The Gazette.
 PHILADELPHIA,
 MONDAY EVENING, JANUARY 6.
Legislature of Pennsylvania.
 JANUARY 3.
 To THOMAS M'KEAN,
 Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

SIR,
 The obligations of honor, gratitude and interest are strong ties; and when to these are added, the solemn pledge of a oath to support the constitution of the commonwealth and of the United States, which the members of the House of Representatives as well as yourself have taken, not a shadow of doubt ought to remain of your having their constant co-operation in all objects which may contribute to the happiness and prosperity of our constituents.
 We believe, Sir, as you in your communication to us have expressed, that the present crisis in human affairs demands the exercise of wisdom, moderation and fortitude from all who are employed in the business of government. A conduct uniformly regulated by such principles, would be rewarded in its happy effects—wise in the choice of officers, moderate in administration, and strong in the pursuit of measures which will contribute to our country's good, we might have a reasonable ground of hope, that the approbation of our constituents and the blessing of Heaven could ensue. We think it however, due to our constituents, to express our further belief, that distinguishing the State by parties and applying the epithets of traitors, Tories, refugees, French aristocrats, British agents, apostate whigs, &c. to nearly one half of the freemen of the commonwealth, is far from being a testimony of such wisdom, moderation and fortitude, and will not, in the remotest degree, contribute to conciliate the opinions of the people generally.
 We had accepted your communication to the Legislature as an earnest, that although your mind might have been previously disturbed by the opposition of some, you had from that moment discarded the impression of being the governor of part of the people only. We have been obliged, however, to acknowledge the fallacy of our hope, inasmuch as we have seen that many of the old soldiers and officers in our revolutionary war are to be dismissed from their present employments without even an imputation of mal conduct.

We lament the occasion which calls for this language, but animated by a spirit of republicanism, and disdaining the servility of courtly adulation, we are impelled to use it.
 It would give us sincere pleasure, if, from this day, the language, and the conduct too of the legislative and executive branches of our government should be found to unite for the common welfare; and that our constituents should harmonize and convince the world that party animosity is merged in universal regard to our constitutional rights, and the dignity of our independence.
 The above was on Tuesday last offered in the House of Representatives, as a substitute in the answer to the Governor's address which had been reported by a committee. To day it was fully debated, and on the question to postpone the reported answer to adopt the substitute, the Yeas and Nays were called, and appeared as follows,
YEAS.
 Barclay, Blair, Brown, Buckley, Bull, Campbell, Coburn, Erwin, Fisher, Fox, Franklin, Frazier, Haga, Hall, Hannum, Hemphill, Herlach, Keopple, Keys, Kirk, M'Nair, M'Pheron, Miller, Palmer, Prefeton, Sample, A. Scott, J. Scott, Stewart, Stover, Taylor, Turner, Wynkoop.—33.

SOL. MARACHE, Secretary.
 Dec. 24, 1799. 1aw2E.

AN ORDINANCE
 For the regulation of the Market held in Second-street.
 Section I. Be it ordained and enacted by the Citizens of Philadelphia in Select and Common Councils assembled, That a market shall be held in the city of Philadelphia on every Tuesday and Friday, throughout the year to begin at day-light and end at two o'clock in the afternoon between the first day of April and the first day of September following, and at three o'clock, between the first day of September, and the first day of April following, and that the limits, and extent of the said market shall be, and extend throughout the space called, The New-Market Square, from the fourth line of Pine-street, to the North line of Cedar-street.

Section II. And it is further ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several spaces and portions hereinafter mentioned and described, shall be appropriated and used by the persons and for the purposes hereinafter directed and provided, to wit, the carts, waggons, sleds and other carriages bringing provisions to the said Market for sale and remaining there during market hours, shall stand and be placed with their horses unbarneled and securely fastened to their respective carriages with their heads to the southward in a single row next to the posts or curb-stones which guard the footway on each side of Second-street, from Pine to South-street, leaving the space opposite Lombard and Galkill-streets, Stammers alley and Relief-alley, free and open for the passage of carts, carriages and horses at all times, Provided, That no horse or carriages shall be placed so near to the corners of the streets as to obstruct the footways across the streets or so near to each other as to prevent foot passengers from walking between them.

And the venders of salted and fresh fish in the said market, shall stand in a single row on each side of the market-place, beginning at the posts at the north end thereof next to Pine-street, and running southward forty feet.
 And the venders of roots, herbs and vegetable provisions raised on their farms or gardens, shall stand in a single row on each side of the market-place, next adjoining to the stand appropriated for the venders of fish, and extending southward to the shambles, and also in a single row on each side of the market-place between the north and south shambles, leaving a passage between them as wide as between the shambles and an opening opposite that part of Lombard-street westward of Second-street, at least twenty-five feet wide, for carriages and horses to pass and repass, and an opening of three feet in every thirty feet in each of those situations for the passage of the citizens into and out of the market, and also in a single row under the eaves on the east side of the shambles, extending five feet therefrom from the northern to the southern limits thereof, excepting forty feet from the north line of the north shambles, which is appropriated for the venders of fruit and garden seeds. Provided, That the passage between every two stalls shall be left free and open as heretofore. And for the accommodation of such persons as aforesaid vending roots, herbs and vegetables, there shall be stands between each opening on the east side of the shambles under the eaves, provided by the City Commissioners, which stands shall be made by sliding boards under the butcher's stalls or otherwise, as the said Commissioners may direct, Provided, That no person shall occupy any of the said stands free of rent.

And the inhabitants of the country bringing to the said market and exposing to sale meat, butter, eggs or other provisions the produce of their farms or gardens shall have stands prepared for them by the City Commissioners on the west side of the north shambles under the eaves which stands shall be made by sliding boards behind the butcher's stalls, or otherwise as the City Commissioners shall direct.
 The space under the eaves of the northern moiety of the fourth-shambles on the west side thereof shall be appropriated for the venders of meal of every kind and the southern moiety thereof for the venders of the manufactures of America.

And the stalls on both sides in the northern and southern shambles shall be stands for butchers as heretofore, and all and every the spaces within the limits of the market not herein above appropriated as stands for waggons, carts, carriages and horses and for exposing goods and country produce for sale shall be and they are hereby declared to be open and free passages within the said market, and the same shall be kept open and free from all obstructions whatsoever for the more easy passage of the citizens and others during the hours of market, and if any person or persons shall place or keep any thing therein to hinder the free passage of the citizens and shall not forthwith remove such obstruction upon request every person so offending shall forfeit and pay the sum of two dollars to be recovered with costs before the Mayor or any Alderman of the city as debts under forty shillings are recoverable and paid into the Treasury for the use of the city, and if any person or persons shall use or occupy any stands or space other than that which is hereby appropriated for him, her or them, or shall drive or place his, her or their horse, cart, wagon or carriage in any other place or in any other manner than is hereby directed, he, she or they so offending shall forfeit and be adjudged to pay a fine of two dollars to be recovered with costs in the manner and for the use herein above mentioned.

Section III. And it is further ordained and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no butcher or other person shall slaughter or kill any beast within the limits of the said market or lay any garbage, dung or offal therein under the penalty of forfeiting the sum of five dollars for every offence, to be
