Well? and what then?—Do you imagine that your electing M·Kean will break up the combination? What is this poor old soul to do against "all the neightiest of the despotic powers?" Will his receiving two thousand pounds a year out of the pockets of the people of Pennsylvania, prevent Marshal Suwarrow from marching to Paris? Considering Mr. Dallas's sine person (I except his phisiognomy,) I have always thought that his failure on the boards must have been owing to some fault in those who acted in the other characters; and, thereore, I would kumbly recommend to him, the next time he plays Archer, to get his friend Leb to act the part of SCRUB, a character to which, I am perfuaded the Doctor would do ample justice. In default of Leib he might take Mublenburg or Miles, or in fad any case of the force of the first section. or, in fact, any one of the fix except, Coxe, who is too thin. But Leib, however, is his man; he is pretty well in his own clothes, but in the habiliment of Brother Scrub, would exhibit a vulgarity that would fet the whole house in a roar.
