

On the 13th inst. the Swedish ship, under Prussia's colors, were condemned in Cherbourg while the Marlborough lay there.

By the Marlborough, arrived yesterday from Cherbourg, in France, we have a confirmation of the defeat of the French, by the Archduke Charles, with the loss of 10,000 men.

TRIBUTE OF APPLAUSE.

K. MORRISON (late 2d mate of the ship Ontario, Capt. Wheaton, of this port, which was lost on her homeward bound passage from Canton) in behalf of that part of the crew who arrived at Newport R. I. take this public method of returning their sincere thanks to Capt. Wheaton, for his gentleman like behaviour to them during the voyage.

They further return their grateful thanks to Captain Smith of the ship Semiramis of New-Port, for his humane and generous conduct during their passage from the Cape of Good Hope to that port; and also to his officers and crew, for the very handsome sum of money they presented them with to bear their expenses to their respective homes.

New-Port, June 18th, 1799.

PROVIDENCE, June 19.

Saturday last arrived the ship Ann and Hope, capt. Benjamin Page, 126 days from Canton. He sailed in company with the British ship Intrepid of 64 guns, commodore Hargood; the Arrogant, of 74, captain Olinan, and the La Virginie, of 40. Under this convoy were nine ships belonging to the British East India Company, three country, and three American ships; the latter were, the Camilla, capt. Roberts, of New-York; the Jenny, capt. Brown, of Boston; and the Ann and Hope; commodore Hargood politely favoring them with his signals.

A few days previous to sailing, a Spanish squadron, consisting of one ship of 80 guns out of 74, and of 40, with two French frigates of 40, and a corvette of 16 guns, all from Manila, came into the East passage, while the British squadron were watering near one of the Islands east of Macao. Their unexpected appearance obliged the British squadron to cut their cables, and put to sea. Night coming on, the hostile squadrons lost sight of each other, the French and Spanish hailing close to the wind. The British were to leeward, and after clearing ship, returned to their former station. Intelligence having been sent to the British factory, some of the largest merchant ships cleared their gun decks, and proceeded to join the ships of war, expecting to meet the French and Spaniards in the Chinese sea, but were disappointed.

The fleet sailed from Macao the 8th of February and touched at Malacca the 22d; parted with the Camilla between the Paracels and the coast of Cochinchina, the not being able to keep up with them. Captain Page left the British ships and the Jenny, captain Brown, at Palo Rondo, the western entrance of the Malacca Straights, captain Brown dangerously ill.

Left at Canton, the ship Thomas Ruffell, captain Magee, and at Macao, the Alexander, captain Dodge, both of Boston.

On the 7th instant, at 3 in the morning, lat. 30° 42' N. long. 64, 30 W. capt. Page fell in with a British privateer of 14 guns, full of men. She hailed from Bermuda, and flew English colors, but was supposed to be French. After following the ship upon her course 15 hours, she fired 3 shot, which number was well returned, the Ann and Hope mounting 12 nine pounders. Finding capt. Page prepared to give him a warm reception she hauled her wind and left him.

During her voyage, the Ann and Hope has not met with a ship which out-failed her.

Captain Wheaton, who arrived here on Sunday last, informs, that he left at Guadaloupe 13 American captains and 50 seamen, in close confinement, upon an allowance of six ounces of putrid beef per day. Captain W. further informs, that the same day he left Guadaloupe (the 5th of May) Captain Fletcher, of the United States' frigate George Washington, sent in a cartel to Guadaloupe in order to take off whatever Americans might be there; but received answer from the government, that he did not know of any Americans being in the island, but that if any could be found, they were welcome to take their departure! What astonishing duplicity and villainy!

NORFOLK, June 18.

Saturday arrived the brig Lorain, captain Smith, 14 days from St. Vincents. On the 13th inst. in lat. 34, long. 73, fell in with two ships boats, having on board the captain and crew of the British ship Empress of Russia, captain Williamson, from Jamaica, bound to this port. The Empress of Russia foundered on the 8th inst. in a heavy gale of wind, and the crew, 30 in number, had been 4 days in the boats.

Sunday arrived the sloop Mary Ann, capt. Croel, 21 days from Martinique. Informs that the schooner Choaro, capt. Carver, from Plymouth, and the schooner Betty, capt. Paterson, from Duxborough, had both arrived there.

Yesterday arrived in Hampton Roads, the brig Atalanta, capt. Tompkins, 47 days from Oporto. Capt. T. was taken on his outward passage from this port, by a French privateer ship of 24 guns, and 200 men, and afterwards retaken by the Mermaid English frigate, and carried into Oporto, which he left the 6th of May. The brig Brandywine Miller, King, bound to New-York, and the ship Pomona, Waters, for Alexandria, sailed the 29th April.

Capt. T. confirms the defeat of the French arms, but has brought no papers.

Spoke the 3d inst. the brig Fair American, Salisbury, from Cadiz, to Baltimore, out 58 days, in want of provisions.

Captain Tompkins saw the captain of the British Packet Chesterfield, that had been taken on her homeward passage (17 days out) by a French privateer, he was at Oporto going on to Lisbon.

Extract from the logbook of the Sloop Two Friends, captain Bennett, from Norfolk to New-Providene.

Saturday, 10th May, at 1 P. M. discovered a fall to windward; at 2 came up with and fired a shot at us, without any questions whatever, under American colours, on which we hoisted our own (American) in return, and hove-to immediately; he then fired another shot at us, and ordered the captain to get out boat and come on board with the papers, or else he would sink us:—the captain expostulated as much as possible, telling him the danger in getting on board in a small boat, the sea running high and the wind blowing a gale; he said he did not care a dam, &c. to fire a third shot at us, which had nearly done great damage, swearing and cursing at same time in a brutal manner, he would sink us.—We were obliged to comply [having no guns] when the captain and two men went on board at a great risk in our own boat, she proved to be the brig Nancy, of New-York commanded by a captain Taylor, who on this occasion has proved himself a coward and poltroon: otherwise he would never have treated an American in such a villainous manner.

Fahrenheit's Thermometer was at 92, at 2 o'clock, P. M. yesterday, in the shade. After the slight sprinkling of rain, it fell two degrees in 10 minutes.

This Thermometer, which has been kept in its present position for a long time, has not risen to the above height before, these eight years.

The snow Independence, Hazard, from New-London, with a cargo of Horses, was taken by a French privateer, and 8 men put on board. Three days after, capt. H. with two men, by a spirited exertion, retook his vessel, and arrived safe at Barbados.

THE Aurora thinks it right, and to be desired, that the French should, by the means which they employ, or any means, extend their powers, recruit their finances, and support the independence of other nations. No doubt, after they have conquered all Europe, he hopes the United States will be able to stay their course; and to secure such hopes, he is now raising cock-necked troops; and thinks that if there will be more danger attending an actual contest, there will be also more honor. What excellent patriots are these Jacobins, and what an irredeemable portion of gratitude, do we not owe them?

The Aurora (so precious is the Directorial character, in the eyes of the Jacobins) has affected to consider, a work by Carnot, in answer to the report, by Baillet, on the 18th Euclid business, a fabrication; and hence, that all Carnot is made to say therein of the dear directors, is a calumny. It also insinuates, that he was suffered to escape through the kindness of the Directory.—The work in question carries with it such a strength of internal evidence, of its genuineness and authenticity, as must convince every unprejudiced reader; but were the prophets to descend from heaven, they could not, even now, convince a Jacobin of the atrocious assassinations of Robespierre, or the crimes, perfidy, and depravity of the Directory.

Should the French conquer Germany, and England, all the rest of Europe, with Asia, and the East, must fall, an easy prey to her power and dominion; and yet this is what our exclusive patriots, or real republicans, are daily offering up their prayers, may be speedily accomplished. What then? There will be conquered, the United States alone, to be conquered, to make France mistress of the world. Is it possible that there can be in the United States, one single human being (real republicans excepted) so foolish or infatuated, as to believe, France would suffer the United States to exist, an exception to her grandeur and universal dominion?

We learn from history, that the Roman General, Scipio overcame Hannibal, the Carthaginian General, at Zama; and that not only the Carthaginians, but all other nations were conquered there also, inasmuch, as the destruction of Carthage, rendered easy to the Romans, the conquest of the world; and yet our real republicans echo, after the French, delenda est Carthago, England must be conquered; Germany must be conquered; Asia, Egypt, and the East Indies must be conquered; Is it through moderation, that these Patriots hesitate, when they come to the United States?

The French Directory have declared themselves permanent during the war.

General Suwarow has issued a Manifesto, wherein he declares, that he means not to give and wishes not to receive quarter.

The Cisalpine Republic has revolted, as have also the whole of the Swiss Cantons.

The black flag was flying at Paris, a signal of bad news.

The above information is contained in Letters from Portugal, to the 10th May.

The various accounts which have been received of the restoration of the money captured in the ship Pigou, are totally false: the crew of that ship with the exception of the Surgeon and second Mate, are confined in goal, and treated with the utmost barbarity.

Extract from the Anti-Jacobin, or Weekly Examiner.

"It is some consolation to us to have to state not only from authority, but in verse, that our government has not been behind-hand with that of France; but that aware of the wife and enterprising spirit of the enemy, and of the danger that might arise to our distant settlements from the export of learning and learned men being entirely in their hands, ministers have long ago determined on an expedition of a similar nature, and have actually embarked at Portsmouth, on board one of the East India Company's ships, taken up for that purpose (the ship Capricorn, Thomas Trueman, commander) several tons of savans, the growth of this country. The whole was conducted with the utmost secrecy and dispatch, and it was not till we were favored with the following copy of a letter (obligingly communicated to us by the Tunisian gentleman to whom it was addressed) that we had any suspicion of the extent and nature of the design, or indeed of any such design being in contemplation.

The several great names which are combined to render this expedition the most surprising and splendid ever undertaken, could not indeed have been spared from the countries to which they are an ornament, for any other purpose, than one the most obviously connected with the interests of society, and the most widely beneficial to mankind. The secrecy with which they have been withdrawn, without being so much as mislead or enquired after, reflects the highest honor on the planners of the enterprise.

It now appears that there was in truth no slight object in view, in sending abroad such a constellation of talents. They are destined, with the rest of the savans, on whom their native countries pride themselves (and long may they have reason to indulge the honest exultation!) to undertake a voyage of no less grandeur than peril; to counteract the designs of the Directory, and to frustrate or forestall the conquests of Buonaparte.

TRANSLATION OF A LETTER,

(In Oriental characters.)

From Baruba-dara-awul-phoola, Dragoman to the expedition, to Nech-wal-arestedid Kooza, Secretary to the Tunisian Embassy.

Dear Neck-awl,

YOU'LL rejoice, that at length I am able to date these few lines from the captain's own table.

Mr. Trueman himself, of his proper suggestion, has in favor of science decided the question; So we walk the main deck, and are mes'd with the captain:

Leave you to judge of the joy we are rap' in. At Spit-head they embark'd us; how precious a cargo!

And we sail'd before day to escape the embargo. There was Sh—h, the wonderful mathematician;

And D—r—w—n, the poet, the sage and physician;

There was B—d—s; and Bru—n; and G—d—w—n whose trust is

He may part with his work on political justice, To some Imam or Bo-zee, or Judicial Rabb'in;

So with high quarto volumes he piles up the cabin.

There was great Dr. P—t, whom we stile Bel-lendens;

The doctor and I have a hammock between us. 'Tis a little unpleasant thus crowding together, On account of the motion, and heat of the weather;

Two souls in one birth they oblige us to cram, And Sir John will insist on a place for his ram.

'Tis the animal's hide that occasions the stink; In spite of th' experience'd opinion of Truman Who contends that the scent is exclusively human.

But B—d—s and D—r—w—n engage to repair This slight inconvenience with exigent a-r.

To be join'd on the passage by the wife doctor R—h,

The same who all fevers, black or yellow can crush.

This exotic savant, with his lancet and sumpson, Can help to in-grave sell Corica's d-d-dion;

The Virginia Soph, with his huge monster Ma-mouth, If in a ship to be found they are able to cram both;

And Pr—lay the sage, with his gaze charbonic. Defructive as air from the regions of Old Nick, With a cargo of science, to dreadful and splendid.

The contest, I ween, very soon will be ended. Whither bound? (you will ask)—'tis a question, my friend,

On which I long doubted; my doubt's at an end. To ASIANA the flow, SABORRA, the gummy.

To the land where each man that you meet is a mummy:

To the mouths of the Nile, to the banks of Araxes,

To the red, and the yellow, the white and the black seas;

With telescopes, globes and a quadrant and sextant, And the works of all authors whose writings are extant;

With forcees and plans, topographical maps, Phials, crucibles, air-pumps, electric machinery, And pencils for painting the natives and scenery.

In short, we've sent to oppose all we know. To the knowledge and mischievous arts of the foe,

Who, though placing in arms a well-founded reliance, Go to war with a flying artillery of science.

The French Savans, it seems, recommended this measure

With a view to replenish the national treasure. First, the true Rights of man they will preach in all places;

But chief (when tis found) in th' Egyptian Oasis: And this doctrine, 'tis hop'd, in a very few weeks

Will persuade the wild Arabs to murder their Skeels;

And, to aid the Great Nation's beneficent plans Plunder pyramids, catcombs; towns, caravans, Then enlist under Ascle's gallant commander, Who will conquer the world, like his model

Likandeh.

His army each day growing bolder and finer, With the Tarcoman tribes he subdues Asiatic;

Bates PAUL and his Seythians, his journey pur-sues

Cross the Indus, with tribes of Armenians, and Jews;

And Bucharians, and Affgans, and Persians and Tartars,

Choaks the wretched Mogul in his grand-mother's garters, And will hang him to dry in the Luxembourg Hall.

'Midst the plunder of Carthage, and spoils of Bengal.

Such we hear was the plan: but I trust if we meet 'em,

That, Savans to Savans, our cargo will beat 'em. Our plan of proceeding, I'll presently tell:—

But soft—I am call'd—I must bid you farewell. To attend to our Savans my pen I resign:—

For, it seems that they duck them on crossing the line.

We deeply regret this interruption of our Oriental poet, and the more so, as the prize which we have received from a less learned correspondent, does not enable us to explain the tactics of our belligerent philosophers, so distinctly as we could have wished. It appears in general, that the learned doctor who has the honor of sharing the hammock of the amiable Oriental, trusted principally to his superior knowledge in the Greek language, by means of which he hoped to entangle his antagonists in inextricable confusion. Dr. D—n proposed (as might be expected) his celebrated experiment of the Ice-land, which, being towed on the coast of Africa, could not fail of spoiling the climate, and immediately terrifying and embarrassing the fallows of Buonaparte's fleet, accustomed to the mild, temperate gales of the Mediterranean, and therefore ill qualified to struggle with this new importation of tempests.

Dr. B—s was satisfied with the project of communicating to Buonaparte a consumption, of the same nature with that which he formerly tried on himself, but superior in virulence, and therefore calculated to make the most rapid and fatal ravages in the hectic constitution of the Gallic hero. It would be presumptuous to say, certainly, what will be the employment of the American Savans; but if we may be allowed to offer a conjecture, we suppose the mellifluous R—h will strive to insinuate himself into the acquaintance of the French generals and philosophers; and, if they should chance to be profane against his lancet and sumpson, which is not very likely, make a direct attack on their "gall bladders." Dr. Pr—lay and the Virginia Soph, it is probable, will by means of an enormous balloon, raise the monster Mamouth in the air, and let him fall soule into the middle of the French army, when in the heat of battle, which cannot fail to produce the most decisive effects.

The rest of the plan we can say nothing about, excepting a hint about Sir J—s intention of proceeding with his ram to the celebrated Oasis, and of bringing away, for the convenience of the bank, the treasures contained in the temple of Juppiter Ammon.

NATIONAL DEFENCE.

IT is a subject of peculiar gratification to every man, who is a friend to his country, who desires to see her repel the fraternal embrace of the disturbers of this world, to view the rapidity with which the standards of national defence are joined. I have lately beheld with the most cordial satisfaction, the tribute of applause paid to several of the officers in different parts of the United States for the activity they have evinced in the recruiting service; but to none is praise more eminently due than to captain S. White and his officers of the 11th Regiment, rendezvousing at this place. Between the 9th May (the time of commencing the recruiting service) and the 16th of this instant, captain White and the officers under his command have enlisted sixty able-bodied, handsome, young men—all native Americans and between the ages of 18 and 30 years, of good moral characters, reputable parentage and well attached to the interests and defence of their country. Perhaps the army will not receive a company equal to this, from any part of the Union.

Dover, June 19, 1799.

Died, yesterday of a bilious fever, after an illness of only five days, Mr. JOSEPH ASHMEAD, son of Capt. John Ashmead, of this city, aged 26 years.

Died last evening Mr. Roger Fishman, of this city.

London, June 18. On the 13th inst. the Imperialists attacked the French, who were entrenched in the abbey of Peterhausen, and drove them across the Rhine, whereby some hundred men could not pass the river quick enough were taken prisoners. General Platneck's army upon summoned the garrison of Constance, which consists of Swiss and French troops, to surrender. This being refused, the Imperialists began to open their batteries upon the city whereby the Cathedral suffered considerably. On the 14th the garrison was summoned the second time, the command demanded six hours for consideration—therefore Constance was bombarded anew yesterday or has surrendered. On the 10th the Imperialists destroyed about sixty Swiss vessels which lay at Constance, by their shot. Colonel Williams lay with his flotilla at Stands, between Morbury and Constance; General Hotz was yesterday yet in his former position between Feldkirch and Rhineck. On the 5th inst. the Helvetic Directory demanded anew from the Legislative Body a declaration of war against Austria, but this proposal has been repeatedly rejected by the Grand Council; they answered that no means ought to be omitted to defend themselves against the attacks of an enemy, but the Helvetic people would declare war against nobody.
