M Bachelor's Lament.

Oh, would I had a girl to love, To share those happy hours-My bliss to crown, while she would prove The fairest of life's flowers: No more I'd crave, if this light heart A woman, s worth might know; And pure affection's prirceless gem

I'm weary of a single life, Though all its joys are mine, There's scarcea pleasure now possessed But might be made divine. If I could claim a "better half." And need no longer rove To find the prize my heart desires-A gentle girl to love!

The light of love would show.

Now, maidens fair, (not yet bespoke,) Why should I longer tarry! I'm twenty-four years old next month, And am resolved to marry! So if among you beats a heart, Which might with mine accord, Oh, do not let this leave you so, But haste to send me word.

And that will be a happy day, The day I claim my belle! And that will be a happy theme, On which we both may dwell, And I will be a happy man, When her sweet smiles I move; And she shall be a happy girl-She shall-the girl I love.

[From the American Farmer. Summer Management of Sheep.

In a former number we noticed the admirable work, entitled, the "American Shepherd," by L. A. MORRELL, and promised to recur to it again. This we do now the Book has confirmed us in our former opinion that, taken as a whole. ican sheep breeders, who may either be engaged in the business, or intend to embark in it. The very intelligent author has not only availed himself, in the compilation and writing of his work, of the lights reflected by European authors, but has done so with regard to some of the most extensive wool growers in America, the most intelligible form. Superadded to these sources of information, he has thrown in the results of his own great experience. Thus, as it were; placing before the public eye, that which his judgment approves, and rejecting that condition of the people of our own country. Change from Dry to Green Food .-Sheep which may have been confined in yards or sheds upon hay or fodder, through the winter, should not be suddenly turned to grass in the spring; but it is better to suffer them to graze for an hour or two daily for a week first-during which period they ahould be fed during the residue of the day upon good hay and a small portion of grain. With those who have had regular supplies of roots, through the winter, the danger of turning them to grass in the spring is greatly reduced.

Its quality should be good, and given in such quantity as to keep them in good condition without making them fat, as that state is injurious, and sometimes induces abortion. They should be kept during winter and early spring exempt from storm and cold.

Salting .- Attention must be paid to salting the sheep, and especially after being turned to pasture. The plentiful use of salt is found to be a preventive of the Liver-root and scouring.
