The Friendship, Watts, arrived yesterday, from St. Sebastians, brings us Paris Gazettes to the 10th Fructidor; from there, the following Information is extracted.

PARIS, 29 Messidor.

They write from Cadix, the 9th Messidor, that the French corvette La Mouche, (arrivé en course) captain Nicholas D'Éles, is arrived there from Bourdeaux, in 13 days. He brought in with him two American merchantmen, which he captured at their coming out of Lisbon.

BRUSSELS, 6th Fructidor.

It appears according to the last news from Zealand, that some English vessels, with troops, had approached the Island of Goeree, in the design of effecting a descent; but that the batteries on the shore keeping up a brisk fire, the enemy found it prudent to remove himself from the fear of a mishap.

LYONS, 3 Fructidor.

The adjutant-general Dauvergne has enjoin'd it upon the central bureau to procure a place, healthy, proper and commodious, for depositing the citizens arrested by a measure of general safety.

The city of Lyons is very tranquil since they have been apprized of the shutting up of the club of the rue de Bacq, at Paris. It was a pleasant thing to see here, those impure beings vomited by the revolution, laying aside all of a sudden their air of arrogance and ferocity, leaving no more, any thing distinctive in their figure, but baseness and shame.

The brothers of Millery, department of the Rhone, have caused to be printed an address to the legislative body, inviting them to take measures energetic and even unconstitutional.

On the 28 Thermidor, 19 priests of the different departments, who had remained in the prisons of Lyons, departed for Orléon, chained by the neck, in four carriages, and accompanied by the armed force.

Oléron is an island, on the coast of Anis and Saintonge, five miles from the continent, defended by a castle; and is made, by these fiends of Atheism, a depot of the apostles of the Christian faith, whence they are transported from that unholy land, to the burning sands of Guiana.

On the 30th, three large barques, containing four hundred GALLEY SLAVES [Galériens] descended the Saone to be rendered at the different ports in the South. An ancient lady, of the age of eighty, whose son had been condemned to irons for desertion, finding him to be amongst the ninety, which our city had added to those of the other departments, was so seized with despair, that she precipitated herself from a window of the 4th story of a house in the rue de la Pacherie, and dashed out her brains.

PARIS, 10 Fructidor.

The ex-Directory was reproached with its arbitrary dismissals; and Quirot and Texier Olivier and many other representatives complained bitterly that those dismissals were brought about by intrigue, and without the deputations being consulted.

Constitution. I am far from accusing the Directory of this crime, [and yet he has expressly done so] I do not even accuse the minister of the Interior. This infamous machination springs from those bureaus where are found those individuals whose names recall recollections the most painful and dolorous, and who find their conscience not to be quieted, until all the wretches of the republic shall have chafed from their functions the wife and virtuous republicans.

Letters from Carcaffone announce that all is calm at present in the neighboring departments; the central administration of the Upper Garonne has issued a proclamation to the peasants in those environs, to engage them to return to their homes and to deliver up their chiefs; we are ignorant of the effect produced by it.

They write from Copenhagen; "Our Court appears decided in observing the strictest neutrality. The ambassador of Russia, baron de Kudener, received yesterday his audience of leave."

The town of Saint Claude has been burnt to ashes: two hundred and ninety houses are no more but an heap of cinders and of ruins, of which the eye can hardly embrace the extent. Not a single habitation spared, not a single pannel of the wall that would contain a piece of timber, or that does not menace to crush the ruffians which should dare to take shelter under it, not a stone but is calcined, not a cellar where the fire has not penetrated, not a morsel of metal which has not been either bent or melted, or devoured by the flames; two hundred individuals perished in the flames, the rest remain naked, without asylum and without bread, at the foot of the steep and craggy rock, which seems to accuse at this moment, the government with its abandonment.

[Saint Claude was a beautiful town in the Province of Franche Comté, seated between three high mountains. The cause of its afflicting catastrophe, does not appear in any of the papers which have reached our hands.]

A dreadful massacre took place at Bourdeaux, on the 19, 20, 21 and 22 Thermidor.

The recitals which it is our duty to give, of the state of some insurgent villages, makes us groan with horror. A column of rebels which had taken refuge at Saint Claire, a small town near Lectoure, have been all hewn in pieces: the vanquishers not content with this advantage, have, we are assured, delivered to the edge of the sword, all the inhabitants indiscriminately, men, women, children, and old men: the town was afterwards pillaged, delivered to the flames.

[St. Claire was a beautiful and flourishing village in the province of Armagnac, near the strong town of Lectoure.]

Suwarow has confiscated at Turin the library and book magazine of citizen Socra. It is well for this author of the crimes of kings, of the popes, &c. &c. that he has himself at Paris; for the least punishment he could have expected for selling these works would have been the role or the knout.

An order had been given to the garrison of Mentz to advance towards Strasbourg already had they their knapsacks at their backs, when the commandant, perceiving the treason which was to have delivered up that place to the Austrians, arrested the departure of the troops; the general who was to have delivered up Mentz has passed over to the enemy. This treason was discovered by the arrestation of an aristocratic priest, upon whom were found letters which announced the intended delivery of that place, the fortifications of which arg to the enemy an object of dread.

It is said, the Governor Eléct waited on the President of the United States yesterday morning.

The Officers of the Volunteer Legion of Philadelphia, in the service of the United States, assembled this day, at the Coffee-house, at half past two o'clock, and, in procession, waited upon the President, with their compliments.

It has been reported, that Captain Barry was to join Captain Murray, in his cruise against the French Republic: the report is erroneous.

The Insurgente frigate is, we learn, expected shortly to return from her European cruise.

The best fortune that could have befallen Governor Miffin's political character, was to be succeeded by Governor M'Kean. The reign even of a rotten log was sighed over by the Fregs, after they had fallen under the dominion of the Stork.

MARRIED, On Friday evening last, Mr. William P. Beatty, of Columbia, Lancaster county, to Miss Eleanor Poulk, Newhampshire, Bucks county.

TO CORRESPONDENTS. The Communication from "an Old Correspondent," of his ideas on "the propriety of suspending the contemplated mission to France," was not received, in course of Post, until after the news had reached us, of the Envoys having failed. He will probably acquiesce in the propriety of ceasing to oppose that measure; as men ever on the watch for grounds to impeach the integrity of those who differ from them in opinion, would seize the occasion to denounce the publication of these sentiments as a needless and wanton continuance of opposition, after the lapse of that interval when only it could have been of avail.

BOSTON, November 11. THE ENVOYS, We learn from Newport, that the ENVOYS having embarked on board the frigate United States, the set sail on Sunday morning, at 10 o'clock.

NEW YORK, November 11. Custom house, Nov. 9. Copy of a circular letter received this day from the American Consul, at the Havana. Consulate of the Havana, October 18, 1799. [CIRCULAR.]

"SIR, I have the honor to inform you, that a decree was yesterday passed by the government of this island, for the admission of neutrals, on the same terms and regulations as previous to the late royal order, until the determination of his most catholic majesty shall be known, with regard to the representations which will go forward in the packet that is to sail from this city in a few days; only excluding from this concession all vessels and property captured and condemned by the enemies of Spain, which under no cover or pretext will be admitted. Be pleased, Sir, to make this intelligence public. I have the honor to be, respectfully, Your obedient servant, JOHN MORTON, Consul of the United States of America. The Collector of the port of New York.
