Funeral Dration, DEATH

GENERAL WASHINGTON,

Delivered, at the request of Congress, by MAJOR GENERAL HENRY LEE, M. C. from Virginia.

IN obedience to your will, I rife your humble organ, with the hope of executing a part of the fystem of public mourning which you have been pleased to adopt, commemorative of the death of the most illustrious and most beloved personage this country has ever produced; and which, while it trnsinits to posterity your sense of the aw-ful event, faintly represents your knowledge of the consummate excellence you so cor-

Desperate indeed is any attempt on earth Desperate indeed is any attempt on earth to meet correspondently this dispensation of Heaven; for, while with pious rehgnation we submit to the will of an all gracious Providence, we can never cease lamenting in our finite view of Omnipotent Wisdom, the heart-rending privation for which our nation weeps. When the civilized world shakes to its centre; when every moment gives birth to strange and momentous changes; when our peaceful quarter of the globe, exempt as it happily has been from any share in the slaughter of the human race, may yet be compelled to abandon her pacific policy, and to rifk the doleful cafualties of war: What limit is there to the extent of our lofs?—None within the reach of my words to express; none which your feelings will not disavow.

The founder of our fæderate republicour bulwark in war, our guide in peace, is no more. Oh that this was but questionano more. Oh that this was but quellionable! Hope, the comforter of the wretched, would pour into our agonized hearts its balmy dew. But, alas! there is no hope for us; our Washington is removed forever. Possessing the stoutest frame, and purest mind, he had passed nearly to his fixty-eighth year, in the enjoyment of high health, when, habituated by his care of us to neglect himhabituated by his care of us to neglect him-felf, a flight gold, diffregarded became incon-venient on Friday, oppressive on Saturday, and defying every medical interposition, be-fore the morning of Sunday, put an end to the best of men. An end did I say—his same survives! bounded only by the limits of the earth, and by the extent of the human mind. He survives in our hearts, in the mind. He survives in our hearts, in the growing knowledge of our children, in the affection of the good throughout the world; and when our monuments shall be done away; when nations now existing shall be no more; when even our young and far-spreading empire, shall have perished, still will our Washington's glory unfaded shine, and die not, until love of virtue cease on earth, or earth itself sinks into chaos.

How, my fellow-citizens, shall I single to your grateful hearts his pre-eminent worth! Where shall I begin in opening to your view a character throughout sublime: Shall I speak of his warlike atchievements, all springing from obedience to his country's all fpringing from obedience to his country's will—all directed to his country's good?

Will you go with me to the Banks of the Monongahela, to see your youthful Wash-ngton, supporting, in the dismal hour of Indian victory, the ill-fated Braddock, and faving, by his judgment and by his valour, the remains of a defeated army, pressed by the conquering savage soe? Or, when oppressed America, nobly resolving to risk her all in defence of her violated rights, he was elevated by the unanimous voice of Congress to the command of her armies: Will you follow him to the high-grounds of Boston where to an undisciplined, courageous and virtuous yeomanry, his presence gave the lability of system, and insused the invincistability of system, and insused the invincibility of love of country; or shall I carry you to the painful scenes of Long-Island, York-Island and New Jersey, when combating superior and gallant armies, aided by powerful scenes, and led by chiefs high in the roll of same, he stood the bulwark of our safety; undismayed by disaster; unchanged by change of fortune. Or will you view him in the precarious fields of Trenton, where deep gloom unnerving every arm, reigned triumphant through our thinned, worn down, unaided ranks: himself unmoved.—

Dreadful was the night; it was about this Dreadful was the night; it was about this time of winter—The storm raged—the Delaware rolling furiously with floating ice, forbad the approach of man. Washington, self collected, viewed the tremendous scene—his ountry called; unappall'd by furrounding langers, he passed to the hostile shore: he ought; he conquered. The morning fun theered the American world. Our country rose on the event; and her dauntless Chief ourfuing his blow, completed in the lawns of Princeton, what his vaft foul had conceived on the shores of Delaware.

Thence to the firong grounds of Morris-Town he, led his small but gallant band; and through an eventful winter, by the high efforts of his genius, whose matchless force was measurable only by the growth of difficulties, he held in check formidable hostile legions, conducted by a Chief experienced in the art of war, and famed for his valour on the ever-memorable heights of Abraham, where fell Wolfe, Montcalm, and fince our much lamented Montgomery : all covered with glory. In this fortunate interval, produced by his mafterly conduct, our fathers, ourfelves, animated by his refilles example, rallied around our country's

Who is there that has forgotten the vales of Brandywine—the fields of Germantown, or the plains of Monmouth; every where prefent, wants of every kind obstructing, present, wants of every kind obstructing, numerous and valiant armies encountering, himself a host, he assuged our sufferings, limited our privations, and upheld our tottering republic. Shall I display to you the spread of the fire of his soul, by rehearsing the praises of the hero of Saratoga, and his much lov'd compeer of the Carolinas? No; our Washington wears not borrowed glory: To Gates—to Green, he gave without reserve the applause due to their eminent metric; and long may the Chiefs of Saratoga, and of Eutaws, receive the grateful respect of a grateful people.

and of Eutaws, receive the grateful respect of a grateful people.

Moving in his own orbit, he imparted heat and light to his most distant fatellites; and combining the physical and moral force of all within his sphere, with irresistible weight he took his course, commisserating folly, disdaining vice, dismaying treason and invigorating despondency, until the auspicious hour arrived, when, united with the intrepid forces of a potent and magnanimous ally, he brought to submission the since conqueror of India; thus finishing his long career of military glory with a suffer corresreer of military glory with a luftre corresponding to his great name, and in this his last act of war affixing the feal of sate to

To the horrid din of battle sweet peace succeeded, and our virtuous chief, mindful only of the common good, in a moment tempting person aggrandizement, hushed the discontents of growing sedition, and surrendering his power into the hands from which he had received it, converted his fword into a ploughthare, teaching an admiring world that to be truly great, you must be truly

Was I to stop here, the picture would be incomplete, and the task imposed unfinished—Great as was our Washington in war, and as much as did that greatness contribute to produce the American Republic, it is not in war alone his pre-eminence stands confpicuous: his various talents combining all the capacities of a statesman with those of a solution of the capacities of a statesman with those of a solution. dier, fitted him alike to guide the councils and the armies of our nation. Scarcely had he rested from his martial toils, while his invaluable parental advice was still sounding in our ears, when he who had been our shield and our sword, was called forth to act a less plendid but more important part.

Possessing a clear and a penetrating mind, a strong and a sound judgment, calmness and temper for deliberation, with invincible firmness and perseverance in resolutions maturely formed, drawing information from all, acting from himself, with incorruptible integrity and unvarying patriotifm: his own fuperiority and the public confidence alike marked him as the man deligned by heaven to lead in the great political as well as mili-tary events which have diffinguished the æra

The finger of an overruling Providence, pointing at Washington, was neither mistaken nor unobserved; when to realise the vast hopes to which our revolution had given birth, a change of political system became indispensable.

How novel, how grand the spectacle! Independent states stretched over an immense territory, and known only by common difficulty, clinging to their union as the rock of their fasety, deciding by frank comparison of their relative condition, to rear on that rock, under the guidance of reason, a common government through whose comcommon government through whose com-manding protection, liberty and order, with their long train of bleffings should be fafe to themselves, and the fure inheritance of

This arduous task devolved on citizens fe-This arduous task devolved on citizens se-lected by the people, from knowledge of their wisdom and confidence in their virtue. In this august assembly of sages and of pa-triots, Washington of course was found-and, as if acknowledged to be most wife, where all were wise, with one voice he was declared their chief. How well he merited this rare distinction, how faithful were the labors of himself and his compatriots, the abors of himself and his compatriots, the work of their hands and our union, flrength and prosperity, the fruits of that work, best

But to have effentially aided in presenting to his country this confummation of her hopes, neither fatisfied the claims of his fellow-citizens on his talents, nor those duties which the possession of those talents imposed. Heaven had not insused into his mind fuch an uncommon share of its atherial spirit to remain unemployed, nor beflowed on him his genius unaccompied with the corref-ponding duty of devoting it to the common good. To have framed a conflictation, was flewing only, without realizing the general happiness. This great work remained to be done, and America, stedfast in her prefer-Washington, unpractifed as he was in the duties of civil administration, to execute this last act in the completion of the national felicity. Obedient to her call, he assumed the high office with that self-distrust peculiar to his innate modesty, the constant attendant of of pre-eminent virtue. What was the burst of joy, through our assumed land on this executives land on this executive. of joy through our anxious land on this exhilerating event is known to us all. The aged, the young, the brave, the fair, rival-led each other in demonstrations of their gratitude; and this high wrought, delightful scene was heightened in its effect, by the fingular contest between the zeal of the be-flowers and the avoidance of the receiver of the honors bestowed. Commencing his administration, what heart is not charmed with the recollection of the pure and wife princi-ples announced by himfelf, as the basis of his political life. He best understood the indis-

foluble union between virtue and happinels,
