PARIS, September 17.

Yesterday the Directory sent a message to the Gouncil of 500, in which it is said,

"The activity and boldness, citizen representatives, of the royal conspirators, becomes alarming; the directory watches with redoubled vigilance; the streams of bribery and seduction slow through all the parts of the republic. In Paris, citizen representatives, was already subjected the royal proclamation, which exhorted Freschmen to the restoration of the throne and power of Louis XVIII. In Paris these monarchial circular letters know their origin, they are Louis XVIII. In Paris these monarchial circular letters know their origin, they are intended as forerunners of royal dignity; patricide preses have distributed many throw the departments, and this very moment many thousands of them are completed. The directory ordered these proclamations to be seed to a seed that of them are completed. The directory ordered these proclamations to be seed. All those who are concerned in this work are in the hands of justice; their sentence awaits them; their guilt, does it not exceed that of others? May not such a proceeding be called the murder of the republic? Ought they not to be delivered up to the military commission;" This message was referred to a committee of five members. The persons who in conformity to the above message, were apprehended and confined in the Temple, are the printer Lottic, Brothers Desire, Dor and his wise—Two proclamations were sound with them; one of the Prince de Conde, an address to the conscripts; and 4000 copies of an address to the conscripts; and 4000 copies of an address to the conferipts; and 4000 copies of an addlefs to

Our primes fay, that the military commission to which the directory has delivered the royal printers (as stated in the above message) may finally become the revolutionary tribunals. "The missuse of military commissions has been the downfall of James the Second in England—in France, Juries: ought so decide."

A Courier from Berlin has arrived here; according to our public prints here, a good understanding continues to exist between Pruffia and France.

Since the refignation of Bernadotte, minifer of war, requells have been made by Marchand (formerly regulator of the Jacobin Club) Chaudien, Raisson, and many other Jacobins, to be difmissed from their ferrand officers.

The difmified minister of war, Bernadotte, The difmissed minister of war, Bernadotte, made use, in one of his last proclamations which he made to the army, of the following sentence, "I long for the armyal of that moment, which may bring me into your bosom again,"—in consequence of which the directory resolved on the 14th " that the resignation of Berdanotte, minister of war, be accepted." In a letter therefore directed to him on that occasion, it was notified to him, that it, would be deemed a great degree of satisfaction, if during his stay in Paris, he would meet the directory for the purpose of concerting the most falutary measures, respecting the command which they had detreed to him; hereupon general Berdanotte wrote the directory on the 15th inst. the following letter:

Citizens Directors.

"This inflant I received your decree of yesterday, and the conclusive letter accompanying the same. You accept a resignation which I did not intend to make. Deeply impressed with the importance of the measures adopted for the support of the war despartment, I wished to be extricated from the certain consequent dissipations. This no doubt has caused your resolve to send me tack to the army again. The moment at which I am ready to give you a statement of my administration up to the 22d inst. you are pleased to announce to me that you have appointed me to a command. I leave it for you to judge, whether, after an interrupted series of twenty years satigue and labour, I have deserved a pension. I declare to you have deferved a pention. I declare to you will bout helitation that I now fland in need of that as well as of a retired life."

Yesterday it was reported that Quinette minister of the interior, had refigned; the office devolved upon Fouche, (minister of police) and commissary Maire was appointed to the office of minister of police in the room of Fouche.
