Extract of a letter received from a Gentleman in Bordeaux, to his friends in this City.

"When I embarked from America it was not without some reluctance; but I never expected to find this country in such a deplorable situation; not on account of the suspension of every commercial intercourse, but on account of the re-organization of Jacobinism of those monsters of iniquity who have fallen out again of their caverns, and who are spreading terror, desolation and civil war throughout the country. Bordeaux, that once flourishing and opulent city, and which had heretofore escaped every convulsion, has since my arrival been the object of their bloody rage. Numbers of armless and peaceable citizens having been pursued, fired upon and shot by them in different parts of the town.

"It would become too painful a task for me, was I to give you a sketch of the sinister prospects which this country in particular presents, and when contrasting the tranquillity which we enjoy in America, it seems to me that I came from a terrestrial paradise, into a wilderness, where every moment is to me a moment of regret and repentance. The worst is that I find myself obliged to remain here and to wait the development of further events."

At a stated meeting of the American Philosophical Society held at their Hall the 3d of January 1800 for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year agreeably to the act of incorporation of the Society the following persons were duly chosen, viz.

BALTIMORE, January 2.

An account of the Flour inspected in the city of Baltimore, for the last quarter, ending 31st December, 1799, as returned to the Mayor by the Inspectors, viz.

89,316 whole barrels
5,860 half barrels

Departed this life yesterday afternoon, Mr. Abraham Stiler, an old and respectable inhabitant of the city. After attending the funeral honors of his beloved Washington, he laid down on his bed satisfied, and in a few minutes expired without a groan.

We announce with regret the melancholy, unfortunate and accidental death of Mr. Thomas Kello, of Ann-Arundel County, a gentleman whose exit will be heard and recollected with grief by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

He yesterday morning went out with a double barreled fowling piece and his dogs—they started some partridges near his house, at which he fired, and immediately ran up to the game and with the butt of the gun endeavoured to keep off the dogs—but unfortunately the other barrel, which was loaded, went off and discharged its whole contents in his left hip, which terminated his existence in a few minutes.

His friends are requested to attend his funeral to-morrow morning at ten o'clock, from his late residence at Patapisc Lower Ferry to Hammond's Ferry.
