WALPOLE, July 15.

A Jacobin writer has, somewhere, the following image, which exhibits a tolerable picture of the features of two kinds of political domination. It must, however, be added that the first member of his paragraph contains a much juster allusion, than the second. "Governments have too generally proved to be a kind of political chrysalis, passing by progressive transformations, from the grub of pure democracy to the butterfly of absolute monarchy." The author, at the close of his allusion, which, indeed, is sufficiently elegant, is more brilliant than correct. Pure democracy is, to be sure, a grub, a "poor beetle, that we tread upon," it is not only a "creeping thing," but of the lowest, basest, and most offensive kind. It is always, by the energy of talents, and the arm of power, to be brushed away like the filthy spider of our ceilings. But monarchy, even when absolute, resembles a higher order of the flying tribe, than a democratic rhetorician is willing to allow. Monarchy is an eagle. It sometimes rises audaciously to the skies, and sometimes cruelly pounces its prey; but still it is strong, majestic, and bold, and rarely descends from the elevation of its greatness, or loses its power to awe, or its peripatetic to discern.

My studies were interrupted, this evening, by the entrance of an old friend. He was, however, a classical one; and his conversation was in tone with my books. As politics are a very reigning topic, the different forms of government were casually mentioned. Your republicanism, says my friend, who has the works of BUTLER by heart, and who is, by way of excuse for the boldness of the application, an inveterate Tory, reminds me of

"When a fly retires to bed,
He rests his tail above his head;
So, in this mongrel state of ours,
The rabble are the supreme powers."

Shenstone was the most indolent of poets, which, by the bye, is a very strong phrase and expressive of the very sublime of laziness. He was even more slothful than Thomson, who, in a lively manner, in his Castle of Indolence, describes the yawns, the sleepiness, and the languor of a bard. The disposition of Shenstone is a very strongly and curiously manifested in one of his letters to the Rev. Mr. Graves. The poet is speaking of his far famed pastoral, which, as the most meritorious of his productions, one would suppose would be cherished by the author, with sufficient care. Of this poem he says, "I send you my ballad, on condition that you return it with ample remarks in your next letter: I say, 'return it,' because I have no other copy, and am too indolent to take one."

"In penance for post folly," I condemned myself, this evening, to a pint of water gruel, without salt; and the perusal of two Auras, one Bee, and the supplement of an Argus.—An admirable help to a dose of Lee's pills. The complaining periods of the miserable, envious columns; the malignant pleasure their editors display, in detecting and exposing any supposed error in our excellent constitution and administration of government, and the fiend like joy they constantly evince, in the success of the enemies or the discomfiture of the friends of our dear country, remind me of the title of a book, published by John Bunyan, entitled—"Joy from Hell, or the Rejoicings of the Damned Souls."

Extract of a letter, addressed to the Editor, from a traveller, in the Western country, dated Nashville, May 26, 1799.

"The people in this country, owing to their better established situations, and better opportunity for acquiring information, are progressing in the science of reposing confidence in their government. A noise has been made in this town, respecting the correspondent who described the democrats here, according to a publication in your paper, as 'buly demagogues, and mob popularity courtiers.' A gentleman of this state, for whom the shoe was precisely fitted, has cleverly put it on.

"The Vermont Lyon has taken a very extraordinary range, and has lately surprised the people here with his unexpected presence. They have a monkey here for a show, but it is pretty generally acknowledged, that, as this possesses no faculty for spitting, the Lyon is the greatest curiosity, for a wild beast, we have ever here seen. A very flourishing feminary in this neighborhood, have lately had a school exhibition, at which the aforesaid Lyon was present, and from the federal and patriotic orations, delivered by the students, and applaudively received by the audience, he has conceived a very unfavorable opinion of this state, and has ranged on to Kentucky. Whilst at Knoxville, he was heard, in company to observe, that he was tired of representing the northern people; their sentiments were fast changing from republicanism to aristocracy, and he could not abide to live with so corrupt a people; but he continued, he should have no objections, as he intended to remove to the western country to represent the people there. A gentleman present mentioned the propriety, as he thought, of advising how to secure his election, if he intended to do so, by bringing electors with him."

NEWARK, July 23.

The Editor of the Centinel being obliged to retire from his editorial capacity, which he has so long and honorably filled, (for the benefit of his health) it appears his brother has succeeded him; consequently, this petting representative, in order that business should not depreciate, and fearing some may doubt his abilities, has given a specimen of his billingsgate performances, under the head of "Communication," in the two last Centinels, and promises another this week, which, no doubt, will appear under the same head. As these are not his first productions, it is expected he will, by repeated exertions, at least be equal, if not superior to his unchaste predecessor—for slander is marked in his countenance, his breath is strongly infected with calumny, and the fermentations of his agitated brain is seeking relief—his last struggle in particular, is truly characteristic of it, and evinces that this son of Aorus is fully adequate, and highly worthy the confidence of his constituents—he even possesses the faculty of anticipation! when assisted by his collusive mercenary. As this paltry Editor has foretold the labor in procuring a tickler for him, I hope he has, ere this, been gratified by an interview with the productions and their progenitors, and should his callous soul not be lost to every sense of shame, trust he will, on reading the statement of facts contained in the last week's Gazette, at least feel a just shame for his long ferocious career. But doubting his conscientiousness after the series of invectives exhibited against his neighbours, despair presents itself to view, and proves that he is not by facts to be retarded in his progress; but that vile calumny and slanderous epithets are always to characterize his immortal scandalous fame. All future productions directed to me, whether editorial or communicative, will be treated with silent contempt, which is the only reward such paltry demagogues merit; as the source from which they flow is sufficient to render them despicable in the opinion of those who are the genuine supporters of truth and virtue; as from factions disorganizers, calumniating invectives tend only to add merit to the fame of virtuous citizens. WHEREAS,

An attachment was lately issued out of the inferior court of common pleas of the county of Essex, in the state of New Jersey, directed to the sheriff of the said county, against the rights, credits, monies and effects, goods and chattels, lands and tenements of John Cleves Symmes at the suit of William Wall, in a plea of trespass on the case to his damage three thousand dollars;—

And whereas, the said sheriff did, at the term of June last past, return to the said court that he had attached the defendant by a certain bond given by Matthias Denman and Samuel Mecker to the said defendant, to the amount of near two thousand dollars, and also by fifty land warrants;—

Now therefore, unless the said John Cleves Symmes shall appear, give special bail, and receive a declaration at the suit of the plaintiff, judgment will be entered against him, and his property herein attached, will be sold agreeably to the statute in such case made and so provided.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT

JUNE 27, 1798.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of an act, passed during the present session of Congress, so much of the act entitled "An Act making further provision for the support of public credit, and for the redemption of the public debt"—passed the third day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-five, as bars from settlement or allowance, Certificates, commonly called Loan Office and final settlement Certificates, and Indents of Interest, is suspended until the twelfth day of June, which will be in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety nine.

That on the liquidation and settlement of the said Certificates, and Indents of Interest, at the Treasury, the Creditors will be entitled to receive Certificates of funded Three Per Cent. Stock equal to the amount of the said Indents, and the arrearages of interest due on their said Certificates, prior to the first day of January one thousand seven hundred and ninety one.

That the principal sums of the said Loan Office and final settlement Certificates, with the interest thereon, since the first day of January, one thousand seven hundred and ninety one, will be discharged after liquidation at the Treasury, by the payment of interest and reimbursement of principal, equal to the sums which would have been payable thereon, if the said Certificates had been subsisted, pursuant to the Acts making provision for the debts of the United States, contracted during the late war, and by the payment of other sums, equal to the market value of the remaining Stock, which would have been created by such subscriptions as aforesaid, which market value will be determined by the Comptroller of the Treasury.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

March 16th, 1799.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, Pursuant to the act of Congress passed on the 31st day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ninety five, entitled "An act regulating the grants of land appropriated for military services, and for the society of United Brethren for propagating the gospel among the Heathen;" and the act supplementary to the said act recited and passed on the second day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ninety nine—

I. THAT the tract of Land herein after described, namely, "beginning at the North West corner of the seven ranges of townships, and running thence fifty miles due south, along the western boundary of the said ranges;—thence due West to the Main Branch of the Scioto river; thence up the Main Branch of the said river to the place where the Indian boundary line crosses the same;—thence along the said boundary line to the Tolerators branch of the Muskingum river at the crossing place above Port Lawrence; thence down the said river, to the point where a line ran due west from the place of beginning, will intersect the said river; thence along the line so run to the place of beginning;" has been divided into townships of five miles square, and fractional parts of townships; and that plats and surveys of the said townships and fractional parts of townships are deposited in the offices of the Register of the Treasury and Surveyor General, for the inspection of all persons concerned.

II. The holders of such warrants as have been or shall be granted for military services performed during the late war, are required to present the same to the Register of the Treasury, at some time prior to the twelfth day of February in the year, one thousand eight hundred, for the purpose of being registered; No registry will however be made of any less quantity than a quarter township, or four thousand acres.
