Domestic Articles. SAVANNAH, April 30. Major General Pinckney, and Brigadier General Washington, accompanied by Major Rutledge, arrived at St. Mary's, on the 5th instant, and were received by the inhabitants of that place, with much respect and hospitality.

THE inhabitants of St. Mary's and its vicinity, congratulate you on your safe arrival to this extreme southern boundary of our happy country, and though situated as we are, remote from the seat of the Federal Government, our principles are pure, undivided, and perfectly attached to that government, which the great family of American people formed for themselves. We pray you to accept our sincere thanks for your patriotic and firmness on the late trying occasion, you embally to the French nation; but from your former well spent life, in the service of your country, we were sanguine in our expectations, nor were we disappointed.

THE ANSWER. St. Mary's, April 10th, 1799. SIR, I BEG leave to return my thanks to the inhabitants at St. Mary's and its vicinity, for the congratulations which they have been pleased to offer me through you, on my arrival at the southern boundary of the United States.

It is with pleasure, that I behold at this extreme point of the Union so many marks of happiness, and so many proofs of increasing prosperity. A country, which but a few years since, had nothing but its native richness to display, now presents to the view, the pleasing picture of agriculture, and of population.

It is of consequence to the United States, that its frontier should be inhabited, and should be cultivated—it is of still greater consequence, that it should be inhabited by citizens, unbiassed by foreign influence, and pure in their attachment to the Federal Government, under whose fostering care, they can alone enjoy those general benefits, which are a great family, the American people have a right to expect.

THE BRITISH LETTER-OF-MARQUE NIGER, For KINGSTON, (Jam.) Now ready to take her cargo on board, can receive some freight. For terms apply to ROSS & SIMSON. may 15

NEW-LONDON, May 20. The clerical lunatic, confined in Litchfield jail, for money squandered away, is week after week filling the pages of "the Hum Bug," with his sportive lucubrations. Having tired his readers, with the pretended claims of his mother-in-law, on the general government; he has lately employed his feeble pen against the Debtor law of this State.

Letter Bags up at the Coffee-House. The armed Ship Delaware, Captain Gray, for London. Armed Ship Fame, Captain Ricard, for Hamburg. Brig Sea Nymph, for Hamburg.

CONTINUATION OF Late Foreign Articles. LONDON, March 25. Letter from the King of Naples to General Pignatelli, commander in chief at Naples during the absence of his Majesty, dated Palermo, Jan. 15.

At the time when, from the urgency of circumstances and the good disposition manifested by my People to which in your former letters, you have done justice, I expected general rising in defence of the capital of my kingdom. I received yours of the 12th inst. which informs me of the disaffected Treaty which has been concluded in consequence of the most absurd instruction given by you to persons directed to negotiate with the enemy, and by which I see the greatest part of my realm, though unconquered, given up with a view of sparing the capital, when it is obvious that these concessions must lead to the irretrievable loss of my whole kingdom.

THE HAMBURG MAIL. Lindau, on the Lake of Constance, March 7. Seven in the Evening. The War has commenced in our neighbourhood. In the night between the 5th and 6th instant, the French passed the Rhine at Sarganz, between Chur (Coire) and Feldkirch, and attacked the Corps under general Aussenberg, which they obliged to retreat, as the communication between him and General Hotze was cut off.

BANKS of the Leach, March 8. The following are the accounts of the movements of the Armies in Swabia: A Courier from Rastadt having arrived in the night between the 2d and 3d inst. at the Head Quarters at Friedberg, with advice that the French on the 1st inst. had passed the Rhine at Kehl, eight battalions on the 4th passed the Leach, and by noon on the 5th reached Ulm, for which place a park of artillery of 123 pieces of cannon and 200 ammunition waggons, likewise set out.

STUTTGARD, March 9. According to the latest accounts received of the French Army, General Jourdan is still at Villingen, and General St. Cyr at Rastadt. There seems to be a general expectation among all their troops, 22000 men, who entered Friedland, after the departure of the first column, were still there yesterday. At Rothenburg, Tubingen, Reutlingen, &c. only patrols have yet arrived; and a Nagold there is but a small number of French Troops.

PETERSBURG, Feb. 26. Field Marshal Count Szwarrow set out tomorrow, to take the command of the Austrian Army in Italy. It is now reported that Buonaparte has declared himself Sultan of Egypt: In consequence of the reconciliation with Pasha Oglou, one half of the Russian and Turkish Army, which was to have been employed against him, will march for Italy, and the other half for Egypt, to join the Army of the Pasha of Acre, who has assured the Porte that Buonaparte cannot hold out long, though he has thrown up fortifications which are almost impregnable. Many thousands of auxiliary Troops are on their march for Egypt, from Algiers, Tunis, Tripoli, and Morocco.

FRANKFORT, March 12. We learn that the French have attempted to pass the Rhine on the Frontiers of the Grisons, or of the Vorarlberg, but that they were repulsed there by the Austrians. It is said also that engagements have taken place in the Country of the Grisons, which have terminated in favour of the Austrians. We may expect official details on this subject.

Letters from Trent state, that intelligence had been received there that some English and Russian troops, who were set about attacking and retaken Naples, and had been at Villingen, and General St. Cyr at Rastadt. There seems to be a general expectation among all their troops, 22000 men, who entered Friedland, after the departure of the first column, were still there yesterday. At Rothenburg, Tubingen, Reutlingen, &c. only patrols have yet arrived; and a Nagold there is but a small number of French Troops.

UPPER RHINE, March 11. The Commandant of Philippsburg has had a verbal conference with general Bernadotte, in which it has been agreed to desist from hostilities on both sides, till orders from higher authorities shall be received. General Ney has still his head quarters at Schwetzingen.

STRASBURGH, March 10. The latest accounts from the army in Swabia state, that it is now on its march for Mofkirch, where the advanced guard is already arrived. The right wing is extended beyond Stokach; while the left has turned from Friedland to the side of Rothwell, and does not march by Rothenburg and Tubingen, as was at first intended. A great quantity of artillery and ammunition has passed the Knecht. General Jourdan and the Archduke Charles are advancing directly towards each other.

RASTATT, March 10. Yesterday the French ministers received dispatches from Paris, by an extraordinary Courier, and in the evening gave in the following note to the deputation: "The undersigned Ministers Plenipotentiary of the French Republic have received orders from the Directory to communicate to the Deputation of the Empire the proclamation of general Massena, commander in chief of the French army in Helvetia. They have likewise orders to avail themselves of this opportunity to renew the declaration in their note of the 1st inst. that the march of the armies is only to be considered as a measure imposed by circumstances, which will make no alteration in the ardent and sincere wish for peace by which the French government is actuated; and they are formally commissioned to renew the assurance that the Directory is still ready to conclude a peace with the Empire, provided the Empire will declare against the march of the Russians."

LUCERN, March 5. The following are the accounts received from Naples, of the date Feb. 10:—"The Revolution here advances rapidly. The Abruzzo's are already organized, and the civil authorities appointed. They form three departments—upper Abruzzo (formerly Terramano) Lower Abruzzo (lately Chieti), and Pescara (lately Aquilano). All the three have a common Government at Pescara. A half brigade of 3000 men is raising; as also two Squadros of Cavalry, and four Companies of Artillery Men; they fill very rapidly. The late Duke of Andria, Hettore Caraffa, commands them. They write from Turin, that Prince Charles of Casignan has offered, in a patriotic Letter, his palace, his services, and a part of his property to be employed for the use of his Country: the Government has returned him thanks in a public answer.

Count Lebrach leaves this day, and has obtained Passports from the French Ministers. In the event of the Congress continuing its deliberations, it is stated that he will return. The family of the Elector of Bavaria has arrived at Munich. Baron Hompeich is his new prime Minister. All in the Duchy of Wirtemberg is tranquil.

Field Marshal Count Szwarrow set out tomorrow, to take the command of the Austrian Army in Italy. It is now reported that Buonaparte has declared himself Sultan of Egypt: In consequence of the reconciliation with Pasha Oglou, one half of the Russian and Turkish Army, which was to have been employed against him, will march for Italy, and the other half for Egypt, to join the Army of the Pasha of Acre, who has assured the Porte that Buonaparte cannot hold out long, though he has thrown up fortifications which are almost impregnable.
