BY T. B. READ. All within and all without me Feel a melanchaly thrill, And the Carkness hangs about me, Oh, how still !

To my feet the river glideth, Through the shadow, sullen, dark, On the stream the white foam rideth, Like a barque;

Like the linden leans above me, Till I think some things there be In this dreary world that love me, Even me.

Gentle flowers are springing near me, Shedding sweetest breath around; Countless voices rise to cheer me, From the ground;

And the lone bird comes-I hear it, In the tall and windy pine, Pour the sadness of its spirit

Into mine;

There its swings and sings above me, Till I think some things there be In this dreary world that love me,

Now the moon hath floated to me, On the stream I see it sway, Singing boat like, as 'twould woo me Far away.

And the stars bend from the azure, I could reach them where I lie, And they whisper all the pleasure Of the sky:

There they hang and smile above me, Till I think some things there be, In the very Heaven that love me, Even me.

Now when flows the tide of even, Like a solemn river, slow, Gentle eyes akin to Heaven On me glow.

Loving eyes that tell their story, Speaking to my heart of hearts; But I sigh, "a thing of glory Soon departs."

Yet when Mary fades above me, I must think that there will be One thing more in Heaven to love me, Even me.

FROM THE ALBANY JOURNAL. AGRICULTURAL MEETING.

ASSEMBLY CHAMBER, FEB. 11, '47. J. M. SHERWOOD, Esq., Ex-President of the State Agricultural Society, in the

Mr. Johnson. Secretary of the Society, remarked, that it was gratifying to witness again the commencement of the Agricultural meetings, which had proved so much benefit heretofore. The discussions which take place were looked for with much interest by the farmers throughout the State. He trusted the farmers and other gentlemen in the Legislature would sustain and give interest to these meetings as they had done during the past winter, and he could not doubt that the effects would be most salutary, and the information which they could furnish of great importance to the agricultural interests of the State. The subject for the evening was Ploughing, one of the most important branches of agricultural labor; and on the right performance of which, in a great measure, depended the success of the cultivation of the soil. He called on experience was in favor of deep plough-Mr. Howard, editor of the Cultivator, to open the discussion, who remarked:

Mr. Howard, of the Cultivator, opened the discussion-stating that the objects of ploughing are, 1st to loosen the soil for the purpose of forming a proper bed for plants, 2d, to incorporate manures with the soil; 3d, destroying the sod or sward, and so placing or arranging the soil and its ingredients, that the vegetable matters sowed wheat again, and had 17 bushels which contribute to the growth of plants may be converted to a soluble state, and rendered available to their support when in the central part of the county, purchaneeded,

He went considerably into detail in exthe principles involved in them. He thought one of the greatest, if not the greatest error in our ploughing, was an attempt to accomplish too much by ploughing too wide furrows. The injury from this cause was not as great on ducing a crop. very loose soils as on those of more compact nature. That kind of plough- the fields by ploughing, and the result ing, however, which brought the soil was a crop of corn the first season, avernearest to the condition in which it was aging, if he was not much mistaken, over brought by the use of the spade, was con- 50 bushels to the acre, without the aid of sidered best, and this would be nearest manure. He considers deep ploughing accomplished by narrow farrows. He generally as much the best. Ploughs his eight or ten inches.

The depth of furrows should depend on the nature of the soil, though the soil should be loosened in all cases to as great uary 25, on his way to Madrid, having a depth as practical; but where the soil is unequivocally relinquished all idea of prothin and the substratum sterile and desti- ceeding with his projected expedition atute of the elements which nourish ve- gainst the Ecuador, which was the subgetables, the loosening should be done by ject of so much remark in the preceding

For sward, a lon- participation on the part of the Govern- he sick. ger implement with mould-board of less | ment in that enterprise. angle is preferable, in order to lay over the ferrow without its being broken. For "old ground," a plough that will break to pieces and completely pulverize the soil death?" is wanted, hence it should have a shorter "To be sure, I do," was the reply, and more abrupt turn.

As to the time of ploughing, Mr. H. was in favor of ploughing sward after the vegetation has considerably started, as it would decompose sooner under such circumstances, and the gasses seemed to be envolved in a manner most conducive to growing crops.

Judge Cheever, Vice President of the State Society, remarked that the plough was a very inportant implement in agriculture, as remarked by Mr. H. The construction of the plough was a matter of importance. A different construction was necessary was necessary in the plough used for sward land and in old land which had been broken up. The angle of the mould board should be less for sod land than for other; thus care should be taken not to increase the angle so as to prevent toe plough from clogging.

No plough could do good work that did not clear itself. The object of the plough was to break up the land, and bring the soil in reach of the plants. Many plough as deep in breaking up as afterwards, though his practice was different. He would not plough deep in sod land, no matter what the soil was, but afterwards lower, so as to keep up the nutriment posed to sale by way of Public Vendue or Outfrom decomposed sod. As to the depth and width of the furrow, Judge C. remarked, the narrower, the furrow slice the better. The ground was more easily pulverized. Prairie lands said to be ploughed three feet, and corn planted between the furrows. If sod is turned on English couch grass, with wide furrows, you might almost as well expect a crop on a bull's hide. In both cases the sod is inverted-but the narrow slice sooner prepares the soil for the seed. Not of so much importance on old land. The cumstances. In sandy land, where there is a yellow sand for subsoil, this should be visited as little as possible. Clay soils are full of fertilizing matter, and whare the surface is constantly worked and vegetable power exhausted, good husbandry requires to plough deeper. He had seen on exhausted clay lands, at a single ploughing of 3 inches deeper than usual, crops nearly doubled. Virgin clay furnished a new material, of fertilizing principle. So olso in muck and alluvial lands-plough deep and deeper as long as fertilizing matter remains. The depth, however, must depend on the judgment of the ploughman, and upon circumstan- teen acres in prime meadow, and twelve or fifces. Judge C. said he had not any ex- teen more can be made. The Improvements perience as to the subsoil plough, but he had no doubt of its value. A gentleman of his acquaintance informed him that he had succeeded well with it on sandy lands was full of water courses which let off the rains, and by using the subsoil plough, these courses were broken up and cut away. This is a fact in engineering, when, by digging, often the character of the soil is changed; soil becomes frequently tight which was naturally porous.

The object of plowers is not effected until the soil is completely pulverizedon clay, the drag and harrow must follow -then the roller is indispensable in tenacious soils to successful cultivation-it shuold not be used last, but should be followed with the harrow. If the clay lumps are left without being crushed by the roller, they remained as impervious to water as paving stones. The roller is useful in all crops on a stubborn soil. Judge C. judgment required that it should not be sent down so that the rain would not find it. Manure spread on sod land and plowed deep looses most of its effects .-If plowed in at all, plough light. On wheat crop, at first plowing light-afterwards deeper-or, place it on the land after plowinga nd drag it in. We want the manure where the roots of the plants will receive the benefit of it.

Hon. Mr. WOODBURY (of the Assemble, from Wyoming) remarked that his ing. He had become possessed of a farm where field had been cultivated for 16 years in succession: crops poor; oats not two feet high. The land was nearly level and a gravelly loam. He plowed it from 8 to 10 inches deep-and sowed it with wheat, and had a small crop of 12 bushels. He pastured it three years with sheeps after sowing clover, and then per acre, and expects the next crop will be 25 bushels. A former neighbor of his sed a piece of land some years since, which the owner had cultivated on the planation of these objects, and in stating principle of shallow plowing, and had planted it with corn, which was so stinied in its growth, that in cutting it up near the ground many of the ears were cut in two, and the soil, from the appearance of the corn, appeared to be incapable of pro-

The following we have just received from Messrs. Joslin and Rowe, Druggists, in Newark in this State, to whom Esq. a citizen of Burlington, Licking

Burlington, O. Dec. 1, 1843. Messrs. Joslin & Rowe-At your rement of the case of Mrs, Wimer and child, as near as I am able to communicate, which you are at liberty to publish if you see fit, as I feel a desire to inform the world of the effects of the invaluable midicine called Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, to which, by the Divine blessing, I am indebted for the restoration to health of my wife and child.

About five years ago Mrs. Wimer was attacked with a violent cough, pain in the chest and side and symptoms of approakind believed, that Consumption cannot ching consumption. During the interval estate, late the property of Christian seated in the human system, nothing can last, she had been treated by eminent from that time to some time in February physicians from Utica, Sylvania, Homer will continue the work of destruction un- Chatham and Newark, and with only partial relief of the most orgent symptoms. About one year ago she caught a violent cold, which seated upon the lungs, producing an alarming aggravation of all her previous systems. Her physician was sent for, and despite his best afforts she began to sink rapidly under her disease. Cough, expectorant, and hectic, together with night sweats soon reduced her to a complete skeleton. then, nor do I now doubt, every symptom In February last her attending physician deemed her case altogether hopeless; a council was called, and after deliberating upon her case unanimously pronounced her to be beyond the reach of means, and expressed their opinion that she could survive but a short time, one or two weeks at farthest. She was at this time entirely confined to her bed, and scarcely able to articulate, except in a whisper. Her daily proxysms of coughing would last uninterruptedly from three to five hours, and so severe that we expected every proxysm would be her

After the last attack of Mrs. Wimer, our youngest child, then an infant at the breast, was taken down and rapidly sinking with the same symptoms as its mother, and having seen the happy effects in the case of the mother, we were disposed to make a trial of it for the child, and it was attended with the same per-
