preponderating in favour of the veracity of Giles. Prace with all nations is certainly defira-ble—and there is to great a variety of ficiti-ous and hish-coloured accounts of Britifh cruelties published in anti-federal papers, for the purpose of defiroying the existing har-mony between the two nations, as renders indifpentible the Rricteff forming even into thofe the molt formally fubliantiated; but peace with national degradation is neither enviable nor honourable, and fuch atrocities as this call for reparation. the directory beflow a great number of places upon the partifans of this fyftem. The machinations of the Democrats be-ing all directed by a determined defigo to get the definites of the country under their controal, will be found in every inflance to be limited in their feope, with an admirable diferimination and judgment to that precife object — thus they do not wifh for a war with Great Britain, becaufe they wifely fee'in it, the overthrow of their power : but they would drive things to the extrement pitch of exafperation between the two countries; they would excite the greateft poffible de-The machinations of the Democrats be- des Spectacles, Une Difobligcante ; Le

The learned men whom Buonaparte car ied with him will not obtain greater favour Giles, his mate, and two mariners, affert upon their orths—that therefore his repre-fentation of facts was untrue, and the treat-ment which he had received fuch as he me-rited. We will not prefume that the imprefions of Mr. Pickering, as evidenced on this oc-cafion, are diffimilar to thofe which would have been made on any other perfon, pla-cing, as he did, implicit confidence in the narrative of captain Truxton, and his eulo-gies on the Briton; but highly as we vene-rate his character, we cannot acquiefce in inferences, contravening evidence, glaringly preponderating in favour of the veracity of Giles.

cans, they take all the fashions from Paris, and when the French Directory go' mad un white sestin, they go mad in white linen! The French appear to have acquired great fkill in training lions and other wild beasts. It is furprifing they cannot manage their Directors better.

The expedition into Expt feems a bone of contention among the French Miniflers. Notwithflanding the fplendour of its outside, and the promifing glories of the first months, no one feems inclined to allow that he had any hand in it. Future hiltorians, and inveftigators may probably be puzzled to dif-cover the Author of the pursuits of Buona-parte, and argue on the fubject with all the virulence and malevolence which fecrets not worth knowing generally create. Tha Parifians are accused of gaiety midfl he corruption of their ministers and the defeat of their Armies. Such feelings are cer-tainly unfeafonable, but they may plead their right to laugh at amufements for which they pay to handfomely. If the Parifians take it in their heads to introduce Suwarrow into an Opera, they thould make it a serious one, and perhaps the General, thould things go on as they have began, may perform his own character

The French Directory have infinuated to the Dutch, that they must now leave them 1 to defend themfelves. As the Dutch are in the habit of calculating the profit and lofs of transfactions, it is very probable that they will diffeover that it would be very idle to Admiral Bruix will rank at the head of their navy. To have been at fea three months and not to have been beaten, is what none of their Admirals have for a long time to boalt.

The new French Directory, like the old, call loudly for money as the fovereign reme-dy for all the difeates of the flate. Their prescription, with a flight variation, is the fame with that of the Phylician in Molier's comedy, " Mais si malavia opiniaria non vult se gartire, quid illi facere ? de l'argent --postea de l'argent ; ensuite beaucoup d'arnt." It is the flanding specific of all State hyficians.

If the Parifians are indeed fo exhausted by the oppretition of their government, their gaiety and expense would be furprifing did gatety and expence would be furprising did-we not confider the various motives from which profusion a sites. Some fpend and en-joy themfelves becaufe they have plenty of money, others becaufe they have fo little left that it is not worth the keeping. The humanity which Sir Sidney Smith has them to made did becaufe

BALTIMORE, November 5. Extraß of a letter from a gentleman at Ha-oynna to a merchant in this city, dated 0/2 ber 15.

" The American commerce in this quar-ter has remained unprotected for these three months paß, not a fingle government vef-fel having been here fince that time. There are three or four French privateers fitting out here for the express purpose of captu-ring Americans. We cannot divine the caule why government have not fent any of their cruifers here, as the property import-ed here from the United States of Ameri-ea, is more valuable than the commerce from the United States to all the other illands together."

BOSTON, October 31. Mr. John Geyer, who arrived last even-ing from Halifax, in the Swedish brig Mi-nerva, has very politely furnished us with a Halifax paper of the 17th inst. containing under the London date of Sept. 9, the Bri-tish official account of the battle of Novi : it does not differ in any thing effential, from the account, received via Hamburgh, alrea-dy published. Nothing further on the fub-A of the expedition to Holland, is mentioned in this paper.

The Aurora, Capt. Sprigs, bound from Gibralter to Baltimore, fpoke, in lat. 39, with the Danish East India company ship, the Courier, from Calcutta, which place she left the middle of May, when official accounts had arrived that a decifive action had taken place between the armies of Tipp Sultan and the British, in which the latter had entirely defeated Tippoo, who loft his life in the action-his country was furrendered to the British, and PEACE is again reflored to India, with a great extent of ter-ritory and revenue added to the British pos-fefions.

as this call for reparation. The cafe of Carter, in the harbour of Kingfton, in the Ifland of Jamaica, is near-ly finilar in its outlines, and precifely fo in its effects. In both inflances American fea-men are barbaroully flogged on board of Bri-tifh fhips, by the mandates of Britifh cap-tains, whole vengeance, unappeafed by the failure of one may's firength in the bulinefs, ordevid it to be meanward for the bulinefs,

The recital of these truths was due to our wn feelings, and those of our infulted, shued, and mangled countrymen. If it affords hem any confolation to know, that the words of a British captain is not (by fome of their fellow-citizens at leaft) deemed as lacred and authentic as their oaths, we fhall have felt for once the value of a lituation of which enables us to transmit the affurance in a way which perhaps may reach them.

[The foregoing article comes to my hands thro' the medium of the Salem Gazette, one, among the very few public prints in America, that are refpectable either for talents or confiftence of princi-ples : by him the Italic lines are prefixed. I mean to take occasion, from this cir-cumfiance, to remark, that in the declara-tion of these fentiments by the above Fe deral Editors, we have a new evidence of the jealoufy entertained by the friends of government, on the fubject of their coun-try's honor. The federal party, indeed, are the only defoription of perfons who entertain any real feeling on this foore, as abundantly appears from an appeal to the paft. In the differences which preceded the treaty, it was the federal party which advocated a repulsive policy-it was the federal party who fortified the harbors, laid on the embargo, raifed the provisional army and built the frigates. Much and loud clam r was heard from the democrats, but failure of one man's firength in the bulinefs, ordered it to be recommenced and continued by another, till the blood of the fufferers ran in rivulets. In that which occured in Jaand from whence fprung a large babooi, who, profiting of the accident, ran away as fall as

The German Princefs who fell in love with the fidler a. Munich feems to have been of the Duke's mind in Shakefpeare's comedy : "If mufic be the load of low., playon."

The city of Verona, out of gratitude to general Kray, for faving it from the French, by the important victories on the 26th and 30th of March, is going to make a prefent to that officer of one dezen of golden knives, forks and fpoons, and three dozen of golden tea spoons. The buff of that general in ala-baller, will also be crected on a pillar on the harade of that city. The number of ducls might perhaps be re-retted, if the barmlessness of them did not effen our apprehentions. In time, perhaps, his may be reduced to a science, and honor be fufficiently protected by the theory of murder inflead of the practice.

Private letters received from Munich men-tion that the young electrefs dowager of Bavaria, daughter of the archiduke Ferdinand, and confin to the empiricr, has fallen in love with a young suffician belonging to the court, of the name of Eck, and is abfolutely determined to make him her hufband.
