

Foreign Intelligence.

PARIS, September 3.

The following particulars of the late actions in Switzerland are given as authentic in the Journal de Paris.

The division of the Valais, commanded by general Thureau, having under his orders generals Jardon and Jacobin, first cut off the enemy's communication between his camp of Lax and the Simplon, by the hardy manoeuvre of carrying the post of Rosenwald. It afterwards occupied the Simplon, forced the camp of Lax, and ascended the Rhone to its source. This division took 1,800 prisoners and 3 cannon.

General Lecourbe, seconded by the generals of brigade, Guadin, Loison, and Boivin, disposed his attack in the following manner: general Boivin had orders to proceed against Schwitz; he defeated the enemy under general Massena's eyes, who was present at this attack, and took Schwitz. Gen. Guadin had orders to ascend the valley of the Aar: he carried the posts of the Crimfel, and of Mount la Fourche, with the bayonet, and afterwards marched against Urseren: he took 300 prisoners. General Loison was charged to penetrate into the valley of Urseren, by Wafen.

A small fort, covered on the one side by steep rocks, defended by 400 men and 2 cannon, shut the entrance to the road, which was only a foot way. Gen. Loison forced the passage, took the two cannon, and 300 prisoners. Another attack was to be made on the lake of Lucerne and Altorf. Gen. Lecourbe took charge of it himself: he overthrew the enemy, carried all his positions on the lake, took Altorf, and then marched against Wafen: after having made, on this point, his junction with Gen. Loison, he pursued the enemy as far as the Devil's Bridge, which he found cut down. He was repairing this bridge, when the brigade of Gen. Guadin, coming from Urseren, appeared on the other border; there the union of the three brigades of that brave division was effected. Lecourbe then attacked the enemy who covered the passage into the Grison country: he completed his defeat, and pursued him as far as Disentis.

The division Chabran, commanded by the general of that name and the generals Humbert and Laval, was directed against the important posts of Wolran and Incedlen. Repulsed several times, it at length, by a bold manoeuvre, turned the enemy's left flank and forced him to retreat. A column of 2000 Austrians was cut off and taken prisoners.

During these operations, the divisions of Lorge and Sault formed a feigned attack on Zurich. They carried off from the enemy his great guards. Finally, the enemy thought that our movements on our right had weakened our left, and in order to attack it, he attempted the passage of the Aar. He was repulsed by the 5th division of the army of the Danube, and some Tyrolians were taken prisoners.

General Oudinot, chief of the general staff was wounded in the shoulder, in the attack of Schwitz.

The results of these glorious actions have been already published.

The offices of the department of foreign affairs are, it is said, to undergo an entire reform.

BOMBAY, June 20.

On Sunday last arrived the ship Upton Cattle, capt. Pavin, from the Straits of Babelmandel in 11 days, having left at the island of Perim, the ships Jahangeer, Hercules and Stamboule.

Letters from Perim of the 9th and 11th inst. mention that they had not then succeeded in finding water on the island, altho' they had dug to a considerable depth, and that they were still supplied from the Main with that necessary article, which of course was served out in a limited allowance to each individual; the intense heat subjected them to occasional inconvenience on this account, the Thermometer being often at 104, and seldom under 96 in the tents on shore: they got no poultry, but goats and sheep in abundance altho' dear.

Letters of the 6th June from Mocha are also received by this opportunity, mentioning that they had no late intelligence from Egypt. The Centurion and Albatros had been off Suez in the beginning of May, where by the accounts which reached them the French had about 800 men, but no craft excepting a two masted vessel which was destroyed by the Centurion's boats, in spite of the endeavours which the French also exerted in a few small boats armed to prevent it. The Centurion arrived at Mocha from Suez, last from Juddah on the 6th June, and the Albatros was left cruising off Suez. The Squadron was well supplied with beef, mutton, &c. and the natives are to all appearance well disposed towards the English. Capt. Willon left off on the 5th on an embassy to the Imaun of Senna.—This gentleman is, by all accounts from that quarter, in high favour with the governor and all the great men of Mocha; and his hospitality has rendered him very popular with the many visitors of his own nation, whose duty has lately called him to that place. It was thought that the Leopard would leave the Red Sea in August, and proceed to this place for repair. The Eliza of this port arrived at Juddah on the 19th of May.

On Thursday the 27th inst. anchor'd in the harbour, the ship Rainha dos Anjos, capt. Francis Goncalves de Lima, from the house of Messrs. Joseph Gomes Loureiro and Co. of Lisbon, manned with 115 Europeans and 20 Artillery soldiers. Left Lisbon on the 19th of November, 1798, Rio Janeiro on the 19th of February, Cape of Good Hope on the 8th of April, and lastly from Mofambique the 3d instant, has had an excellent passage without meeting any ships, &c. Her cargo consists of different Lisbon and Port Wines, a small quantity of paper, elephants teeth, and sundry other articles, having sold a part of her cargo at Mofambique and the Brazils, and what is now remaining is intended for Goa and Damaun; she is only coming here owing to the Monsoon, and intends continuing her voyage to Damaun and Goa as soon as the weather admits.

We hear by letters from Cannanore, that it was Gen. Stuart's intention to proceed to the Presidency if the Admiral could spare a ship for that purpose, to whom the general had made an application. No answer had been returned when our letters came away, but as the weather was uncommonly fine and moderate, and the admiral was known to be cruising off Declah when the general wrote, it was expected that the admiral would, if possible comply with his request.

These letters add, that lieutenant-colonel Wifeman, with a brigade of Seapoys, was preparing to march for the Casary country to take possession of Declah, Mangalore, and a few other posts before the rains set in violently—and that Gen. Hartley was expected to move with the rest of the army to take complete possession as soon as the season would admit. It was reported that the inhabitants of that part of the country had expressed a desire to be under the protection of the English government; and they were ready to receive our troops and deliver up the country to them.

We are happy in commemorating the following instance of the most exalted courage in a humble individual, and although his merit will never be emblazoned in the herald's page, the contempt of danger and death in the cause of his country, which is so conspicuous in Sergeant Graham's conduct, ranks him in the first class of military heroes, and we must sincerely lament his untimely fall.

Extract of a letter from Cannanore, dated the 27th May, 1799.

"The forlorn hope was led by a sergeant of the light company of the Bombay European regiment, who volunteered his services on the occasion. His name was Graham. He ran forward to examine the breach, and mounting it he pulled off his hat, and with three cheers called out success to lieutenant Graham (alluded to his having a commission if he survived) on which he rejoined his party, and remounted with them with the colours in his hand; upon reaching the rampart, he stuck the color staff in it, exclaiming, d-m'en I'll show them the British flag, and was at that instant shot through the head—dying like a hero as he was. I am sorry to say he has left a European widow and five children to lament his fate."

At the time of the fall of the capital, and the death of the Sultan, an immense convey consisting of the six regiments of cavalry, Montgomery's corps, all the Nizam's horse to the amount of near 10,000, a detachment of the Nizam's infantry, and about 12 thousand European and Native infantry with 48 guns, having near one hundred thousand Britisharies under their escort were on their way to the grand camp and about 60 miles distant. Cumber Odeen was lodging them with the greatest part of Tippeo's horse and a body of infantry with 20 guns, but retreated instantly on hearing of his master's death, which it is remarkable he was informed of it on the night ensuing viz. the night of the 4th May. It has been discovered by Tippeo's papers, that the political courage which dictated the late magnanimous measures, and the success which has crowned the splendid achievements of those who were charged with the execution of them, have secured the British affairs in this country, from intrigues which, under any other circumstances than those of the present brilliant era, would have excited great alarm. Circumstances however as we are, the perfidious author of all moulder in the dust, all his counsellors and generals led in the captivity, and all the treasures of his metropolis at the disposal of the conquerors, this discovery only serves as an additional justification of the war, which was notoriously as just as it was necessary on the original grounds stated in the proclamation of the right honourable the governor general of the 22d February last, if a copy in the Province of Malabar, of which a copy is herewith subjoined, as transcribed from the official document published there preparatory to the march of the grand army.

On the 17th May the late Sultan's horses, elephants and camels were delivered over in Purnea's tent to lieutenant colonels Clofe and Dallas, and captains Macaulay and Montgomery, the stable horiemen attending their new masters, with all submission and obedience! 3120 horses were reckoned on this occasion, 99 elephants and 175 camels, and the late Sultan's private property; a body of Jaghire horse estimated at 12,000, were ordered to their respective villages, where they remained peaceable subjects by the latest accounts, and in all probability will remain so, excepting they are wanted for offensive operations by our government.

Colonel Read, of the Madras establishment, was employed about the middle and towards the latter end of May, putting garriions into Hoolindroog, Otradroog, Sawandroog and Schwagunga; these were garriioned when our present accounts left Sawandroog on the 23d ultimo: on the 24th a party was to be sent to Bangalore, and it was expected the colonel would afterwards move to Oolcottah and Nunddroog, from thence to Sera, and probably to Chittledroog with the same view.

Colonel Read has been appointed Collector General of all the conquered countries, and had appointed Captains Macleod, Munro, and Graham to different collectorships, to which important trust these gentlemen have been recommended by their knowledge of the country language, it having been determined to make that an indispensable qualification for offices of that nature. We understand this is not only perfectly consonant to the sentiments of the Hon. the Court of Directors, but conformable to their orders, who have wisely judged that whatever advantages are derivable to the company as sovereign, or to the natives as their subjects, will be best ensured by the immediate agency of their European servants; and as a proof how highly this attainment is estimated, we understand Mr. Hurdle, a gentleman of the Madras establishment of scarcely seven years standing, has been appointed to the sub-collectorship of Dindigul with the whole of the newly acquired districts of Caor and Coimbatour.
