republican Courier.
It is intended to be published three times a week in the city of Philadelphia; viz. on every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening. The subscription will be five dollars per annum, half to be paid by subscribers in the city when called for. The difficulty of collecting small sums in the country, renders it necessary to advance the subscription, out of the city, to be paid in advance, or the name of a person in Philadelphia who will pay them regularly.

Although the proposed Newspaper will be of a smaller size than the unhandy sheets now generally in use, it will contain as much as the generality of the daily Gazettes. It is expected that a very small portion of it will be occupied by advertisements, which will occasion an unusual quantity of intelligence and information. It will be published in the quarto form, and regularly paged, to render it convenient for binding in volumes, to each of which an index will be attempted.

The principles intended to be supported, are those of the Federal and State Constitutions. The friends of the tranquility, peace and happiness of this country, may rely on a calm, decent and firm adherence to those valuable Republican codes. The Editor is unwilling to make large promises; but he assures his friends and the public, that he has ground to rely on important literary and political contributions from various sources. Without such an expectation, he would not have undertaken at this time, to publish a new Gazette. He believes the Press to be the noblest instrument in the command of Freemen, and he flatters himself that The Constitutional Gazette will not be found among the most exceptional, nor among the least useful.

Subscriptions are received by the different bookellers, and at the subscriber's office, No. 90, South Third street, at which place the Weekly Magazine continues to be published.
