Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, November 7.

The last accounts communicated by the Clyde, are said to state, that seven of the French line said from Brest on the 13th ult : that they less in the outer road 39 of the line; and that on the same day a large fleet went in there under a frong convoy. We know that intelligence was some time before seceived that the combined enemy before received that the combined enemy, then nearly equipped at Breft, amounted to as fail of the line, and think it highly probable that the firong convoy now alluded to, refers to the French fquadron from Rochefort, or the Spanish fquadron from Ferrol.

Lord Bridport has off Breft 34 fail of the line, as well and gallantly manned and equipped as any ships that ever put to sea; but, though we were to admit that even with so immense an inferiority as 34, to possible 54, we yet should come off victors, it is an experiment we ought not to venture, whilst periment we ought not to venture, whilst fo many of our ships, thirsting for conquest, remain idly in our ports. With the fortunate superiority, of every kind, which we possess, our's should now be bloodless victories. The atchievment of miracles could not augment our fame. It is to be hoped we shall not again trust to miracles for our Baron Jacobi is stated to be on his route from Berlin to this country, as ambashdor from his Prussian Majesty: Count Degenfeld attends him as sceretary of legation.

Barron Geserstreem, who was charred with the convoy of a seet of Swedish vessels bound to some port in Frince, and which, in consequence, was detained by our cruifers, was lately tried at Stockholm, by a Supreme Council of War, and sentenced to be shot, for not having sought the English squadron on the 12th vit. He was taken to the place of execution, but at the instant of aw-that for not having long title English iquadron on the 12th ult. He was taken to the place of execution, but at the instant of awful preparation received the royal pardon.

Letters from Constantinople September
26, relate the receipt of dispatches from Sir
Sidney Smith, dated from on board the Le Tigre. 74 guns, at Cyprus.

The distinguished valor of our troops, manisested upon all occasions, but particularly in the late unfortunate expedition to Holland, where their conduct, like that of our marine, was beyond all praise, well entitled them to the animated thanks they have received from their king and country. This stattering admission of merit is, unquestionably, amongst the foldier's most desired rewards; but it, singly, would be an ill expression of public gratitude for the facrifices which have been made by these gallat fellows.

We feel that no sufficient pecuniary comlegs, arms, or conflictution; and conceive that philanthropy and policy alike forbid discarding upon his mere half pay the officer thus circumflanced, only because he is for and without confidering that his whole inheritance was probably expended to purchase the fituation that occasioned him to be formatilized.

A regulation alike honorable and beneficial to our navy gives a pension to each wounded officer, according to the extent of the injury he has received. An admiral who leses a limb, or experiences an inconvenience equal to such loss, is entitled to roool. per annum, and fo progressively to the lieu-tenant, who receives 5s. per day in addition pay stops with the Lieutenants; which, we trust, will not long continue to be the case; but on the present occasion shall only suggest the propriety of placing the army in this instance on a sooting with the Navy, in order that the sufferings of our brave desentes, which ought by every possible means to be alleviated, may not be increased by a conception of partiality or injustice from that country for which they have endured so much, and to which they have endured so much, and to which they are still so affectionately devoted.

The Batavian Government, reprehensible as it is in other respects, has, in allotting pensions to the several persons who may suffer in sighting their battles, given an example worthy our imitation. Policy and gratitude demand that valour should be incited and rewarded; added to which, no description of the subject can be so well entitled to the bounty and protection of the state, as by those whom it is desented, and who in that severe and dangerous service are disqualisted for all others.

We are too calightened to be assamed to

We are too calightened to be assaued to be root improvement, and too honourably proud to be second in justice or liberality to any other people. Our Navy and Army may, therefore, not only look for comforttable provision, when, either from national prace or individual infi mity, are no longer wanted; but expest, according to the practice of other nations, some honorary and pecuniary reward in the event of dignified and effential service.

The German papers state a report to have prevailed at Vieuna on the 16th ult. that a colonel from the Archduke's army had been sent with dispatches to Paris, in answer to others received by his royal highness from the French government.

We have much reason to believe that though the expedition to Holland has proved unsuccessful, the Russian troops, at least will not be unemployed.

The army of the enemy in North Hol-land continued to receive reinforcements, even subsequent to the agning of the Con-vention with the Duke of York.

ven subsequent to the signing of the Convention with the Duke of Yark.

The Dublin Mail which arrived this morning brings a report that marquis Cornwallis has it in contemplation to retire from the lord lieutenancy of Iroland. It is a report not countenanced by any thing we have by as many cavalry.

The archduke Joseph was married to a Russian Princels, the 16th, of a country feat of the Emperot, near Petersburgh.—
Prince Charles of Schwerin, was also to be married in a few days to another daughter of the Emperor.

LEGMORNE, Od. 2.

A flag of truce has, within these few lays, arrived from Bastia. It is faid to have brought the news that the Corsican mountaineers had rifen in a mass, and marched against Bastia, to massacre all the French who should be found there. This newsvants confirmation.

FLORENCE, Oa. 4.

On the night of the 2d, advice was re-ceived that Rome, as well as Civita Vecchia, furrendered by capitulation to the combined troops. This news had been fince fully confirmed. It was on the morning of the 30th that the furrender took place. The French garrifon obtained leave to embark for France and to take away a certain number of cover-

Immediately after the entry of the allied troops into Rome, the following proclamation was audiffied.

D. Emanuel Bourcard, Field. Marshal in the service of his majesty the king of the two Sicilies, commander in shief of his armies in Romania, Uc.

The troops of his majesty having come to re-chablish tranquillity, and heing desirous of respecting, and causing to be respected, the treaty concluded between the generals of the allied powers and the French general; we, therefore, inform all the inhabitants, that whoever shall commit the least disorder, or infringe the articles of the capitulation, which will be printed and published, shall be immediately condemned to death, and executed upon the spot.

ity of Rome was put under the protection of general Bourcard, commander of the Neapolitan troops. The French garrifon has retired with the honors of war, and repaired to Civies Vecchia, from whence it is to embark for France.

VENICE, Ca. 6.

According to letters from Pelaro, of the 1st of October, Ancona is full blockaded by fea, by feven Torkish ships, and twelve Rissian gun-boats. The body of the troops who besiege that place by land have been reinferced by thirty companies of troops of the line from Dalmatia. Immediately after the junction of the reinforcement, there will be a some attack will be a great attack. A letter has been intercepted, addressed by citizen Meunier, this former allowance.

We regret that the pension, like the half y stops with the Lieutenants; which, we having stated his difficulties of the french troops at Rome. he proposes to the latter to abandon Rome, in order to join his division.

By other accounts, general Meunier is accounted for the furrender of that place.

ALEXANDRIA (Piedmont) Oct 7.

Yesterday, Melas, general of artillery, and a fresh attack on the side of Coni, and pulsed the enemy on all points. This apportant success affures the communication tween Ceva and the Austrian camp under ona. We also hear that a French corps ich had advanced from Gavi towards Poz sunio-Furmigaro, has been repulfed with

We are affured that the French have eve uated Constance. However, no boat has et arrived from that city.

STRASBURGH, October 16.

According to letters from Waldshut the Austrian troops entered Little Base on the 8th. The French ratired to the other side of the Rhine, after having carried away the bridge of boats. The enemy also broke the bridges of the Rhine near Rheinfelden, and Seckengen. They have entirely ruined those of Lauhenbourg and Kaiserstuhl. It is supposed the French will not delay entirely evacuating the Frickthal. The head-quarters of his Royal Highness the Archduke Charles were, on the 10th of October, still at Donaueschingen. We presume that the Austrians will continually pass the Rhine near Stein and Dissenbosen: they have constructed a great number of pontoons on this side. d a great number of pontoons on this fide.

October 20.

Private letters inform us, that finee our troops entered Manheim, the bridge has been stablished, and that many divisions have saffed it in order to advance in two columns gainft Heilbron and Brufehal.
