By this Day's Wail.

NEW-YORK, April 23.

Just as our paper was preparing for prefs, a gentleman who came passenger in the ship Sutfolk, arrived yesterday evening in 42 days from Liverpool, politely furnished us with Gialgow papers to the 2d of March, and Liverpool papers to the 4th.

This gentleman informs us that the difference of the standard of the difference of the standard of the standar contents in Ireland, excepting fuch as re-lated to the proposed union between that country and England, had entirely subsided.

To a gentleman of this city we are indebted for a file of London papers, of a date anterior to those above mentioned. The lateuess of the hour at which they were received prevents our giving them a minute exami-nation. From a halty inspection we find very little of real information in them. The details which follow are from those of the Packet office, 4 o'clock.

We flop the preis to flate, that an express has just been received at lord Grenville's office, which, we are affored, brings the plea-fant intelligence, that the Proferpine frigate is fate, with all her crew; and that Mr. Grenville and his fuite landed on the Continent early in the month.

Some irregular fets of French papers, to the 18th inft reached town yesterday by way of Holland; and likewife fome Leyden papers were received by the fame conveyance. Thefe Gazettes tend to confirm the report, concerning the order iffued by the French directory, for the requilition of new levies of men. A timilar order has been issued by the Batavian republic, ordaining, "That all citizens, without exception, are enjoined to ferve in person in the armies. No one is to be exempted from this duty, nor allowed to find fubititutes. Old age, corporal infirmities, and administrative employments are the only exemptions. All citizens, from the age of 20 to 30, are to ferve in the first con-feript for the present year."

The execution of these regulations is to

Ships that have come in from fea reprefen the weather during the early part of last week to have been more than usually tempestuous. The following is an extract of a letter from on board the Cambrian frigate:

"On Wednesday last, the 20th, we encountered a most tremendous gale in the Channel with thunder and lightning. A fire ball fell upon the fore-castle, which unfortunately killed two men and wounded 17. Two are firuck blind, one of them is raving mad. The scene was so awful that we all expected immediate destruction."

As no sufficient details have been yet published respecting the conquests of the kingdom of Naples, the following may prove interesting. The army of Rome, stopped for a moment by the sudden want of provisions, was obliged to suffered its rapid career. Its impatient courage was turned into indirection and surreceived the subject of the indignation and fury against the neglect of the commissaries, who had occasioned its in-action; when the general succeeded in skilfully directing the rage of the troops against the enemy. "Your magazines (he exclaimed) are at Naples." "Let us then (they replied) march on to Naples." Capua was instantly carried by affault, and the remains of the Marchine arms, which he have of the Neapolitan arry which had been rallied by shame and despair fell under the point of the French bayonet, and covered the Vultume, and fix leagues of the road to Naples with their bodies. Behind them were posted the Lazzaroni, the boasted supwere potted the Lazzaroni, the boatted sup-ports of the expiring Monarchy. Sixty thousand of them were killed and the French, tatigued with flaughter, planted the standard of Liberty in Naples. Their entrance in-to Naples produced a new engagement, and houses from which the inhabitants fired on
