

Foreign Intelligence.

TURIN, October 22.

The armies of gen. Melas and Kray have again surrounded Coni on all sides, and their joint forces, with the expected reinforcements, are estimated at 60,000 men and upwards.

CHUR, October 23.

Within these few days, the Imperialists in the Grison country have received reinforcements. All the bridges across the Rhine, excepting that of Feldspre, near Reichenan, are taken down. On the eastern frontiers of Switzerland the French assemble in considerable numbers, and threaten to invade that country. Near Urseren they have 1300 men; and at Ragaz they entered to raise entrenchments, which the Austrian cannon try to prevent. The chafeurs of Muntalun have entered the Brettigau, and Tyrolese riflemen are expected in the Engadin.

LEGHORN, October 28.

In the course of last night a corps of Russians of 3300 men, embarked and failed on a secret expedition, which is said to be intended to co-operate against Genoa from the sea, whilst gen. Klenau attacked that city in front; his corps is reinforced by Austrian troops, who have passed thro' our city from Italy. The baggage of the Russian corps is transported by land from hence to Pisa, &c.

ROVEREDO, October 29.

A few days ago a column of 12,000 French troops penetrated near Novi, and the Imperial gen. Karaczai, after a most obstinate defence, was obliged to retreat before such superior force.

The enemy extended their forces towards Coni, to relieve that city, but such numbers of Imperialists have assembled in haste, that the French will certainly withdraw from thence.

SUAZIA, October 31.

Schaffhausen has still an Austrian garrison. A telegraph has been erected, corresponding between that place and Donaueschingen to convey immediate information to the archduke of whatever occurs. The country people on the opposite banks are employed by the French in demolishing the bridge head near Schaffhausen. No farther accounts have yet been received concerning the heavy cannonade which was heard on the 25th near Constance.

KEMPTEN, October 31.

The famous Lucienfels, which is considered as the key to the Grison country, has been blown up, in consequence, as it is said, of a convention between the Imperialists and the French, to prevent either party from holding a strong position in that quarter. That fort was by no means advantageous for the Imperialists, it being a place of defence downwards against Feldkirch, and of course directed against the Austrians. When they are in possession of the Grison country, these entrenchments can be of no service to them; should that country fall into the hands of the enemy, that position, as has been proved by experience, must become extremely dangerous.

AUGSBURG, November 1.

This day the Russian General de Stackelberg and suit arrived here with several officers of Prince of Conde's army, and more are expected to-morrow. Field marshal Suwarrow is expected at Memmingen to-day.

VIENNA, November 2.

The Imperial Russian army, which has now been joined by the corps under general Kozlov, has taken a position between Lindau and Hohenems.

According to accounts from the general of cavalry, Melas, dated Montenara, Oct. 20, the enemy, on the preceding day repeated the attack upon our advanced posts and particularly the village of Bezinette. A general attack was expected, and the whole army was ready to repel it; but as it afterwards appeared that it was only the division of Victor which had advanced, whose object was merely to repulse our chain of advanced posts, the general of cavalry, Melas, resolved to drive off that division. He gave orders for the necessary troops to advance, under the command of field marshal lieutenant Ott, and gen. count Nobili; Gen. Gottschalk, who was posted near Villa Nuova was likewise ordered to co-operate.

The attack was made by all the columns at the same time, at three o'clock in the afternoon, and though the enemy made at first considerable resistance, they were soon forced to retreat, being threatened by our cavalry in flank and rear. At four o'clock the village of Bezinette was again in our hands, and the enemy were driven to their positions in the mountains, with such effect, that they even quitted the village of Poverano, near that position. Their loss in killed and wounded was considerable; three officers, nearly 100 privates, and a piece of ordnance fell into our hands. We had but few killed, and about 60 wounded.

FROM THE LECH, Nov. 2.

On the 30th ult in the evening, an officer of the Russian staff, from Lindau arrived at Augsburg, with a letter from field marshal Suwarrow to the magistrates informing them that he had altered his resolution of quartering the Russian army along the Danube; that they should go into cantonments between the rivers Iller and Lech, and his head quarters were not to be at Riedlingen; but at Augsburg. Russian baggage, and a considerable number of officers arrived yesterday at the latter place, where Suwarrow, the Grand Duke Constantine, the whole of the general staff, and every thing else belonging to the head quarters with a garrison of some hundred Cossacks, will arrive at Augsburg at the same time. The prince of Conde has requested that city to admit at least sixty officers of his corps. Seven other envoys it is said are expected there. The meeting of the states of the circle of Suabia, which was convened at Augsburg, may now be shifted to Esslingen, or some other place.

ERLANG, Nov. 2.

Nothing official has yet appeared concerning the negotiations for an armistice, which have been carried on since the 22d of Oct. between field marshal Suwarrow and the Austrian commanders, and the French gen. in chief, Massena. However several private letters from Suabia, of the 26th and 27th ult. state this to be certain, and the alterations which have been made on both sides with respect to winter quarters, may be considered as a positive proof of an armistice being nearly agreed upon. These private letters state the principal contents of that convention to be:

1. This convention is concluded for an unlimited time. 2. A line of demarcation is agreed upon between the two armies, on the frontiers of Switzerland and Germany. 3. In consequence of this line of demarcation the Russians under Suwarrow withdraw to the Danube, and the Austrians to certain points not yet known. 4. The French evacuate the whole of the Swiss territory. 5. Switzerland is to be considered by both powers as a neutral State, &c.

The above mentioned letters also give the pleasing intelligence that the most active preparations have been made in different quarters for opening a new congress for peace.

FRANKFORT, November 6.

The last accounts from Switzerland state that a number of French troops are marched from thence for Alsace, and that Switzerland will be entirely evacuated in the consequence of a convention between the hostile generals. The letters from Ulm on this subject are contradictory—some speaking of it as certain, and others denying it.

Intelligence has been received here to day, that the French have entered Carlsruhe. It is also said that they have imposed a contribution of 30,000 florins on the Duchy of Wirtemberg.

LOWER ELBE, Nov. 11.

The Vienna Court Gazette of the 2d inst. only contains under the head of War Occurrences, the further details from Melas, of the 19th and 20th October, in which the French were driven to their mountainous position, as stated in a former Gazette. It only adds, that the loss of the French in killed and wounded, was considerable, and that 3 privates, with a piece of ordnance, fell into the hands of the Austrians, who had but few men killed, and not more than 62 wounded. The French appear to be too weak in that quarter, and on the side of Piedmont, to venture a general attack; but they endeavour by frequent marching and counter marching, and by harassing the advanced posts, to embarrass the Austrians, and keep their whole corps always on its guard, against a general attack.

Direct advices from Italy report an affair to have happened near Chiusa, whether the French were drawn by the retreat of the Austrians, who surprised them immediately afterwards, and drove them back with loss. Coni is surrounded by an army of 50,000 men, nearly covering 12 German miles. Gen. Bellegarde with an army of 12,000 men, guards the environs of Novi, and observes all the motions of the French.

The official reports from the Archduke only come down to the 25th October. They mention that the communication with Philippsburg had been restored on the 22d October. However our direct advices from Carlsruhe, of the 28th, state, that Philippsburg is entirely closed again, and is undergoing a siege in form. The headquarters of the French army of the Rhine were at Bruchsal on the 2d inst. An article from Frankfort, dated the 5th, states, that the French are already at Carlsruhe.

The Gazette of Erlangen contains the articles of an armistice, said to be negotiating between the belligerent generals, in a private letter from Donaueschingen, of the 26th ult. but there is no official account yet of their having been concluded.
