[In introducing this celebrated work to the Gentlemen and Ladies of America, I have endeavored to give it a dress proportioned to its diffinguished merit, and to the take of those for whose amusement and delight it is intended. No expense has been spared in the publication; and I flatter myself that the work does not yield, either in paper or print, to any one ever published in America.

This edition has an advantage over forme former ones, as it contains by way of tot s, she minor productions of the author; and, it has an advantage over every other edition, in the Postical Epistle, which is prefixed to it, and which must be extremely gratifying to every lover of literatura in this country, as it is a proof that there are Americans who have the tafte to admize, the judice to appland, and the talents to rival the Geniuses of other nations.

IN all countries, the proceedings in the commencement of their governments, are lost in darkness and of scurity, owing to a carelessness, in the succeeding generation, to preserve the public records, and the attention of the nation, in these rude ages, being called off from their domestic concerns, to engage in wars and conquest. Of what infinite value would the laws of Alfred be, had they been transmitted to our days? Time, that destroy, every thing, enhances the value of well authenticated public records, and renders them almost incessmalled. It is hoped, that Americans will, therefore, chearfully contribute their affishance in transmitting to posterity the labours of their ancestors—founders of the Columbian nation.

THE excellence of this road, the populousness of the country through which it passes, with fundry other advantages, which render

Bristol, Brunswick, &c. long ago suggested the propriety of its becoming the Grand Thorough Fare from Philacelphia to New York.
During the present year, a minute suggested the propriety of its becoming the Grand Thorough Fare from Philadelphia to New York. During the present year, a minute for vey of it has been taken, and its superiority over the Old Road, both in winter and summer, has been clearly ascertained.—There are good bridges over all the other waters but the Delaware, and here the crossing is performed with great safety and in less than half the time required at the Trenton Ferry. The road is several miles shorter than the old road, but this is among at the least of its advantages, because daily experience proves to us, that dispatch as well as comfort in travelling principally depend on the goodness of the road and the levelness of the country, and, in these respects, the New Road is, beyond all comparison, the best. It presents none of those rocky hills, which render the Old Road sa fariguing between the Delaware and Newark. The foil, too, for the greater part, is such as to produce but little mod in winter, and very little suff in summer, which circumstance, added to the beauty of the country, and a considerable propertion of shade, must always render travelling in the latter season petuliarly agreeable.

But the proprietors think it right to state very explicitly, that they will be responsible for the fafe delivery of no package, which is not regularly entered, and for which an infur-

In the diffribution of the route, the greatest care has been taken to fix on fuch places and taverns as always afford a good accommonation and entertainment for the paffengers at the most reasonable rates. The stages are well equipped furnished with sleet and steadyhorses, and committed to the care of intelligent foher and obliging drivers. The proprietors themselves live at the different towns and villages where the stages will stop, so that the conduct of the perfons they employ is continually an object of their attention.—They take care also to see that the passengers are well provided for and politely mitted to the care of intelligent fober and oblireated at the taverns, and that no fort of chicanery or insolence is practifed upon them; in short, they have spared neither pains nor expense to render the SWIFT-SURE the very best line of flages in America.
