PHILADELPHIA.

THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 18.

TO THE PRINTER,

There being Errors in my Address of yesterday No. VI. to the Managers of the Alms House, I request it may be re-published; as follows:

No. VI.

To the Managers of the Alms House and House of Employ.

GENTLEMEN, IN No. 5 I have shewed that IN No. 5 I have shewed that for three years past you have paid no more than one hundred and sisteen cents per week for your patients in the Pennsylvania Hospital, and not three dollars as W. and Charitas endeavor to make appear. But their statement is altogether a deception and ought to be exposed; for they do not take into calculation any of those patients who have been admitted formerly at a very low rate, whose board has never been raised, nor those received on charity without any charge but for cloathing and funeral expences. If it be necessary surther to elucidate and confirm my statement respecting the actual cost of your paupers in the hospital, I refer to the accounts rendered to your board at a late meeting for the last year's expences; by which you will observe the average cost is at this very time, no more than 118 cents this very time, no more than 118 cents

With as much confidence, and the fame view of blinding the eyes of the public, and if possible leading me off from my intended exposure of the real state of things. W and Charitas contend in your favor, that paupers in the Alms House cost no more than pers in the Alms House cost no more than a dollar a week, when if the truth was known, I have reason to believe they cost two at least. To give a correct account is however impossible without knowing the exact amount of your debts which are not yet paid. These I have good reason to believe were forty thousand dollars when your last annual account was stated; and the whole was contracted within the last two years, for by your account in 1797 it appears you did not owe two thousand pounds; and I am well informed you had several thousand pounds more of taxes in arrears, to collect, than was sufficient to pay it. I will therefore take twenty thousand dollars for granted, to be the expences of the last year, not yet paid, or included in your annual account, and proceed, count, and proceed,

By your annual flatement No.

2. the actual fum expended for the fupport of paupers is £12,284 11 7, or Add, debts contracted, but not

32,758 88

Add, debts contracted, but not paid, from 1798, to 1799, Repairs for one year I will fay on an average, are - - - Two Swine per diem I fuppose you received in the year, except on Sabbath days, for which I expect you paid one dollar and fixty seven cents each, and charged it, being half the value due to the perfon who brings them to the Alms House, say 626 at 1 67 which ought to be to ur debit, but we do not

Butter, veal, sausages, fish and pork, forseited, which you publish no account of, but is carried to your house by the Clerk of the Market.

Total expence of the year, for 605 persons, is - - - - $4,169 28

Or 172 cents a week for each perfon,—which is 57 cents ore than the hospital have charged, and makes an aggregate faving of one thousand four hundred and twenty two dollars and feventy two tents per annum for In proof of which I exhibit the following flatement, viz. 48 in the Alms House 52 weeks at 172 cents, is - - - - 43 in the Hofpital 52 weeks at 115 cents, is - - - 2,870 40

Difference faved to the Guardians to the poor is per annum - 1,422 72

Having now proved that the price is less in the Hospital than in the Alms-House, if it is asked in which institution the most care is taken of the patients, I would recommend my fellow citizens to visit both houses and they will be able to judge.

* Charitas fays, I well knew a confiderable part of the cloathing for near 2000 persons was made in the course of the last year in the house of employ;—but I will prove the contrary—see your manufactory accounts, viz. No. 3, manufactured goods, consumed in the house £338 o 3—that among 2000 people is about 3/4 each, which infread of heing enough to cloath them, would scarcely pay for sealing and mending their shoes.

Mr. Fuffel's new Patent for a Balance Lock for a Canal.

The inland navigation of England by Canals, has gradually become an object of infinite commercial importance. A very confiderable portion of the capital of the nation, has been laid out in forming canals: the intercourfe, and the conveyances of traffic, have been very much facilitated wherever canals have been cut. A very high annual income to the proprietors of canals is yielded, as the regular commercial return from the money which has been expended upon them. Every year in confequence of these things, is marked by new projects for the extension of these channels of internal navigation. A considerable share of the mechanical ingenuity of the nation has been exerted in this interesting province. This new erted in this interesting province. This new profession of civil engineers, find here their chief employment; and canal navigation is in a train of improvement to the highest per-in a train of improvement to the highest perfection of which it is susceptible.

No one particular in the construction of canals, is of greater consequence or difficulty, than that which regards the connecting of canals of different levels into one course of uninterrupted navigation. It is often impossible, without in exorbitant increase of an expence which is always very great, to form a channel for a canal, of one invarying level throughout the whole tract through which it is to be conducted. If, in such cases, means might be contrived for the convenient raising or lowering of the vessels in the canal, from one level to another, it is easy to see that there would be a mighty improvement accomplished. To answer this cad, various means have been at different end, various means have been at different street, adopted. In Chinia, it has long c nufual to raise or lower boats from on leval of a canal to another, by means of balance boats kept in referve at the locks at which the change of level takes place. Mr. Robb, a Scottish elergyman, about 13 or 14 years fince, suggested, among his friends, a very simple adoption of the Chinese contribution of the chinese contribution of the chinese contributions of the chin talked of as ingenious, but carried no farther towards execution. More recently, an invitation, the fame in principle, was proposed for the fame uses by Dr. James Anderfon, a man to whose activity and originality of genius, the arts in Britain are very highly indebted.

Mr. James Fussell, iron manufacturer of the country of Somerset (Eng.) has just ob-tained the king's letters patent, securing him from the usual space of time, the sole right to a balance lock which he has invested for the fame raifing or lowering of boats be-tween different levels in a canal. So far as we can judge from inspecting the specificati-on of the invention, it is likely to prove very useful. We sincerely wish the author every reasonable share of honor and emolument from his invention.

Mr. Fitzgerald's patent for a Signal Trumpet.
The minds of ingenious men have for ome time been turned confiderably to the improvement of different arts connected with warfare, Mr. Clerk's new fystem of fignals, wartare. Mr. Clerk's new lyltem of lignals, &c. for the use of a fleet at sea, during a naval engagement, are said to have effentially contributed to the great victory which was gained by lord Duncan. The Telegraph was found to deserve, by its important utility, to be quickley borrowed, though an invention of the Rench, for the use of Beitain.

William Fitzgerald, efq. has obtained a patent for the fole manufacture and fale of a fignal trumpet which he has recently invented for encreasing the powers of found, by fea or on land. The fignal is to be given by the application of a trumpet to a pittol, or any other convenient piece of fire arms, or small artillery, in such a manner that the found of the discharge of a pittol &c. may be augmented by it just as that of the human voice might be by the speaking trumpet. The peculiarity of the invention confists in the idea of the application of the trumpet to augment the sound from the discharge of any siems of found from the discharge of any siems. charge of any piece of fire arms, and in the contrivance of the apparatus, by which the trumpet is connected with the piece to be fired. It has been made trial of by a committee of general military officers, whose approbation it has received. It may become afeful to a variety of occasions at sea and on
